I once saved a little puppy that was running around the streets and I took him in. He's now 2 years old and I still have him. I also host weekly/monthly giveaways on here as well :P

Throughout my 20 years of life I have completed multiple acts of kindness. One of the most memorable, which I still do is help out some kids in my area. Their mothers are junkies, they take whatever they can get their hands on and it really upsets me. I look at the kids & they're wearing the same clothes 60% of the time. I know these kids because my sister would babysit them often. Whenever possible I get them some extra clothes, it's not much but it helps. I also feed them often, I'd either pick up some Little Caesars, McDonalds, Burger King, pretty much whatever I can. I'm sure I went over a paragraph but it's hard to fit it all in one paragraph. Anyways, that's one of the many things.

Ramsey - November 23, 2016, 8:11 pm

Will come back later.
Hopefully all places arent taken when I come back.

Last winter while on leave (military vacation) I was headed to see a movie with my sister. It was snowing hard that evening and the roads were collecting a few inches of snow. The road I was on is 35 MPH, but I was going about 20-25 MPH because it was that bad. We came up on a car that had slid off the road with it's lights still on. Me, being in my jeep wrangler and having the natural instinct to make sure people are safe, pulled over and got out. I walked over to the car that were stuck and asked them if they were OK and would like assistance in getting out. They happily accepted my help and I began attaching my winch to their vehicle and slowly recovered them back onto the main road. The lady tried to tip me, but I declined. I find joy in helping people and am glad I have bought a jeep wrangler for purposes like that. Still made it to the movie on time. :)

I could contribute inside of the sub forum with discussions and I could socialize with others. I could also host giveaways under the groups name. I'm fairly active so there's always someone I could be talking to ?

I'm still wondering why you're trying to rejoin Illuminati after being accepted and leaving lmao

While walking inside a shopping centre, I found a $20 note lying on the floor. I assumed that someone might've dropped it so I was waiting in the area with my mate. Didn't feel like asking anyone if they dropped the money cause they could easily lie and take the money but I instead signaled the people by waving the $20 around.

In the end, no-one confronted me or my mate so we gave it to a homeless man instead.

I've also donated small increments of my BTC to user from Hack forums when they were in need.

Cool guy, good luck with this

Sir Piffalot - November 24, 2016, 1:54 am

I think my greatest act of kindness was when I have gifted my 600$ sound system to a random user at least that laid in my reship. And I think I am in general a person that helps everyone who need my help and is friendly :) I am kinda new to hf but I have a bit of experience in se and finding solutions. Would be grateful if I get a chance to enter even I am below the requirements

Larceny - November 24, 2016, 1:59 am

If we're talking about monetary acts of kindness, I've got a decent one. Through an error, a guy accidentally send me .75 BTC when I literally had $0 to my name. Stuff went wrong, but I sent him the money immediately, no questions asked. I can provide proof, it was a HackForums user.

Not sure if this is generosity of just general humanity, but, in either case, I'm sure most wouldn't have done that.

?Dominate - November 24, 2016, 2:00 am

Moneyroller - November 24, 2016, 6:43 am

My acts of kindness consist of helping those in need. I get well over 100 community service hours each year. I mainly help ones with special needs by setting up a great big dinner. It's a collaboration of help from a lot of people, but I do it every year. I also volunteer at the food kitchen to help feed the homeless. It is just a few things I do to help the ones who need it.

I think I should be accepted as I have contributed significantly within the past week.
Below are some of the threads that evidently back this up:

If I am accepted then you can expect additional future giveaways and member contests from me under the name of Illuminati. Furthermore, I am very active and will therefore take advantage of this opportunity involving myself in threads within the sub-forum.

Thank you for the opportunity and good luck with your agreement with Illuminati.

Would be nice to get accepted into this group.

I'm very active on HackForums, always on, posting etc. Anyways, some guy came to me, from HackForums, who had very little money, and was really desperate for a csgo cheat, so I decided I was feeling nice and made him his very own build of my CSGO cheat (pCheeto), worth $65, and just gave it to him for free. Felt really good after, not gonna lie. Would be great to be accepted into here.

You build a city like you build a cathedral, from the ground up.
you must give back to earn respect and then eventually you will earn their love

I have a customer service based job. Whenever we hire new employees, we always get them to buy in our morals/ethics around the shop. Our #1 motto is "make relationships, not transactions." We are here to help people and offer advice, not sell them something they don't need. This is something I've carried with me throughout my personal life also, and even onto this forum.
