Proud to be a part of this group. Good luck to everyone applying!

Lufasu - November 29, 2016, 3:04 am

Good luck everyone who applying.

We are looking for high quality gfx and not simple things.

?Dominate - November 29, 2016, 3:04 am

Good luck to all applicants.

Notorious seems like a great group, too bad I'm not experienced with GFX.

I would apply for the gaming sector but it doesn't seem like you have one for OCE gamers yet.

Stashy - November 29, 2016, 3:07 am

Awesome group! Glad to be a part of it.

Good luck to all applicants!

I think our gaming team is pretty much filled up for now and we do not require more members at the moment for that sector. We've some plans in our mind(s) and we'll be going public with them as soon as we think out the implementation. Thank you for showing your interest. We might have other way(s), in the not-so-distant future, for users to be a part of our group.

I'd actually greatly enjoy joining. I know my GFX are admittedly bad, and that is why I want to join. To learn how to improve myself, and stop making IQ bullshit and instead make HQ works. I may joke about it, but I generally enjoy making shit and by joining Notorious I'd contribute actively.

I have taken numerous PS courses and know the basics and some tips and tricks. I have helped people in my Graphics class back in school, and have been doing it for a long time. My threads reflect my humorous attitude to life, however I'd love to start being serious.

inb4 i get blacklisted because chief hates me ?

Hi, my name is Mangata. I'm seventeen years old and I live in the Netherlands (+1). You can also know me as Komorebi. I changed it to Mangata, so I have my personal design branding. I want to be a little bit private on the internet for now. Mangata is a Swedish untranslatable word. It means 'the reflection of the moon on water,' beautiful isn't it?

When I was a little boy (5 years ago), I played a game Soccer-Star. That also had a forum, and that was a very tight (but fun) community. There was a guy called Miracle who made beautiful signatures, I pm'd be this guy because I wanted to do that too. He says 'Look at FotoFlex.com and try by yourself.' Guess what I did, I went to that website, and I made hundreds of avatars, signatures, soccer club logos. It wasn't very HQ, but I didn't know there was a better option. But then I found iPiccy. Oh, I was so happy when I discovered that website haha! It was exquisite, so much more options. I still recommend this, for someone who doesn't have Photoshop. Every single day, I designed things with iPiccy, and I thought again there was no better option. But when I started to search tutorials on YouTube I found Photoshop. I downloaded the CS2-version, one month later I upgraded it to CS5 and that's where my designing journey started. In all these years, Photoshop wasn't the only application I installed. Illustrator, After Effects, Premiere Pro, C4D.

Do I want to be Graphic Designer or Visual Storyteller (that's how I call it) as full-time job? Hmm, yeah. I'm pretty sure this would be cool, but I don't want to waste five years of my time. In Holland, a study is five years long, and I don't know what to study. I can study Journalism, Sports Marketing, and Economics or Graphic Design. It sounds all great. Journalism, I love writing in Dutch, because my English isn't that good, and it would be great to fly over the whole world, be on the news on TV or write for the newspaper. Sports Marketing and Economics is more severe, but also fun. You can work for football clubs and do advertising. Graphic Design is something like Journalism; I don't know if they make you a better designer, and don't know if the Journalism-study makes you a better writer. Yeah, it's useful, but it's more about contacts and communication, I think. Do you need a study to be a real journalist/graphic designer? Ewww, I don't believe. You have to learn it yourself, with trial and error, how we all started. Clients and companies don't hire you for what you've studied. They hire you for what you've created. Your portfolio. Your history. Is a study useful, yeah! Is it necessary? I don't think so. And that's why I doubt. I have to make a choice this year, so I have to think about it.

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=2840953>

I always had the problem, that I can't specialize myself. I like brandings, but I also like App design. Since a few weeks, I made my own portfolio website. I looked around me for inspiration, and everybody was like 'We are ... We do ...' I can't do that 'We are Mangata. We do UI-Design, UX-Design, App design, Webdesign, Brandings, Thread designs, Logos, Avatars, Social Media-design' No that wouldn't work for me. But every designer has got a thing that makes them unique. What's outstanding for me? I don't know. Maybe it's just the fact I don't want to specialize. I mean, I like UI/UX-design, but I don't want to do that every single day. That would be boring. Maybe it's good I don't can make a choice, maybe it's very bad. We will see.

But the apps I use or can use: Adobe Photoshop (100%)

Adobe Illustrator (85%)

Adobe Premiere Pro (70%)

Adobe After Effects (60%)

FL Studio (5%)

Maybe this is the reason I post this application too quick. I don't really have a portfolio right now. I have made many designs in the few years I'm doing this, but never made my collection or something. Because a portfolio is very helpful I'm busy with this since a month or something. This is my portfolio for now, but you can't see very much. It's a big W.I.P. and I think I finished only 30% of it, or I'm happy with 30% of the website. Because you can't see that much of my designs with this, here are a few designs.
