Thread: New Official Usergroup - Ideas

Cameron - December 4, 2016, 12:38 pm

I'm brainstorming a couple ideas for group ideas and one that stood out to me was a car/Motor vehicle group. Yup that's right.

I mean it has a chance of working and a chance of failing, but at least it would be something unique that hasn't been done before. (not at all hacking related, but neither are plenty of other groups) If after a few months and it proves to be unsuccessful then I'd make the change to something else. It still wouldn't be your basic Marketing group that's been done 100 times, it'd still be something unique.

This is of course still just an idea and I have a few other ideas I'm still tossing up between, if anyone else has any ideas I'd love to hear your suggestions. Keep in mind I'd like it to be somewhat unique and not overdone in the past.

Thanks.

Riyu - December 4, 2016, 12:39 pm

Could work but is there even a huge interest of cars on this forum?

Aveling - December 4, 2016, 12:43 pm

What about a "Mechanics" group? I believe cars and motors fall under that category as well, and so do a lot of other things. Just an though I had.

This post provided me a clover.

The ?udge - December 4, 2016, 12:44 pm

Do you think there's enough demand for one? Aside from Vossen being the #1 enthousiast for this

There's often lounge threads regarding cars and it has been suggested as a SF countless times though. I mean there's definitely a chance it won't work out at all, if that happens I can always rebrand and go with a different idea. I'm also still considering other options.

TheChi?f - December 4, 2016, 12:55 pm

Congratulations on your new group and good luck man ?

Brotherhood. - December 4, 2016, 12:57 pm

Actually seems like a good idea tbh, good luck with it pal :)

Parks - December 4, 2016, 12:58 pm

I'd be so down for this as I'm into cars for the flipping aspect. Could generate a lot of discussion with car flips possible fixer uppers etc.

Domyos - December 4, 2016, 12:58 pm

Seems like a cool idea. I think it would work, Good luck with your group fam.

Nygma - December 4, 2016, 1:04 pm

That idea would heavily depend on the actual knowledge people have on cars and not just taking shit about what they read in a car mag.

RuneCSGO - December 4, 2016, 1:19 pm

I do like the idea of the cars as it goes but like Parks mention a aspect to flipping cars would be a good idea to look in too.

These are some idea's I thought of for a group:

- Fitness - Health - Personal life
- Money (this could brunch out to many different things and one of the thins I like the most about is it can lead into many aspects)
- Graphics/Web development - Stock Market

So many idea's but go with your gut man, and if you ever need a helping hand lmk.

Zexo - December 4, 2016, 1:24 pm

I like cars and I think it would be a nice group but sadly I think you would only have a few members that actually like posting in it about cars.

That's my concern too, but you won't know about something until you try it.

I'd rather it be unique and fail rather than having your typical marketing group that does nothing.

I would say go for it tbh there are tons of people that have wanted a car subforum so this is pretty much as close as it gets.

Nygma - December 4, 2016, 1:38 pm

I guess you could have a show off your own car thread, a problem help desk, maybe discuss the benefits of certain modifications, classic's and racing.

glitchgxd - December 4, 2016, 1:53 pm

I would say either that or a general engineering group if that doesn't work out. I thought it'd be cool to have a group about robotics but again that's something I'm not sure everyone would pick up.

That could change once there's a subforum dedicated though, before all car related discussions went in the lounge which normally got ruined by LQP.

Not that its any of my business bud and I am a huge fan of muscle and classic cars. If you are going to invest a substantial amount of money into a group then please really consider all the factors, you really should consider the benefits of Monetizing your group (you could still roll with the car idea and just incorporate investment opportunity at the same time). We have been friends for a long time and like I said I know its your choice what you do, but why invest in something and not gain interest. I apologize in advance if Im being to forward.

I agree with Nik to an extent.

It's your group and you do what you like with it, whether it's because you want to run a group and have like-minded individuals in it. But you should also look at getting money from it to - hard to see a car group making money. But not everyone is like that, some people want things for the enjoyment, which may be the case.

But I'm sure you have thought of it man. I guess I'm the type of person to want a group to make money out of it, you're probably different.

It does not really contribute to hackforums. It is more for your personal interests and that is something you do not need a group for.

I get that it is your passion but the group would be extremely inactive within a week or 2.

I'd rather focus on a theme which fits the forum. Take the illuminati as an example.

You would think we are about marketing but that is totally not true. We have a very nice sub-section full with HQ members. That is what you would aim for as a group.

You could have different sectors that would include an Automobile one.

Also you could have a sick user bar that could involve like gears or some shit.

Not too knowledgeable regarding engineering. I like the idea but it could be executed a lot better by an owner with more experience in that field.

Cameron, if you make a car enthusiasts group I will love you forever, please make it happen ?

I would apply for this, no doubt. I am a HUGE, HUGE car enthusiast.

I'd be interested in cars just to know more about them tbh.

Once I get my house, I'm going to buy my second car just to work on more than likely, and this would be a cool group to document progress in.
