No one is really sure what yet, but there is a Clannad project being worked on by AnimeJapan. On their website they have Clannad listed as one of the projects that they are currently working on - which is leading people to believe that something is going on. The debate is almost unanimous that this series could not get a sequel - but a spin off is possible, and maybe even a remaster. The one thing that fans across the board do not want is another Pachinko machine, which would break a lot of hearts at this point.

I hope they make it as comfy as the original

Clannad is considered a masterpiece, a bit like Code Geass S3, I hope that they won't fuck it up.
