SIM-2015410 - December 9, 2016, 3:14 pm

Image to myCode Converter

Someone was recently looking for a program to convert images into coloured myCode for HF. We couldn't find anything online so I made this little tool to do it. Some of you might have seen me posting some tests I was doing, so now I am happy enough to release it. Keep in mind that detailed images will require a lot of myCode to change colour every letter, so if its too big it may exceed HF's character limit of 24000 characters. I will post some examples later.

The program can be found on github here:

GitHub Repository

You can now use a web based version to generate these images, courtesy of Computer Craft:
<https://equilibriumhf.net/ASCII/>

All you need is python and Pillow, the command line parameters can be found in the readme. If you need help using it, post below. If you really can't work it out, you can also post images below and I or someone else will do it for you when they have time. It has been only been tested a little bit so if you find cases where it doesn't work correctly, etc. then feel free to submit pull requests or just post below.

Enjoy!

This is awesome, you should try to see if it works well with Night Fury's avatar since he was asking for how to make it. Thank you for the contribution, hopefully this thread takes off but if it not we will get a sticky.

I should have done the one without the background in the emblem generator. Besides hosting, what would it take to make this application web based?

Signatures have a smaller character limit so probably wouldn't be able to fit a big one in

Could still take a screenshot of it and make background transparent ?

It's too detailed, letters take up multiple pixels each so you can't expect it to draw thin lines well

Eww that gui is dirty, send me just the front end files and I'll create a nicer looking gui.

When I first worked on this, it was a small script with almost no front end work done to help Mesh out since I wasn't in Equilibrium. Now that I have moved this to the official server, I will be updating the GUI to make it look nicer and adding more features.

Please don't do the hardest captcha setting aswell. I don't think anyone would want to scrape this or anything.

It's not scraping the program that I am worried about but that this is a mildly resource heavy script. For now though, I will bump down the security a bit and see how it goes.
