What is Equilibrium?

Equilibrium is a group dedicated to giving support to all users throughout the entire forum on any topic. There have been many groups who have claimed to be helping the forum without showing anything to back it up. The concept of this group was inspired by a quote from Tranquility, the leader of a group formerly known as The Creed. Our members will be dedicated to helping out others in threads which are posing a question or calling us to action. Tutorial threads may be useful, but we feel that single posts who help one or more users inside their own threads are more valuable.

Technical Requirements0% Warning Level (No exceptions)

No scam reports (No exceptions)

Consistently good grammar (think 8/10 or 9/10)

Once you join you must be able to post once per day in the subforum and on the public board. Your past posting history should show you are capable of this.

Continuous contributions to the forum, if you post one tutorial every few months and lounge in the meantime you will not make it. Marketplace "contributions" such as sales threads, graphics, and free services and giveaways/member contests do not count. As such, general lounge and SRPP threads which are used to generate discussion do not count either.For a more detailed explanation, click [here]

Personality RequirementsAn actual passion for teaching and helping, not just wanting to join the group for a userbar.

Good attitude and kindness towards members, don't be an asshole and don't flame. If your past history shows this you will be an unlikely candidate.

Must be able to read quickly and at a high level, there is a lot of information in the subforum and specific steps you must take to stay in the group once you join.

We prefer that our members don't get involved with the marketplace. However, your participation will not deny you from the group as long as you contribute outside the marketplace frequently. If you are active in the marketplace, you must have no deal disputes or community warnings.

How to Apply

To apply simply fill out the application at the bottom of the thread. DO NOT apply via User CP and DO NOT PM leaders with your applications or ask how you can get added without applying on the thread. If I am not sure about an applicant I will ask other group members for their opinion which is why you must post in the thread. If you get denied, it was most likely due to the following reasons. If you do not exhibit the following behavior and you were still denied, PM me and we can discuss it.

You have poor grammar or don't care enough to fix grammatical errors.

You do not post actively enough on site.

You don't post frequently enough or if you do, your posts are not helpful. Either that or you have clear inconsistency in posting. For example, you have 1 helpful post and the rest are just lounging or low quality.

You have a habit of flaming or trolling members.

AS OF FEBRUARY 2017 RECRUITMENT IS CLOSED AND THE GROUP STATUS IS NOW INVITE ONLY.

I am definitely in love with the Equilibrium user-bar. It's rich, but it also displays royalty and professionalism. Best of luck with the group, hoping to see some contributions from Equilibrium coming up.

Define your expectations for the group:My expectations to this group are high since you owning this group and i know what you can do , i cant really say what expectations do i want but i know if all the members will work together we can do a lot together.

Why do you want to join?ahh the interesting part , so i want to join the group because first of all one of my favorite thing beside gaming on HF its supporting people by PM or tutorials/guides or really helpful comments , i'm helping people daily on the gaming section and the pc sector and sometimes even help them via teamviewer. , i'm sure that i can contribute to the group by helping others.

My main support can be given about everything that belongs to PC problems / errors / gpu / cpu and everything related to PC parts and buildings , also my second main support its about everything related to gaming , i played a lot of games from every genre and i know most of the errors , most of the popular games and i can easy resolve an problem for a member.

My grammar is not at his best , i'm still learning and learning but still i can understand and make you understand me , thats not the big problem in my opinion :)

Why do you help others? Because helping people i dont know how to say it but its making me feeling good and helpful to others when someone need's help and you come from nowehre and help him until the problem is solved , also helping others its fun because you also share with others your knowledge and being helpful to more than one member.

Thats why its fun to help others , you also learn new things and teaching members new things.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? Around 4 on school days but probably 12 or more on weekends

Define your expectations for the group: Hopefully a different group and one that is high quality. No buyins and active lounges and maybe group projects

Why do you want to join? Because this group looks quite high quality and I am a group less young male looking to make new friends and hopefully this group will meet my needs and expectations

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? About five to six hours a day

Define your expectations for the group: A chill group that likes to be friendly and talk to each other as well as sharing specific ideas for projects and helping others when they're needed.

Why do you want to join? I want to join the group because from the looks of it, it seems like the group has a huge amount of potential. Plus, I have a couple of friends in there already, so I'm sure I would fit right in.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? I can make them at any point in the day whenever someone needs it.

Why do you help others? I help others because I like seeing smiles on their faces, or knowing that I made them feel better. Just like that thread I made called "If you're having a bad day, read this. I promise it to make your day better." I just did it to help people feel better because I was going through a rough time at that point as well and I wanted to share with people how I was getting through it, and by the replies it seems I did end up helping a lot of people.

Thanks for reading my application!

How many hours a day do you spend on HF?

At least multiple hours a day, however lately this has changed to a larger portion of the day, each day.

Define your expectations for the group:

A lot of questions posed by HF members often remain unanswered, this adds a lot of clutter to the community, which on its own exists mainly for the purpose of information, education and discussion of various computer-related topics. There is a substantial portion of entertainment, personal life topics as well as an active market place that has grown over the years and in my personal opinion this rise has neglected the the Tech, Code and Web sections on HF in a way. In some way I expect to find an atmosphere partially equal to what I've experienced in the groups Logic, Void and Apex when I was a member there. As to conclude my expectations of Equilibrium, these are mainly:

Answering questions in a constructive way

Informing, preparing and guiding newcomers on their stay in this community

Contributing in an educational sense

Why do you want to join?

I deeply enjoyed being a member of Logic/Void in the past and am proud of the positive changes that took place in my life because of it. After 2,000+ posts in the SRPP section my lingual skills improved, I understood logical fallacies in a deeper way and wanted to do nothing less than to bring objectivity to various discussion topics, while keeping an open mind and room for philosophical thought.

These changes later pushed me more towards the educational aspect of this community and since my return to HF during the summer of last year, I have been seeking membership of a group in which, through collaborations or individual effort, this aspect could be fulfilled. My short membership in Apex was proof of that, however the group's existence did not last long. I have recently applied to the group Writers as a side-attempt to contribute quality thinking in one way or another and was very intrigued when I saw Equilibrium pop up as a new group. Without much hesitation I started writing this application.

After receiving a decent amount of informational content throughout the years of being a member on HF, I gladly choose to give back what I am thankful of for receiving. Though my tone in some of my posts may be somewhat harsh I honestly admit, I only wish to help people out in fields I feel myself knowledgeable in. I'm an all-around computer enthusiast, 3rd grade college student in ecological and energy-related technologies, open-minded thinker and offer my skills to Equilibrium's mission.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above?

I may have specific fields of interest but I often browse the newly made posts in an attempt to find threads to which I can contribute. Sometimes I even search for threads with zero or few replies, to be of help and to answer an unanswered question. The frequency of me providing aid in any way is dependent on other people's needs, but this does not mean that I will not from time to time write an informational thread myself.

I prefer to dedicate the majority of my time on HF on (non-financial) contributions.

Why do you help others?

With all due respect, I believe I have answered this when answering the question of why I wish to join.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? Been trying to cut back tbh. I usually try to keep it under two hours but when I run out of YouTube videos to watch I usually revert to browsing this board.

Define your expectations for the group: Define or explain? And are you assuming my expectations for this group should be different from another? Or even the rest of the currently existing groups? My expectations for this group are the same for every other group.

Why do you want to join? I don't expect to be accepted.

List at least (3) of your most active sections with both threads and posts you have contributed: Why is the number three in parenthesis, exactly? (Instead of being spelled out like it should be.) That aside, virtually the only section I post decently helpful posts in are the C/C++ and general Coding sections. Look at my posts in those sections and pick out any posts you deem "helpful" because I don't know what the definition has morphed into today.

I currently plan on releasing a series of guides on HF throughout various sections, similar to this one here I have published: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5517875>

I would consider myself to be pretty experienced on various subjects such as business, crypto currency, etc. I have a registered business in the US and would love to help out others as much as I can on this forum. I do my best to post and help others as much as I can, but I will admit a lot of the times I mostly just lurk on HF. I'd love to be a part of a group where I can share ideas on how to benefit the forum and put these into action, if you have any questions about me feel free to ask :)

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? I usually keep the tab open and browse HF every few minutes while I'm working at my comp. I would say 6+ hours of on/off browsing

Define your expectations for the group: I have very big expectations for the leadership and owner of the group. I trust that they'll be doing their best to maintain the group's purpose and I would expect everyone in the group to be actively helping out the community to the best of their abilities.

Why do you want to join? A group full of individuals who are altruistic would help not only me grow as a person, but would also help the entire community and I would like to be a part of that.

List at least (3) of your most active sections with both threads and posts you have contributed. Nothing really stands out for me currently besides a few high quality posts mixed in with a lot of lounge posts. However, I've only become active recently these past few months and will be starting to contribute/help more in the community.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? It would depend on the topics I am interested in, but to ballpark I can make 8 long and helpful posts daily.

Why do you help others? There was a time period in my life where I had no one to turn to for help or support. I was in pain, I was directionless, motivated, and suicidal, but I wanted to keep trying in hopes of a better life. Because of this, I want to be that person that anyone can come to for anything and it's the most rewarding feeling when you see them smile afterwards.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? As often as possible if I find a question I can answer as high quality as possible.

Why do you help others? As stated above, I know what it's like to need help. If I can do something to assist someone with something that has got them asking for help I will.

Thank you for the consideration!

Define your expectations for the group:A group that actually wants to contribute to the forums. I can see this group being very high quality.

Why do you want to join?:Honestly tired of groups with no clear objective. Groups where we do nothing but shitpost in the lounge. Hoping to join this group so that we can actually make shit happen. Give groups a meaning again, rather than being a UB

Free GFX Services

I love doing graphics, even if I may not be the best. Nothing makes me happier than reading a "Thanks man, I really needed this for my _" or whatever. I'm always trying to improve.

It's because of that thread that I got invited to a lot of GFX related chats and such. Even though I don't think too highly of my GFX at all. I just felt like I should mention it, as it was one of my most successful threads)

My second most active section. I love posting here, even if it is riddled with trolls. I was a debater in middle school, and has spent a good deal of my life talking about and debating on topics. So I always love to present topic to debate in this section. I always try to use topics that will spark a debate and get minds going.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? Not every post I make is meaningful or important. I'd be lying if I said they were. However, aside from lounge, I strive to be a caring and helpful user. I post a lot, and actively. HF is kinda of what I do all day. Expect HQ post in the SF.

Why do you help others?: Because I enjoy their reactions. I have hosted 3 or 4 contest. Maybe more. And upgraded some users. Money is tight now so I can't upgrade or do contest right now, but I plan on going back to doing it in the future. I think everyone been at a low point before, if you can help a person get through it, you should. Life is hard man, everyone needs a hand.

Define your expectations for the group: My expectations to this group are high since you own this group and I know what you can do, I can't really say what expectations I want but I know if all the members will work together we can do a lot together.

Why do you want to join? ahh the interesting part, so I want to join the group because first of all one of my favorite things beside gaming on HF is supporting people by PM or tutorials/guides or really helpful comments, I'm helping people daily on the gaming section and the PC sector and sometimes even help them via TeamViewer. I'm sure that I can contribute to the group by helping others.

My main support can be given about everything that belongs to PC problems / errors / GPU / CPU and everything related to PC parts and buildings, also my second main support is about everything related to gaming, I played a lot of games from every genre and I know most of the errors, most of the popular games and I can easily resolve a problem for a member.

My grammar is not at its best, I'm still learning and learning but still I can understand and make you understand me, that's not the big problem in my opinion :)

That's why it's fun to help others, you also learn new things and teaching members new things. Vouch for this user, glws.

Why do you help others?

The simple fact that I can make someone smile brings a lot of joy to me and helps me get through the rest of my day. I'm going through a lot myself. But that has never stopped me from helping others. How many hours a day do you spend on HF? 4-7 hours per day.

Define your expectations for the group: So I should obviously have some expectations, otherwise you might think that I want in just for the userbar. Essentially I expect the subforum of the group to be a place where some semi-private/private methods are being shared, in order to help the fellow members of the group.

Why do you want to join? In order to exchange practical knowledge with other members, help them out, and be helped out by them as well.

List at least (3) of your most active sections with both threads and posts you have contributed. Okay, this is a bit of a challenging one, as I'm just a new member to this community, and I don't think that my public profile/threads are a great representation of my contribution. There isn't much evidence to this claim, but anybody who had approached me via pm/Skype/Discord with genuine interest and no bad intentions, has been helped to the best of my ability. (Obviously I'm not going to be open to assisting you with your problems 24/7, but I mean, if I have some free time and feel friendly, you'll probably be helped.) Let's give this a try?

It's mostly hard to do this, because I'm usually here just for the marketplace. Don't think that linking any posts could benefit this application in any way but some will be linked as it's required.

Marketplace (You've never seen something so good so inexpensive, and I have taken the domain marketplace here to a whole other level, haha)<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5499156>
<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5495685>

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? Will do my best to make posts that are ultimately targeting a larger audience, instead of just assisting members individually.

Why do you help others? Share, share, share, then ask. It's selfish, but that's how the world works. If you just go around asking people for help, you'll be alienated. On the other hand, if you've provided someone with so much knowledge that you've, in a way, transformed their whole life - and then you ask for them for something so insignificantly small compared to the value you've previously provided... It would be really stupid for them not to do it honestly.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF?

Two or three, depending on what else I have going on.

Define your expectations for the group:

I'm hoping this is a group that will be known for helping people. That's what the description says, but I've also heard that before. If this group is successful in accomplishing that I hope it can be a step towards turning this forum back into an actual hacking style forum, rather than the giant marketplace it has become.

Why do you want to join?

I greatly enjoy helping other users, and it's my number one reason for being on this forum. I feel this group fits perfectly with that.

List at least (3) of your most active sections with both threads and posts you have contributed.

I deal almost exclusively in the beginner hacking area. Here is where I can usually manage to find members before they've been pushed away by the rest of the community, or they fall for some trap like paid mentoring services. Usually if neither of these happen, other members will start them down the path of keyloggers and rats without giving them the opportunity to actually learn.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above?

I try to avoid posting anything that has no meaning to it. I won't say every post of mine is great, but as I said above my goal is to help people. A meaningless post won't accomplish that.

Why do you help others?

I enjoy it.

That's just how I am, it's not limited to hackforums, or computer hacking. To be more specific, it's not actually the helping I enjoy. I enjoy teaching.

I find it's beneficial to both parties.

If someone asks a question and I don't know the answer, I will learn it.

If someone asks a question and I do know the answer, I will teach it to them.

It's a win/win scenario.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? At least 7 hours.

Define your expectations for the group: After thoroughly reading the post, I expect this group to contribute as well as provide support to the community. Whether this is in the form of giveaways, contests, tutorials or being helpful.

Why do you want to join? I believe I fit the groups description exactly. I also want to socialise with others and share ideas for upcoming contributions I have planned.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? When I have time. I've been going through a rough patch and only post when I feel I can actually contribute. I won't post or make threads when forced, because they wouldn't be genuine. However I think this group will have no problem with that.

Why do you help others? Because it feels good. There's nothing better than making someone else happy. The great feeling you get when someone actually gets through a hard patch because you were able to help them. Help others, help yourself.

I want to add that my posts/threads as of now are not impressive at all. Even though, I do believe I would fit right in with Equilibrium. If there's anything else you'd like to ask me, just hit me up.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF?

An unhealthy amount of hours lol.

Define your expectations for the group:

I hope to see a lot of high quality tutorials. I expect to see this group as a helping hand to those who may need some mentoring or just counseling on problems they may be dealing with. In a way I see this as a big brother helping hand group. I would like to see people think of Equilibrium as a group full of trustworthy individuals who will always provide high quality post and threads throughout the entire community.

Why do you want to join?

The reason of me having the desire to join this group mainly falls between the knowledge of two wonderful leaders having control over a wonderful group with the possibility of making a change throughout the community. I, Vittorio would like to help bring this groups to a great status along with helping the group rise to a high respect level from the community. I have much knowledge and experience to offer to Equilibrium i hope to share it across the group and hopefully advance many members in certain subjects they may be lacking on. I'm always here to help and will always take up a task no matter how hard a task may seem. Much love from Vittorio... Equilibrium for life!

Often, I love to provide people support whenever they may need it the most. Helping others will always be a trait of mine that I purely enjoy to do. Good karma will always come your way.

Why do you help others?

It's how I was raised. Always have been told when growing up. Often was told that helping people will always give you a great feeling along with you doing something great for someone.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF?:

At least 6 hours a day, although I'm always on HF either on my phone or on my laptop, ready to browse at any moment.

Define your expectations for the group: A group of helpful individuals that not only help one another, but also in the community that they are most passionate about, as well as most experienced in as well. By helping one another, I believe we can farther progress the knowledge of the users on the forum as a whole.

Why do you want to join? I'd always had the passion of helping others, because I believe helping others is a form of helping one self as well. I'd like to join the group to find like-minded individuals where we can work together to help people on a bigger scale, such as providing help desks where we can answer almost any questions.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above?

I have been inactive until a few weeks ago, so I haven't been helping out much on the forums since June of last year. Now that I'm more active, I intend to help out as much as possible, this means that I'll try my best to answer any questions in sections that I browse frequently, which are Monetizing Techniques, CPA / PPD, and Marketplace Discussions.

Why do you help others?

I believe by helping others, I help myself as well. Sharing my knowledge further progresses the knowledge of the users who browse that section, and once they learn, they'll improve and may one day teach others as well.

Shark bait, hoo ha ha!

Not shitting on you specifically, or this group.

After seeing this thread I kind of realized how many are more generalized now.

Which would be great, if they could all deliver.

But they rarely do.

The group has only been out for a few days and you are already saying we are not going to do anything. I would say that counts as you shitting on me and the group especially since it took me a lot of hard work to set everything up on my own and get members in the right track. I'm not sure what kind of groups you are comparing us to or which groups in the past have tried to be useful and failed but Equilibrium is nothing like that.

In my opinion generalized groups are the way to go now and niche groups about hacking or gaming don't work out in the end. Equilibrium is not a lounge group and it is not a marketplace group, meaning I am recruiting people with specializations in any other field. I know it's not possible to solve everybody's problems on the forum but I am trying to get my members to help out in as many sections as possible under the group name which is why such high activity is required.

You are most likely not going to see any "megathreads" or help desks from us because most of the help I am trying to get members to give is in the form of single posts as mentioned earlier. I recruited a lot of members a few days ago, and while some have not yet gotten back to me a lot of others have delivered on giving great help in the name of the group. You might think "they would have done that whether they were in the group or not" but if you don't believe what I am enforcing I can invite you so you can check it out and hopefully change your mind about the group.

As you can see we are working together to try to help HF as much as possible, and considering those members were only invited 2 days ago I would say they have delivered well. Luckily these types of posts are logged in the subforum so it's always easy to see if we are actually doing something or not. Maybe you don't visit those sections but I would say they have had a substantial impact in improving them so far. If it puts the public at ease I would be fine with posting our progress every once in a while and maybe put a list of our members in the OP.

As you can see we are working together to try to help HF as much as possible, and considering those members were only invited 2 days ago I would say they have delivered well. Luckily these types of posts are logged in the subforum so it's always easy to see if we are actually doing something or not. Maybe you don't visit those sections but I would say they have had a substantial impact in improving them so far. If it puts the public at ease I would be fine with posting our progress every once in a while and maybe put a list of our members in the OP.

Obviously none of my business since the reply was targeted at Adam. But I just wanted to say in terms of your effort with just this reply and the group so far that I applaud you. Goodluck with it man.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? Whenever the idea to do so pops into my head, I don't like to make useless shit. I do however make daily posts in my section helping out others.

Why do you help others? When I first came to HF (RAT section) I spent close to a month figuring out what I had to know. It was by far my most terrible time on HF. Eventually I mastered remote administration (atleast the ones found on HF) and started teaching so nobody else had to go through that damn annoying experience.

It's also worth noting most of my support is given through skype but the vouches on my support thread should clarify just how active and good I am at teaching newlings.

I didn't even know this group existed till yesterday, the description totally fits me I hope it actually is what it describes to be and not just another cover.

Thanks for reading the application.

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? You have my word that I will at least spend 4 - 5 hours on HackForums per day.

Define your expectations for the group: I feel as Equilibrium as a whole will get far as a group. A substantial amount of members that are considered high quality are in the group, and it is definitely a group one would have dreams in getting in. I understand that currently I am a non-upgraded user, but as soon as I receive the funds to upgrade, you can bet that I'll have L33t. I have done a significant amount of research on HackForums group looking through many members histories, and group histories, and I can tell that this group is going to become a great success. The reason I say "will" is because nothing is perfect. Although from the amount of members in the group assisting new users, it just means a lot to me. The fact that this group does not allow buy-ins as well shows that the group isn't out to just make a quick buck. I feel as if that Equilibrium is the kind of group that consists of individuals who are active on the forums, and are out just to help other. Nothing more. I trust that you being in the notorious group Red Lions would allow for you to take the good and bad things from the structure of the group to make Equilibrium the best that it can be.

Why do you want to join? Obviously, I am going beyond my limits wanting to join Equilibrium as my first group, although I feel like it would create an amazing start for me on HackForums. I haven't been here on HackForums for long, although I feel as if staying would help me grow as a person, and joining Equilibrium would be a driving factor for me to be the most high quality I can, and assist other members in their needs. I live by one thing, and that is "Knowledge is power." I feel as if joining Equilibrium can assist me to gain more knowledge in fields that I have yet to learn, as well as for me to return the favor in fields that I have knowledge in. These next couple of months will allow me some time to post tutorials to help assist users and their issues on HackForums. I am always eager to help others, and thus having the idea that this is the perfect group for me.

I understand that my posts may not be of par quite yet. Very understandable. Although I have not been on HackForums for very long, and I am doing the best I can. I can assure you that whether or not I am invited into Equilibrium, that my post quality will get better. I also understand that some of these "contributions" I have posted are not necessarily contributions. Although how I see it as that me creating that thread, allows for others who have the same questions to receive the same answers I received allowing their questions to be answered essentially.

How often can you make meaningful posts like the ones above? I make meaningful posts as much as possible. I don't enjoy low quality posting, because it's just useless. I'm not one to be a post whore. I post when I believe it is right. Writing is one of my strong suits, and I try my best to improve my vocabulary and grammar on a daily basis.

Why do you help others? I help others because being online doesn't change any perspective from me. Whether there is someone in need of help online, or in real life, there honestly should not be a difference. If someone came up to you and asked for directions, would you not give it to them? The chances are very slim. The internet is a way of communication between individuals, and I am just a nice person overall. Not to mention helping others just feels great. I'm not sure if it somehow releases a dopamine rush or something, but it's just a great feeling.

Thanks for taking the time to read my application. If you have any other questions, I will be sure to answer them. Cheers. ?

Daily, I took a long break from HF because I was going through a big IRL change and couldn't get on nearly as much but lately I've been on, helping people much more frequently.

Why do you help others?

Because of the feeling it gives, when you help someone I feel like it helps the soul in a way and brings back good karma, not to mention the feeling of gratitude you get from the person. Not only that but it's also somewhat fun, you get to sort of show your knowledge while helping someone else further themselves.

Extra: I really do hope my application is accepted and whether or not I get accepted, I hope all the best for you and your group and hope everyone applying the best of luck!

Thank you :-)

How many hours a day do you spend on HF? Depends if there are needs, I would say on average 1 month in 12 so 2 hours a day. Sometimes more... sometimes less. Hence the average.

how many times a day do you post on HF? Statistically 4.92. Although that dropped after i took a couple of months of after losing my father.

What are your expectations for the group? Unbiased help to all, without any seperation between level of user or religious or ethinical situation.

Why do you want to join? Because equality isn't communism it's empathetic equality and what goes around comes back around.

Why should we accept you? Because you not only gain a solid member who believes in your beliefs but also a long term friend, my brothers are my brothers.

The Loungehttps://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5510235

Lastly, motivates you to help others? Do you have any pessimistic outlooks towards contribution that we should know about? To be honest with you I help most of my friends and group members off thread although the amount of HQ posts are coming.

(Roughly) How many hours a day do you spend on HF? At least 1 on week days and near 2 on weekend days.

(Roughly) how many times a day do you post on HF? Usually close to 7-8 times a day. Sometimes I have my hf binge and it around 15-20

What are your expectations for the group? My expectations are mostly to see equal as a way to help people on a larger scale

Why do you want to join? I want to help everyone no matter who they are. There is always somebody who needs help or advice and I love helping people. Equilibrium is a great way to help even more people than before and I would love to be a part of this group.

Why should we accept you? I don't have any intentions of gaining anything from a group. I would like to be a part of a platform or group where people all contribute to a greater cause and the betterment of members.

I am not by most means a pessimistic person, everyone makes mistakes and says things without knowing completely what they are doing or saying. I love to help people no matter who they are. I am motivated to help simply because it is the correct thing to do. Without guidance one cannot get where they are trying to go.

Added a new requirement concerning the marketplace and lounge/SRPP threads. I thought it was clear in the past, but although discussion threads generate content and activity these responses are not the type of contribution we are looking for. SRPP can be a great section for open minded discussions but simply putting in your thoughts towards a topic does not count.

I don't want to say we are looking for more technical applicants, but asking an open question in SRPP or The Lounge will not count as an answer on the active sections part of your application. As for sales threads, we do not view monetary contributions as a value to the group. Any service you provide in the name of the group must be free and not a one time thing.
