Thread: [\[JAILBREAK\] iOS 10 2 NEW very important exploits released](#)

Undefined - December 16, 2016, 3:29 am

There have been 2 new very important iOS 10 exploits which can lead up to an iOS 10 jailbreak!

One of the exploits is a kernel exploit and the other one is a root access one. This is basically all the tools laid out on a platter for someone to develop the iOS 10.1.1 jailbreak. There's also been some experienced jailbreakers saying that they'll work on assembling a iOS 10.1.1 jailbreak, but nobody is 100% sure they'll actually release it to the public.

If it's anything like the last few, someone will do it, show it off, then just never release it. I've been debating on buying an iPhone to replace my Note 7, but I don't want to unless there is a jailbreak available.

You can downgrade your iPhone to 9.3.3 VERY easily and jailbreak it even easier. The whole process took me 15 minutes.

This would probably do better in here tbh, Apple iOS

But either way great post

You can downgrade to iOS 9.3.3 still? I thought after the signing window closes it's basically impossible. If it is possible I'd like to know how haha.
