Prices vary from $X,XXX-$XX,XXX.

Also have some higher budget ones but you need to present proof of funds beforehand obviously.

Literally all of these had previous sales of upwards $10,000 (one sold for $40k, one sold for $28.5k and so on). Eh I copped some while on expiry with my bots, and some bought in order to flip.

Also some have C/Os already, posted here to expand my reach.

LaFerrari - December 17, 2016, 10:18 am

Vouch for my homie, trusted & nice domains budd! Did business with him before :)

Go take those current offers then, because in all of my years here, I've never seen anyone pay for anything here with that amount of money, especially domain names.

Sorry to disappoint you.

My suggestion to other users: Use a middle man / escrow

Homie I have a past of selling 70+ domains for $10k+, although I appreciate your advice!

Kruel - December 18, 2016, 8:30 am

What would you let #5 go for?

Numinous - December 18, 2016, 8:33 am

I like 2nd and 3rd one, do you have any proof that you are owing that domains ? and how much you are expecting for 2nd and 3rd ?

dirty cow - December 18, 2016, 8:35 am

C/O on #2 is $15k wire.

#3 has no C/O, a guy on hf offered $1k but looking for much more than that honestly. Also waiting for a reply by 2 other people on here who inquired, who said they'd consider my price (one has 3k rep, another has 1k rep, hence I deem them as having serious potential of closing the deal essentially)

Can show proof over screenshare if you wish.

(Dec 18, 2016 09:30 AM)Kruel Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What would you let #5 go for?

Edit: Whoops, mistaken it for #4.

As for #5 I'll set the BIN @ $12k.

Prior owner to me paid $15k for it on flippa, and I bought it for $8k from him as he was purchasing a house and needed money urgently.

Egregious Jr. - December 18, 2016, 9:36 am

Yes I'm fully aware, however I can only accept BTC currently...

aRuHZoNa - December 23, 2016, 4:41 am

With how easy BTC is to buy nowadays it wouldn't be too hard for a company to pay you in BTC.
With that being said, good luck with any sales!

Already sold a domain on here.
Nevertheless all are listed on other professional sites, and some are being brokered.
Posting here is only an addition to the reach, literally no downsides ?

Completely and utterly wrong, I'm sorry to disappoint you. While they may not sell here, the's easily go for the stated amount to those who know their domains. Seen many similar domains go for low $xxx,xxx personally.

dirty cow - January 13, 2017, 4:41 pm

Hey guys, a lot of these have offers on Flippa (and I just listed them! like affiliate.org already has $5k offer, in 2-3 days only!).

However I'd accept a significantly lower offer if it's paid in BTC.

Also schoolteacher has a $7k BTC offer here, and disturb.com a $10k offer here, and affiliatemarketing has been sold already!

Quite pathetic, I must say.

Sad to see someone causing such huge losses of funds, no matter who bought it.

I hope they can somehow get their money back, whether it be filed in an official manner or not.

I bought 2 domain from him, paid ~3k in bitcoin.

It went smoothly initially, but a week later, I get a message from the domain company telling me those 2 domain has been "Locked due to pending Transfer Dispute".
