Some providers ban me regardless so I have to use an alias and go all incognito

don't see a reason to do that just because you're admin on another cheat provider

Crypter developers (used to at least) ban their competitors from purchasing the project to further prevent tampering, debugging, and general snooping around of their product. I'm sure there are many cheat developers that apply that same logic.

Basically what Isley said. I wasn't around back in the CSS days so I wanted to see what all the hype was about.

I'll try it out and leave a testimonial on the site. Thanks.

I dont know you and even if I did ... We dont care about whoever getting their hands on our binaires even Valve ... We protected our stuff, providers scared of these issues should stop selling to protect their customers actually

I'd pay the full price but for the rust cheat. I don't get it why develop another queer legit cheat for csgo when there's such a high demand for rust cheats comapared to csgo, rn there's like one decent rust p2c provider... Anyways good luck with sales and thanks for the code

We focus more on Rust hack than CSGO actually, but Rust is using EAC, which is far different from VAC, you should know.

Staying under the radar, for a private hack is simple, but if you want to sell it massively, it's another strategy.

That's the reason. ?
