Just closed this thread :P

I'm pretty sure it's allowed. I've seen plenty of users resolve bad reps like this.

So you are allowed to ask the person who rep'd to remove their rep if say for example, you remove your rep?

Yes you are.

Pretty sure you would have to give a reason of why they should remove it but yes. How else would there be a way to resolve it?

(Dec 20, 2016 09:34 AM)Yani Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) There's 3 big NO's in the reputation system here on HF. Scammer reps, Gang reps and asking for rep.

Asking somebody else to change or remove their POSITIVE on somebody elses profile would be considered gang rep.

If you would ask the person to remove his NEGATIVE on somebody elses profile, then it's perfectly valid.

You can ask people to remove their neg but you can't ask people to neg.

You can also ask somebody to change their negative rep to either a positive or a neutral one, although you can not ask for the positive one.

I understand completely, thanks for clarifying this for me :D

LastSession - December 20, 2016, 8:39 am

Well you can actually not remove a reputation, you can just change it.

'Cynical - December 20, 2016, 8:41 am

This might be considered rep for rep, but I'm not entirely sure.

Egregious Jr. - December 20, 2016, 8:42 am

Asking someone to change a neg/neutral is not against the rules.

I interpreted OP as meaning to PM someone and saying "hey, if I change my rep, will you change yours?"

If your asking to sort something out with a member such as a -3 and resolve the problem i see nothing wrong with that personally.

Ye thanks. I would just love to speak to a member who rep'd me for a reason I don't know what he was talking about. He said I didn't like an actress or something when in fact I've never spoken about the actress nor ever remember speaking to him. Just wondering why he neg rep'd me -3 for this. Just made the thread to check if I'm within the rules hahaha :P

I didn't like the way you repended to someone that day.

If you asked me, asking for a rep to be removed is about the equivalent of trying to manipulate reputation to begin with. If it was just between you and another person then that seems alright, but to contact someone and ask for a change of reputation when you're third party to it, that to me seems more like something that is deemed annoying rather than rule-breaking.

OPs just a spazzy kid who cares too much about rep.

Got this PM this morning:

Ignored the PM as I -repped him for vouching for a scam and didn't feel like changing that.

Later in the day saw this:

Considering I've never dealt with or talked with him, really seems like he's just some petty kid out for vengeance. No different than most HF members, but thought it was funny it occurred right after making this thread.

The problem with this guy, is that I never vouched for a scam. I bought servers of a guy & he delivered. He told me to vouch on his thread so I did, then he comes & said I'm vouching for a scam & -3 reps me. Jesus christ.
