Thread: Merry Christmas! \(Opportunity to scam a scam business!\)

Noobface80 - December 22, 2016, 9:33 am

Hello guys! Today, as the title mentions, I'm giving you the chance to get back at a website that has done many wrong. The website is called crazyblox, and it is basically the arcade game "stacker" where you stack the blocks to the top, and you can double, triple, or even quadruple your money. The site is devoted to be a transparent site, but when playing the game without money, it's different than playing the game WITH money. Without money, it's nice and smooth, easy, etc. But if you risk even a dollar, the blocks go super fast, and even skip over blocks aswell.

Now: If you do decide to create a bot, and go for it, remember this. If you win when the game doesn't expect/want you to win, then they will try to accuse you of cheating on payout! So try to balance out wins and losses to make it look legit.

Good luck!

Here's the site: crazyblox(dot)com (previously known as 3blox)

P.S. Without going into detail, do you have any plans to try to win? Macro, injection, etc?

That's called marketing numbnuts. They're trying to lure you in to play. You gambled & you lost, get over it.

I wish it was, but there are plenty of videos proving otherwise. I've paid for the game in the past, and the "stop" button is 100% responsive at the bottom, but as you move up, it will skip over blocks. There was nothing mentioned about that, and therefore, scam.
