Omniscient - December 22, 2016, 10:51 am

Gotta love the U.S. Secret Service. They aren't wasting time sitting.

That clown that made a Twitter account under my name last night and made threats against Trump got me a visit this morning for an interview.

The best part though is that I already filled out the online form to report the guy yesterday when he did it from another Twitter account. So I have the timeline showing that.

Interview was about 30 minutes, half of it used to explain the situation. The other half used to answer personal questions about my mental state and political affiliations.

I wasn't sure if I should post the experience but then I thought I should because it offers two benefits.

1. Making online threats to the President does get the attention of the Secret Service. So if you think it's wise to mess around then you're an idiot. Be warned.

2. Hopefully the clown that did it reads this and knows they have his information and that he can expect a knock on his door. Despite his claims he was using an OVH proxy, he wasn't. I have his North Carolina Charter IP's. Everyone knows I block OVH and other datacenters. He's a fool. If he's a juvenile which I suspect I hope he has a father who will take a belt to his ass. In any case he's going to be contact shortly, of this I am sure.

Oh well, another interesting experience courtesy of HF.

Thanks for reading.

SwordofJustice - December 22, 2016, 10:52 am

That guy is going to get his just desserts.

.Reef - December 22, 2016, 10:52 am

Damn that's crazy. Justice will be served that's for sure.

Wakka - December 22, 2016, 10:53 am

I knew this would happen to be honest, I hope something happens to that kid what a prick...

Well at least cops didn't show up all guns blazing and shit. (I hope).

So salty over his closure.

Cabo - December 22, 2016, 10:53 am

I knew this would happen. Can't believe the guy didn't think it through.

Never a dull moment running HF.

oscast - December 22, 2016, 10:54 am

Danm that's some heavy shit omni

ST4RL0RD - December 22, 2016, 10:54 am

Whoever did this is just stupid.

It will come back to bite them in the backside in the end.

If you're gonna mess with the establishment prepare for them to come at you with full force, they have a lot of money, power, resources and time. So unless you the next 007 I wouldn't waste my time.

God - December 22, 2016, 10:54 am

That's crazy! He was very stupid by doing that.

"I hope he has a father who will take a belt to his ass"

Silent Uprising - December 22, 2016, 10:55 am

I feel bad for the kid but at the same time I want him to get punished. I'm sure he was in the moment? (Trying to make an excuse for his stupidity). He will be punished greatly since the SS take these threats crazy serious. I hope his future isn't ruined because of something as stupid as this.

Edit: Everyone is saying he deserves to get punished, which is true...but they are probably gonna be too harsh on him/her.

Omni if you ever find out what happens to him, it would be cool of you updated the thread.

?ody - December 22, 2016, 10:56 am

What a wild experience not everyone gets to go through. Thanks for sharing Omni, I hope that guy gets a knock on Christmas morning. What a present that would be.

Steve - December 22, 2016, 10:57 am

Of course there are morons out there that would do this. We'll see what kind of consequences he will face. Merry Christmas.

rsx - December 22, 2016, 10:57 am

I saw that thread yesterday and it was pretty funny

You gotta love peoples stupidity sometimes

Mom - December 22, 2016, 10:57 am

Lmfao I know who did that, fucking SGD God.

TopKekeroni - December 22, 2016, 10:57 am

Best thing I read on HF so far ??

mvmt - December 22, 2016, 10:57 am

Christ that was fast, I saw that thread yesterday and figured something like this would happen, just crazy how fast it all went down though.

liam270591 - December 22, 2016, 10:57 am

Sounds like the mentality of a child or a very stupid adult. I would assume child. I will be watching to see how this unfolds.

Riyu - December 22, 2016, 10:58 am

Pretty crazy how fast they reacted to that threat.

Fortunate - December 22, 2016, 10:58 am

That's crazy! Hope that dude gets what he deserves. He must be shitting his pants right now.

Confound - December 22, 2016, 10:58 am

Wow this is simultaneously interesting, funny, and kind of scary all at the same time.

THC - December 22, 2016, 10:59 am

Yes I do know what's the mission of the Secret Service, if you've seen the post he made on twitter from the fake account, after the threat, he tagged @fbi @cia @nsa, knowing that the Secret Service have a twitter account, if he knows how things go, he will tag primarily @SecretService, as he got to hf with his ip and forgot to tag @SecretService, he might be not knowing the aftermath of that.

Its unfortunate that their are people in this world who will do this just for attention and to look "badass" on the internet. Even for laughs and giggles. Talking about something on a large scale as he did was definitely not a joke and should never be taken as one. Fortunately, once the little shit is caught there are going to be some serious consequences for him doing that.

That's really unfortunate but also one hell of an experience you can add to your list of things you don't want to do but have done.

I did send you a PM with his other accounts anyhow but I figured the SS would get involved considering it was on twitter. They have some really interesting filters for keywords and I also did file a report against the kid myself.

liam270591 - December 22, 2016, 11:32 am

It's better than the UK police by any sense of the imagination. Some of our most serious emergency calls that require police attendance or terror responses are investigated like they were a minor traffic violation. 7/7 Bombings for example. Our MI5 had intelligence on the matter and still failed to do anything about it. A bomb scare in Bristol last month right outside a police station, What did they do.... exploded the car in a " controlled manner " stupid as it could have contained enough explosives to flatten the city.

Our police are a lot more backwards than American and the same would apply in my opinion to our not so secret secret service.

It would happen anywhere.

Think...police reads there is a man with a bomb in building. At least they have to make some controls. This costs money...even if they find nothing. It is a crime.

To make police moving for nothing is a crime itself.

If it was not an act against the US president well to be US president as I don't believe he has actually come into power yet has he? Anyway usually it would fall under the " Malicious communications act " using electronic devices to cause distress / fear / anxiety you can read more about the act online. My friend was charged with something similar however this was in the UK and whilst directed to a government body. Nothing to this level.

Quote: The Secret Service is investigating two Twitter users who, apparently angered by the passage of the health care reform bill, took to the Internet Sunday to call for the assassination of President Obama.

"ASSASSINATION! America, we survived the Assassinations and Lincoln & Kennedy. We'll surely get over a bullet to Barrack Obama's head," wrote one Twitter user, who goes by the handle Solly Forell, and identifies himself as a conservative blogger and "'authentic' African American."

Soon after the first post, Forell tweeted another message actively encouraging someone with a "clear shot" to kill the president.

"The next American with a Clear Shot should drop Obama like a bad habit. 4get Blacks or his claims to b[e] Black. Turn on Barack Obama," he wrote on the messaging Web site.

The Secret Service investigates any perceived threats to the president or calls for his assassination.

"We are aware of the comments and are taking the appropriate investigative action. We respect the right of free speech, but in such instances we have a right and an obligation to ask questions and determine intent," the Secret Service told ABC News.

Chances are if he is under 18 they are going to scare the shit out of him and ban him from the internet along with probation and community service.

If he is over 18 he might spend some time in jail.

I doubt this will hit the news honestly. It wasn't a "real" threat and nothing did come out of it. It's just online nerds doing online nerdy things. I'm sure they will just punish the kid with some juvenile time, maybe jail.

Whether it is a real threat or not, it is treated as such and should be made public.

The only main issue with making something like this public through the media is the following:

Quote:According to the U.S. Attorneys' Manual, "Media attention given to certain kinds of criminal activity seems to generate further criminal activity; this is especially true concerning Presidential threats which is well documented by data previously supplied by the United States Secret Service. For example, in the six-month period following the March 30, 1981, attempt on the life of President Reagan, the average number of threats against protectees of the Secret Service increased by over 150 percent from a similar period during the prior year." For this reason, the agency recommends considering the use of sealed affidavits to keep news of threats from leaking to the press.

That's the issue if people don't secure their accounts and why it's important for people to enable 2fa.

If your account is compromised, for example mine - and someone is on a proxy or VPN only to make threads onsite and off linking the two, I would therefor be involved.

So while this thread is getting attention, guys update your password - check your computer for malware and enable 2fa. If you need help with 2fa, there are a number of threads, and I am more than happy to help you.

(Dec 22, 2016 11:51 AM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Gotta love the U.S. Secret Service. They aren't wasting time sitting.

That clown that made a Twitter account under my name last night and made threats against Trump got me a visit this morning for an interview.

The best part though is that I already filled out the online form to report the guy yesterday when he did it from another Twitter account. So I have the timeline showing that.

Interview was about 30 minutes, half of it used to explain the situation. The other half used to answer personal questions about my mental state and political affiliations.

I wasn't sure if I should post the experience but then I thought I should because it offers two benefits.

1. Making online threats to the President does get the attention of the Secret Service. So if you think it's wise to mess around then you're an idiot. Be warned.

2. Hopefully the clown that did it reads this and knows they have his information and that he can expect a knock on his door. Despite his claims he was using an OVH proxy, he wasn't. I have his North Carolina Charter IP's. Everyone knows I block OVH and other datacenters. He's a fool. If he's a juvenile which I suspect I hope he has a father who will take a belt to his ass. In any case he's going to be contact shortly, of this I am sure.

Oh well, another interesting experience courtesy of HF.

Thanks for reading.

Now this is interesting!

I can not imagine how stupid he must be, i don't know what world hes from but obviously making threats against the president will get you in trouble.

Doing this under a fake name of a influential person is even dumber, thank you for sharing and he will get what he deserves.

I keep it personal. I really don't discuss it. One day if I ever no longer run this site I'll tell some stories. I don't feel it's appropriate at this time.

Quote:What if the Secret Service were behind the whole thing and set you up, further taking advantage of your willingness to co-operate and assessing your character for weaknesses they could later use to damage or discredit you?

Stop smoking the weed bro. It's making you paranoid.

Quote:Do you know how many times a day I see tweets about "fuck trump" and "Someone should kill" and "I wish I could kill this dude" on and on and on? Mainly from upset middle age African American males BUT I just wonder how many instances like that they act on the way they did with you.

My guess is that they are frequently making these trips especially if a direct threat is made. I mean, it wasn't even 24 hours and I had a knock on the door. So obviously they are pounding the pavement looking for potentially serious threats.

The situation you where in is fucked up. That guy went really far considering you never did anything. 10 years is a very long time to wish someone to go to jail. So apparently this guy has hundreds of bomb threats...I feel a 6 month sentence would give him time to reflect on his mistakes. It really wasn't worth it, and hopefully he will come out of prison a changed man. If not, he is just throwing his life away and should consider becoming a drug dealer or some lowlife job since no official job will take him. We all make mistakes but this guy has done it tons of times before so I see where you're all coming from saying he needs to be punished. He is fucked up a huge chunk of his life. I hope he doesn't realize this and physically try hurting someone or himself. He might just be unstable mentally.

Omniscient - December 22, 2016, 4:36 pm

The reporting at WRAL might be spotty and doesn't answer a lot of questions. Like when was he actually arrested? Because it says he was charged "this week" but that doesn't mean it wasn't today.

At the time of his arrest he was on probation so that means he wasn't in jail but he did spend 6 months in jail according to the story.

Maybe this isn't him but it's some coincidence that at 10am I get a visit and at 11am a news story is out about an arrest in North Carolina for bomb threats. Could be him but maybe it's not.

Quote:It literally says the guy spent the past 6 months in jail and he was simply sentenced today
It literally doesn't say that. Headline says he "faces 500+ charges" and that he "was on probation after prior convictions for making similar threats, and he was held on a probation violation pending 506 new charges – half for felony bomb reports and half for felony terrorism."

Seriously I think it's him. Too much coincidence imho.

I was referring to "was charged this week after spending almost six months in jail."

There is obviously very little information in this article, but unless that's a grammatical error it implies he was waiting to be charged while in jail, and he's been in jail for the past 6 months.

Also he was arrested in West Virginia, I think that proves my point.

Yeah, that's an issue that it says he was arrested in West Virginia. Still not sure about the accuracy of the reporting or the timeline. But it doesn't matter.

And the gentlemen came were dressed in normal clothes (no suits) with a clipboard. No guns or fanfare. Like I said, it was a simple interview.

They did turn down a cup of coffee that I offered. I found that unusual as I love coffee and who turns down a free cup at 10am? Maybe they were aliens .

Time to reward yourself with a new award?

You should of asked them to join HF, and given them a free Secret Service award

Another retard off the streets. Sounds good to me.

Prince™ - December 22, 2016, 8:27 pm

Yet another dumbass bringing nonsense to you and wasting your time I see. I hope the kid get served for this soon.

This is my version of the new award

Caim - December 22, 2016, 8:33 pm

Damn son. Hopefully things turn out better for you.

D?ath - December 22, 2016, 8:45 pm

I hope omni gets an apology to be honest. would be a good idea since it was supposed to be revenge. I think its a good thing he will get caught. i am extremely tired of this crap... i hope this doesn't become a social norm... also, question.

Did any staff give you a heads up in regards to the threat?

J?son - December 22, 2016, 8:50 pm

I knew this was going to happen

Merry Christmas to that fool

Wait.. wait.. WAIT.

Did you ask them for ID and verify their credentials?

What if.. and just go with me on this.. they were actually HackForum members PRETENDING to be Secret Service KNOWING that you knew that someone made a bomb threat and publicly posted it on HackForums? They just got a free interview with you and until the real Secret Service shows up you'll never know about it!

Worse, what if this is true and the real Secret Service shows up and doesn't believe you when you say that you already had an interview with them?

That'd be crazy dude!

Avoyel - December 22, 2016, 10:13 pm

What a fucking idiot. I hope this guy gets what he deserves.

At least they didn't kick down your door and went all crazy.... I hope whoever impersonated you gets rekt with a belt too

Mewtwo - December 22, 2016, 10:47 pm

Wonder what considers them to take tweets seriously... since most of them would end up being trolls. At least this wasn't a swat attempt.

So...

<https://mobile.twitter.com/Sp00kyH4ck3r>

Sp00kyH4ck3r is innocent?

The fake account <https://mobile.twitter.com/account/suspended>

is suspended. Not jet the same about Sp00kyH4ck3e

Nor is suspended <https://mobile.twitter.com/KilTrump> jet
