Thread: Regarding the virtual game items section

I don't know whether it's just me but I'd like to see runescape get it's own section IMO it's a niche of sorts and threads can get pushed out in the virtual game items section has there ever been a section dedicated to runescape?

Whilst on this matter I can't help but feel cs:go should also have it's own market place section, it would tidy the section up abit IMO and even services for runescape would stop appearing in the services section and maybe both sections would benefit from being able to be more competitive.

I'll support this, the Virtual Games Items section is mainly RuneScape run anyways with the odd CSGO post.

I don't think Omniscient will add it.

Users have made ideal suggestions for subsections yet they don't get accepted, mainly because they are unnecessary and one section for them is enough for all of the threads.

I don't support it anyways, Marketplace generalizes everything into its each own sector.

We should have a CSGO and Runescape section, as those are the most commonly posted. Therefore, other threads can get seen on the Virtual Goods main list.

Yeah I understand that completely, i'd be happy if even we could offer runescape services in the runescape section, I don't really see any advantage of the two being segmented.
