Thread: [\[Question\]the Rat and my anonymity.](#)

shytnik - December 25, 2016, 1:40 pm

Hi all. I use NjRat and VPN(nvpn.net). After a few distribution, I open their Desk and see a virtual machine or Windows server, there opened command prompt and in it something happens (know check my build). What is this? Who are these people? I immediately removed. P. S. Sorry for my bad English.

You're about to get raided. Prepare your anus for jail.

If you haven't stolen any money or done any very big harm you will be fine.

As for anonymity, a little HF VPN is not gonna keep your ass covered.

Neither of which I did not do (did not steal the money, no harm done)

You advise me how best and most to be anonymous? buy VPS+VPN? On the forum probably there is a topic about anonymity, I just didn't find her.

It's a honeypot. The server runs your RAT client to see what happens.

thanks for the reply.

Nothing will happen, they're jjust examining the RAT inside a virtual environment. Just uninstall them and next time don't scan on virustotal, or if you didn't maybe someone else did, so next time use a downloader that doesn't run inside a VM or wireshark.

Thank you for the reply. I forgot the Cryptor to enable these settings. I will be careful and cautious next time.

I'm truly sorry, but you sound like a retarded skiddo...

" run the command "ping" in the command line. What is this? Who are these people?"

It is not necessary insults. Perhaps I'm wrong, maybe this is some kind of software(the point of my post remains the same)

Yeh. If you upload your rat to scanning sites some of them might have a client(bot) that will show up in your rat and will run a command prompt to check your server then destroy itself -- which is called a honeypot.

Not dangerous
