

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Best low budget money making method

UntamedChicken - December 26, 2016, 1:13 am

Hey guys so i'm pretty early in the process of building my account in runescape and I was wondering what you guys think is the most efficient way to earn money with very little startup cash? I've been doing rune crafting and that has been working out well, but i'm just wondering what you guys think is good.

Hello.v4.0 - December 26, 2016, 1:20 am

RS3 or OSRS? Free to play or members?

Basically, gathering materials people use often is the way to go since it requires no startup money at all, just a bunch of patience.

UntamedChicken - December 26, 2016, 1:38 am

(Dec 26, 2016 02:20 AM)Hello.v4.0 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) RS3 or OSRS? Free to play or members?

Basically, gathering materials people use often is the way to go since it requires no startup money at all, just a bunch of patience.

RS3 and Member

Sorry I didn't clarify in the original post

Hello.v4.0 - December 26, 2016, 2:10 am

(Dec 26, 2016 02:38 AM)UntamedChicken Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) RS3 and Member

Sorry I didn't clarify in the original post

Herb runs are pretty decent money, and at pretty low farming (38) you can grow Toadflax which usually sits around 4.5-5k each. Not a ton of money at once, but it's pretty good passive money since it takes like 2 minutes to do, and you can run off to do other stuff while they grow.

Raz Riverblade - December 26, 2016, 7:14 am

Dragons are always decent.

Throne of miscellania is good passive income.

Slayer, fishing, runecrafting and mining are decent.

Divination is godlike money but boring as fuck

UntamedChicken - December 26, 2016, 10:00 am

(Dec 26, 2016 03:10 AM)Hello.v4.0 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Herb runs are pretty decent money, and at pretty low farming (38) you can grow Toadflax which usually sits around 4.5-5k each. Not a ton of money at once, but it's pretty good passive money since it takes like 2 minutes to do, and you can run off to do other stuff while they grow.

(Dec 26, 2016 08:14 AM)Raz Riverblade Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dragons are always decent.

Throne of miscellania is good passive income.

Slayer, fishing, runecrafting and mining are decent.

Divination is godlike money but boring as fuck

Thanks for your guys recommendations!

Hello.v4.0 - December 26, 2016, 10:12 am

Yeah, forgot about dragons. Just get an anti-dragonfire shield/antifire potion and some decent gear. Bones are like 1.6k each and hides vary from dragon to dragon but the lowest tier are still over 2k each. I recommend training Divination a little so you can make Signs of the Porter to send hides directly to your bank.

SIM-403479 - December 26, 2016, 12:16 pm

If you are wanting to get better at the game whilst making money then focus on skilling.

Fishing, woodcutting, mining etc.

If you purely just want money and no skill levels then there are other methods.

Refraction - December 26, 2016, 4:39 pm

Making cannonballs I heard wasn't bad.

Amazing - December 26, 2016, 5:20 pm

If you get your hunter to 63 you can do red chins and even with all the bots it's decent money.

63 hunter really doesn't take too long to get either.

Elegant - December 26, 2016, 7:06 pm

Go to Catherby and buy Watering Cans from the farming shop and keep buying them and bank them until you have no money left. Sell them in the Grand Exchange for like 250 gp ea. You buy them for like 10 each.