Thread: [\[OFFICIAL GROUP\] Fusion for Sale](#)

Raptor. - December 26, 2016, 9:14 am

Hi all,

The title really says it all. I've been inactive due to a multitude of personal reasons that I don't want to get into right now. I can't commit to any activity on HF, I might be around heaps, only posting periodically or not at all in the immediate future.

As a result, I'm selling Fusion. I'm in no rush to sell it, as I can just let the thread sit open for a while until I receive an offer I like. I'll update the OP with the C/O if/when one comes in.

I'll only be accepting BTC or Australian bank wires.

Please ensure you're approved by Omni, and you cover the transfer fees.

C/O - $5500 BTC

BiN - $7000 BTC

antigrav - December 26, 2016, 9:16 am

Sad to see it go , good luck with selling it!!

minimalist - December 26, 2016, 9:16 am

Great opportunity for anybody who is (or wants to be) invested in the flourishing HF group scene!

Elitas - December 26, 2016, 9:18 am

Wow, this is surprising. Good luck selling Fusion, it's a great group from what I've heard. And best of luck to whoever takes over.

6 months ago it would have been surprising, I honestly just can't commit to anything time-wise and feel it's best to just let it go since after I've sold off a few of my online holdings such as this, domains and a few other things, I'm not sure how active I'll be on any forum unfortunately.

Last two groups to sell sold above 6,000$ so I'm sure you'll get a good offer if you wait for it, sucks that Fusion didn't play out exactly as you wanted it too but it's nice to see that someone else will have a chance to do something with this.

I can but from whenever I've had to wire overseas, the fees for the sender are usually pretty hefty. If it's a good offer I can accept that.

Happy to wait for a while for better offers. SFs are $300 each if I'm not mistaken, so it's not a bank breaker to add down the track - most people won't use them effectively anyway for any lounge group etc. without multiple paid sections.

To clarify for the people enquiring about payment plans - I will accept them, but I would prefer that they not be extremely long term ones (over 6 months), and would require a non-refundable deposit to stop time wasting, and the group would be transferred to you upon receipt of the final payment, however you will be made leader in the interim and can do with the group as you wish until then.

Highest offer currently is 5.8k, so I'd say that makes it 5.8k+ realistically right now, although the last two groups sold for 6.5k and 6k respectively so I'm sure this one will go a bit higher as long as Raptor. is willing to wait.

Because tbh I haven't been active around here in the last few years so I don't know what friends are still around (whether they changed names etc). I have asked a few friends and they either don't see the value in a group anymore or don't want to own one.

I would deal with someone I don't know but I would take ownership of the group - and most people wouldn't do that hence forth I said I would deal with anyone if I take ownership or I don't care if the other had ownership (but I would in that case only deal with someone I know well).

Very much doubt of fresh air, it's a new time for groups because all the new kids are buying groups it's just repeats of every group on HF so far...

Well if I sell a testicle or something and get $6-7k I'll let you know. Have a couple of ideas for groups, just no chance to execute them. Hopefully it is someone new who buys the group, not a recycle of the old people.

And yet the fact that one sold yesterday should tell you that people do in fact spend money on a HF group. My apologies if you don't have two IQ points to rub together, but your argument seems to have fallen apart.

Let's just say some people think that omni shouldn't have sold a group for $5k when there's already a shit load of groups.

I don't really think this though. It's his forum and he can do whatever he wants to do with it.

I don't think there's any solid proof of 5,000 being the sales price either just speculation unless DevNet or Omniscient posted about it but I haven't seen it but I agree with you on this one if he wants to sell a group it's his choice and understandable.

(Feb 12, 2017 12:46 PM)Formula1 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd be willing to do 4 if this is true and inde backs out

If anything I don't think the bids should be lowered cause if Omniscient sold a group, that most likely means none of the current group owners wanted to entertain any of the current offers (also DevNet works for /owns / co-owns Coinpayments from what I believe, and Omniscient uses Coinpayments to process all of HF's transactions and would like to see a cryptocurrency group) so if 5,000$ is the true price then that's probably because of who he is and what he planned on doing with it.

If you're even serious about getting a group I'm pretty sure you just post these lowball offers to devalue groups and pretend to have money when in reality you'll never actually own a group.

Good point, could be. At the end of the day I believe that HF needed a crypto group, but I may be biased. I won't go into how much I paid for the group, no need. Omni is free to state it publicly though.

That seems to be the trend in these kinds of threads, yeah.

I'd like to add that the list price of a group is not necessarily meaningful.

If you do nothing with your group but milk it for money and abuse it/use it solely to attract attention you and your group are worthless to the community.

Not attacking any group owners per se.

Edit: I'm interested though in your logic.. So you're saying because the site owner created a new group for cheaper than existing and used up ones are sold for... They should be increasing the price, not lowering it?

I can see why you lead the Marketers now, very HQ marketer right here.

edit2: Selling my used Honda civic $30,000. New ones retail at $20,000 so this seemed reasonable
