Thread: Free Traffic and Backlinks With Google Alerts

Apocryphon - December 30, 2016, 3:58 pm

I've used this method to gain traffic & backlinks for my CPA websites

Make sure your website is ready and optimized

Go on <http://www.google.com/alerts> and enter your main keyword to receive updates everyday

Check your email daily, Google Alerts will send you every website where your keyword exists

If you have a good niche, you will get a lot of notifications for it. They are gonna be videos, blogs, forums etc.

You need 90-100 alerts a day to get some good traffic. If you don't get around 100 alerts a day then select other niche.

Open every link one by one. If it is an article make discussion about it and post your website there. If it's a forum thread sign up and put your website in the signature and reply to that thread.

Don't spam the forum, make hq posts on the forum and your website will be seen by more people. With this method you are not going to receive traffic only but build your off-page SEO aswell by receiving backlinks.

Sounds and solid advice - infct this is the best advice i have seen so far on this forum - the idea is to generate traffic that will generate interest and if you have good content and a nice website people will let you put the link there and if you keep everythng relevant and on topic then you can get a link from almost anywhere online and drive traffic and rankings at the same time!

I don't think this is working anymore though.

I tried it yesterday and kept getting a 404 error on Google's site.

What do you mean? Google Alerts is still up and running fine.

Please provide a screenshot of your error so I can assist you. Otherwise, the problem might be on your side, try another connection or laptop.

Thanks for the share, does this act sort of as Ahrefs, in the sense that it will track the rankings of your website? I've been looking for such tools.

This is not a SERP tracker. This will only provide results to your e-mail for the queries you've signed.
