

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: 2nd Attempt at making a sales thread. Rate It

i95swervin - December 31, 2016, 4:08 pm

Quote:This is what I came up with for my sales thread, I have tried messing with photoshop before in the past. By no means do I consider my self a pro at it. I don't know much as far as designing gfx either. So any feedback will be appreciated

Image Here

Spoiler (Click to View)

[align=center]

Reporter - December 31, 2016, 4:09 pm

Icons looks wierd and stretched

Trappy - December 31, 2016, 4:10 pm

Not terrible for a beginner. Icons look strange and try to use some other colors beside black and white.

i95swervin - December 31, 2016, 4:12 pm

(Dec 31, 2016 05:09 PM)Reporter Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Icons looks wierd and stretched

(Dec 31, 2016 05:10 PM)Londonez Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Not terrible for a beginner. Icons look strange and try to use some other colors beside black and white.

not sure if your reffering to paypal/btc or images in the body. or all together. The images in the body are screenshots of the panel.

To make sure Im doing this correct to scale a image and keep its shape without making it look wierd its edit>transform>scale and press shift and scale correct?

Caffrey - December 31, 2016, 4:33 pm

Yea as others have said, the images are stretched out of scale. To keep it in scale, you do CTRL T to be able to transform it, then hold SHIFT and ALT while scaling it up. Also, maybe this is just me but I personally think you could choose a more professional looking font. The black boxes on the bottom for prices, I feel like that isn't centered? Or if it is, you "bevel and embossed" it to one side but not the other, I personally don't like that. Maybe just try using a stroke to go around the whole box.

Hope this helps.

NineTheGhoul - January 1, 2017, 9:04 am

The layout seems nice, but the different color / different types of fonts are really throwing it off.

try sticking to only a select few fonts throughout the whole thing, to help keep it uniform as well as avoid troubles with emphasizing specific points.

Intern - January 2, 2017, 3:29 pm

Try to limit yourself to 2 fonts only :)

Evil Corp - January 2, 2017, 5:29 pm

Here you go! quick 10mins remake.

Hope you learn from this :D Keep it up man
Spoiler (Click to View)

NYCVN - January 2, 2017, 5:35 pm

(Jan 2, 2017 06:29 PM)Evil Corp Wrote: CITE Here you go! quick 10mins remake.
Hope you learn from this :D Keep it up man

This.

Don't stretch everything else and everything doesn't look so bad.

TehAustinsxD - January 3, 2017, 1:21 pm

The icons look stretched and not a big fan of the fonts either.

Nyxuo - January 3, 2017, 6:04 pm

It's already been stated but as others have said your images are out of proportion. Your use of fonts and colors in this didn't work well as they are not appealing. I'd advise looking at some advertisements. See how they keep everything somewhat placed out on a grid. Things line up, size emphasizes importance, flow makes the readers eye follow the path you want it to. Things to keep in mind.

Callmedragon - January 3, 2017, 8:36 pm

The icons look kind of weird and the background looks really tacky as well IMO.