Grand Pootis - January 2, 2017, 8:56 am

If you could kick one country offline permanently due to annoying users, which would it be?

I personally would boot India. Almost like China except even more useless and worse grammar and Capitalizing Every Word and Bro ! !! And LoL xD

India, as a country, has its nice parts but, sorry, the fact India is a massive exporter and still ridden with poverty and roads that melt in the sun is absolutely ridiculous.

Still though, I'm against the idea of countries being banned from the internet. It's not countries, it's individuals who do stupid shit.

It's a farce to say Indians are trustworthy. Who always calls the US with terrible English in a sad attempt to steal old people's bank accounts. Who is the "MEEKROSOFT TEKIKAKAL SOPPORTE" who calls and tells me I have a BAD WIRUS?

The majority of Indians I meet online, in the computing industry, are just like you. They have high ambitions yet lack skill (you do VB6 - something which is somewhat understandable if you were maintaining huge, legacy, software but no; I see you are continuing to make things with it. So, tell me, who is the real nut?) which is hilarious considering the USA outsources a lot of work to India.

Anyways, I've sorta derailed the issue by now. I'll repeat myself though: I think the notion is of banning any country from the internet is kinda stupid hence this thread's hypothetical nature.

America is one of the most literate countries in the world, India on the other hand...

America also has world-class educational facilities and infrastructure to educate students. If you're retarded, you can go on your own bus, then you get educated in your own area with sometimes a 3:1 teacher to student ratio, so retards aren't left behind of something that happened at birth.

The American/western curriculum system is more focused on creating individuals who can develop their own skills and own style of thinking, while India throws information at expects you to absorb it, not putting so much of an emphasis on individualism, and because nobody as an individual thinks their lives matter reflects onto your country where nobody gives a rats ass about anything and treats your own land poorly by doing things such as: littering, shitting in rivers, etc. which ultimately leads to generations of poverty and "I hope I will get re-incarcerated" into a better life, here's a fun fact: you won't be re-incarcerated.

(Jan 2, 2017 08:31 PM)eridanus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) All this thread is doing is promote racism.

I'm not racist, I don't hate Indians or wish for the extermination of them. Some Indians if they immigrate here are the smartest, business-orientated people around, they do things like open a small business which develops the local-economy and can eventually lead to job creation. We can only let in winners though, the problem with open borders is that if we let in 300,000,000 Indians we will be totally fucked, if we let in 10,000 a year we will be better off overtime compared to not letting them in.

I am reading comments about discontinuation of call centres and stuff in india. The thing is multinational companies outsourced their business to india. If the companies won't outsource it, You don't have to talk to an indian over the phone. It's those american companies or maybe some British companies who wants more profit and ignoring their citizens and taking their jobs and outsourcing it. So yea if Indians are offered a job and get decent amount of income, why would they ignore it. Cost of living is less too, For americans 1000$ a month is nothing, But yes in india you can live comfortably.

That's a good point, but those companies get the freedom to outsource shit because they give bribes to corrupt politicians which give them the magic key to take jobs and give them to Indians and Chinese which they can use to resell back into our countries at a tremendous profit.
