Thread: 110k in a single month

ubersoldier - January 2, 2017, 5:12 pm

Haters gonna hate, it's not full profit.

It's a recurring SaaS business I launched last month. We made around 65k on first month. 45k was paid to resellers.

Don't pm me for method. If you are a coder with extensive web languages expertise feel free to PM me business opportunities.

UAV Online - January 2, 2017, 5:22 pm

Its like cpa your paying people to advertise your product or cpa offer. There nothing special about this lol.

I start 2 days ago no lie made 5k of facebook ads and my adult tube site, and i am just starting wait until i start using more promoting sites to get more traffic lol.

Its so easy daddy...

Wanna suck this c0ck? I got milk for you baby.

Thanks brother, actually this one was really fucked up, 4 out of 5 days of our launch period the Payment Processor was down. We missed around 80% of our estimated income...

May last year we did a 600k launch also SaaS software based. It requires hefty investment and really good marketing. But if you do it right you can set yourself up for life.

What's your average CR on these offers?
$200 per sale? Is that nutra or something similar?

Because other than that, it's damn hard to convert these kind of offers.

Like mentioned above, it's SaaS. We made our own software package that we sell. we got an avg of about 10% CR

That's more like eCommerce than CPA then.

If you consider it as CPA, you're more an advertiser than a publisher though.

We build and own all of the software that is being sold here, so we do the whole shabam, start to finish, a to z. I read quite allot of stuff, I dropped out of college but I put in around 16-20 hours of hard work each and every day. Teaching myself is what I see has become my number one stream of income. I rent myself out as a freelancer on upwards of 150$ an hour (due to the track record that I now have to my name). I've run my business for over 8 years now. I guess business and statistics will come natural after some time :)

Damn that's some nice earnings!

Congratz OP.

Axusted - January 22, 2017, 6:04 am

Amazing! Would be amazing if I would make this in a complete year.

Nice job OP, keep it up and get that money.

Tony - January 23, 2017, 7:25 pm

Nice job, bro. Mind me asking what percent of it was actual profit?

already did, will do again... It's JVZoo.com And I won't suggest it to anyone, it's horrible and lost me more money than it made me (due to downtime)

IceCreamWidMyChicken - January 24, 2017, 11:00 am

Did you make a SaaS product, or are you advertising someone elses?

Maybe read the post? there is 2 sentences and only a couple words, how can you miss me stating it's a SaaS?

xenko - January 25, 2017, 3:45 pm

Lol @ the people saying not impressive because of you paying people for advertising. Shit, I'd sell lemonade in front of WalMart for not nearly this much money in a month lol.

I start 2 days ago no lie made 5k of facebook ads and my adult tube site, and i am just starting wait until i start using more promoting sites to get more traffic lol.

Its so easy daddy...

Wanna suck this c0ck? I got milk for you baby.
I don't need that milk, you're plenty salty as is-

GZ op! Good to see you going from making pennies with 12 sales to going into the thousands with a lot less sales. It's working for you, so don't loosen your grip on the game. Upscale, expand, and keep winning.

Amazing earnings, well done.

How much did you average per day? Also great job sir.

xatt - January 28, 2017, 1:38 pm

You're balling. I've saved up half of that. It's taken me way looonger than a month haha

ubersoldier - January 28, 2017, 4:16 pm

35k on first day 55k on last day the days in between we had downtime due to JVZoo being down (yeah we lost all that money)....

Ollie. - January 28, 2017, 4:31 pm

Woah. Congratulations man, your clearly doing it right ;)

Saint - January 28, 2017, 4:49 pm

This thread is so motivating but demotivating at the same time.

I've been looking for something like CPA related or SaaS related because it appears that when done right these are the ways to go.

The problem is not the motivation, the problem is where to start.

And then theres people who want to help you, but expect you to blindly throw 5K at FB ads etc.

I saw that with a good amount of work put in you can be on your way in a few weeks?

How much initial investment is required for something small to start with?

Good Question, to be fair we spend only 1/2k on ads in the first 2 weeks before the launch, this was money spent on targeting affiliates to promote us, let me be clear, if you have the money USE IT. It's not needed though to get started, what you do need is a good grasp of what the market wants and needs and someone that knows how to set up and amazing salesletter + value proposition. What we did was 13 months of development, ofcourse normally that would be a huge bill to be paid, so if you want to build a saas i'd suggest you look for a co-founder/partner that can take care of building your product. NEVER start with a 13 month development cycle, build something small and try it out small, you might make only a couple thousand and break even, but you will have the experience and salesstats to convince more affiliates next launch. Rinse and repeat, go bigger every launch and you should be able to get a 6 figure launch done in 6/8 months. Nothing comes easy or fast, hard work however will get you there :)

edit:

We handpicked our affiliates and reached out to most of them in person, this requires only time.

This will allow you to develop your first launch for nearly nothing, you'd probably want to buy some stuff like templates and logo's/gfx but that'll cost you a couple dozen bucks tops.

Thank you for your great reply, i myself think that SaaS is not for me for now since i am just starting to get into this, so i will start with something CPA like, small for the experience, thanks!.

CPA is harder in terms of conversion IMO, the value you convey through your product sale is easier to communicate.
