Thread: DON'T GET SCAMMED Guide to keep track of your purchases here

Vanderbilt - January 6, 2017, 1:37 pm

Hey, I have seen certain things that are reversed and people can't seem to find proof of these deals but today i'm going to show you how I keep track of all of my HF deals.

Things you will need
Will to not get scammed
Google Account
A brain

Te first thing you will need to do is navigate over to [https://drive\[WARNING POSSIBLY INFECTED\]google.com](https://drive.google.com)

Then you want to create a new form

Then for the following questions I will show you what I put in an image

Spoiler (Click to View)

After that, Press the green button on "Responses" to indicate you want to create a spreadsheet and create it.

After that, get the form link

And save it as a bookmark.

Now, as a test I filled random stuff in

Then when you go to that spreadsheet in you google drive, magically all of the info will be saved.

Hopefully this has been a great tutorial and please feel free to critique.

This is a good way to keep track, I should've done this from the start.
Thanks for the detailed guide! I appreciate it.

This is actually a really good idea I like it!

Personally I save private messages from most of my deals.

I just have my PMs organized, but this works too.

Also when doing exchanges I asked for two things: BTC address and PP address, so those are included in the PMs.

I have all the evidence I need there + it wont be deleted for a year, which is longer than paypal's dispute policy which is 180 days.

Also... to prevent an obvious scam.

Literally all you have to do 90% of the time to decide whether or not someone is a scammer is do the following:

- Check Rep (Reason, not the number*)
- Check Trust Scan
- Search UID
- Check Activity

Also, i'd go with my method since evidence from off forums is typically not valid.

Thats true but it is always good to keep other forms of organization especially for people with OCD like me. Also this firm thing isnt just used fr deals, I use it for people who request games on my site

I mean if someone is out to scam you, on or off hf they'll try to fuck you over.
Even over PMS, the staff don't get involved so it won't make much of a difference.
The difference is you will get to warn other users the motherfucker is a scammer but you're the one that still got fucked over.
