How is she the first though? Out of all the High Schools that offer it nationwide, you'd think someone would've done it by now.

How is this "history"? Pretty sure that other people in other schools can do that as well. We need some backstory maybe

You know plenty of girls dunking at 13 and 14? Lol damn

The only girls dunking at that age would be around like 6'8"+ which is rare for a girl to be that tall. But I think she is the first to do it in a highschool game because I remember this one girl from Oklahoma who dunked in practice and she was only like 6'1" and she already had WNBA teams looking at her. But I can barely grab rim and I'm 5'9".

Quote:Francesca Belibi is a 15-year-old sophomore at Regis Jesuit in Aurora, Colorado, and on Friday she became the first girl to dunk in a Colorado high school basketball game.

While the 6-foot-1 Belibi made Colorado history with the dunk, the most amazing part is just how easy she made it look.

First high school girl in a Colorado high school to dunk. Can't omit details like that OP.

The video title and the thread title is true.... So i dont see whats misleading? IF she is first to do it in game in the USA then of course it would be first in colorado...

Damn, that's what's up. Rare to see a girl get 10 inches off the ground nevermind dunking at 15.
