

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Safe to use windows ten with new exploit

ThatOneGuyThar - January 9, 2017, 1:25 pm

Excuse the extremely ignorant question, but exploit-db released a very popular Win10 exploit and I was wondering how safe it was to use the OS with the Chakra.dll info leak.

webdev77 - January 9, 2017, 1:31 pm

(Jan 9, 2017 02:25 PM)ThatOneGuyThar Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Excuse the extremely ignorant question, but exploit-db released a very popular Win10 exploit and I was wondering how safe it was to use the OS with the Chakra.dll info leak.

Don't use IE or Edge and you are fine. Not sure why you would use those to begin with.

Rottapotta - January 10, 2017, 10:18 pm

(Jan 9, 2017 02:31 PM)webdev77 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Don't use IE or Edge and you are fine. Not sure why you would use those to begin with.

Including MF.

white dude - January 11, 2017, 8:35 am

(Jan 10, 2017 11:18 PM)Rottapotta Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Including MF.

That's just a preference thing I'm sure. Used to use MF a lot back in the day, but went over to Chrome as their theme was better and the 1 page crashing not crashing everything worked better for me.

Rottapotta - January 11, 2017, 9:54 pm

(Jan 11, 2017 09:35 AM)white dude Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's just a preference thing I'm sure. Used to use MF a lot back in the day, but went over to Chrome as their theme was better and the 1 page crashing not crashing everything worked better for me.

Nah. MF, IE, Edge are vulnerable to EK's, so dont use them.