Thread: Programming services - Backend Web-Dev and Desktop Application Development

SomeWhiteGuy - January 11, 2017, 6:21 pm

My price will be very cheap. I won't even say how much, due to the fact that I'm mainly looking for something interesting to do in my free time, so if you're the one with an interesting project it may just be for free / nothing upfront (small % of profits, for example).

I am very bored and looking for some programming to do in my free time. This is mainly to expand my skills as a developer. I am proficient in PHP, JavaScript, and jQuery. For desktop applications I can do virtually anything in VB, c# or Java. Java being what I have the least skill in. So, if it's something complex, chances are it'll need to be in .NET for me to be comfortable. I do not do (front-end) design. I'm not, and have never been, good at that shit. So don't ask... thanks. ?

I don't have any public work but I'm sure I could dig some old stuff up if you wanted some type of specific example (or just simply search by my username in the VB.NET section, Programming and Coding section, PHP section, etc.). I can accomplish virtually anything in PHP given 1-3 days to read specific documentation and figure out how to go about things. I have many releases on HF in regards to coding, a (previously) stickied thread for a coding tutorial, and countless members assisted in all coding related topics. That should more than equate to my lack of publicly posted snippets of code / functions / w.e..

If you're interested in using my skills for a project of yours feel free to post below or send me a message.

SWG.

Still available. Please keep in mind this is meant for smaller, odd-jobs and not some sort of project you want done. Message me in interested!

This service is still available. Willing to take on larger projects related to desktop application development. Sticking with smaller issues on the web side. Contact me if you'd like to discuss details.
