

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Log Horizon: thoughts?

23er341r14145t1r34d1413r1 - January 11, 2017, 7:42 pm

Was looking to watch an MMORPG type anime with a dope storyline, cool game mechanics and characters I can actually learn about and bond with as the anime progresses.

I saw Log Horizon and it peaked my interest more than SAO cuz of the romance, what are y'all's experience with LH and would you suggest any anime similiar to these?

(Essentially looking for Naruto, One Piece, Fairy Tail style etc.)

.BangsOnly - January 11, 2017, 7:48 pm

Its great, its one of my favorites. I would say its similar to Sword Art. It wont be a waste of your time.

If i remember correctly theres a S2 that recently came out, i heard rumors of S3, my memory is very very bad.

Its not the same style as naruto,farytail, and one piece.

Lyralei - January 11, 2017, 7:52 pm

The first season was very pretty promising for me, The second and beyond that is bad.

In?sane? - January 11, 2017, 7:59 pm

Was alright I guess, always thought it was really odd how fast they accepted that they are trapped in a vidya.

Professor Pantsu - January 12, 2017, 8:17 am

Log Horizon is pretty great. I like how all the characters don't really care about getting out of the game, because they're all fucking nerds who don't really care about reality. It focuses on a lot of world building stuff rather than battles which is something that really interests me. As someone who plays support type characters on games I really like having the main character take that role.

zhyreox - January 12, 2017, 8:20 am

It's a good alternative to SAO, however I find it a bit too slow paced. 4 Episodes preparing for one boss fight. There wasn't really a storyline as well. It's good but it's not as good as SAO for example.

Professor Pantsu - January 12, 2017, 8:26 am

Can we not compare Log Horizon to SAO? It sets out to do something completely different, the only similarity is the stuck in a game world thing.

Esdese - January 12, 2017, 2:22 pm

(Jan 12, 2017 09:26 AM)Mad Scarecrow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can we not compare Log Horizon to SAO? It sets out to do something completely different, the only similarity is the stuck in a game world thing. There a literally countless similarities.

OT: I wish there was more romance, but pretty solid series regardless.

Aura - January 12, 2017, 4:40 pm

There's a discussion thread for it right there.

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5510615>

Professor Pantsu - January 12, 2017, 11:18 pm

(Jan 12, 2017 03:22 PM)Esdese Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) There a literally countless similarities.

OT: I wish there was more romance, but pretty solid series regardless.

Like what? Elder Tails wasn't even a virtual reality game, people respawn when they die, it doesn't just revolve around one character being overpowered. Log Horizon focuses on the political and some what psychological side of the players while SOA focused on the action "I will save the world" type of stuff.

23er341r14145t1r34d1413r1 - January 12, 2017, 11:29 pm

(Jan 13, 2017 12:18 AM)Mad Scarecrow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Like what? Elder Tails wasn't even a virtual reality game, people respawn when they die, it doesn't just revolve around one character being overpowered. Log Horizon focuses on the political and some what psychological side of the players while SOA focused on the action "I will save the world" type of stuff.

Off topic but do you guys know any dope gambling anime revolving around cards? You seem to know a lot I don't know much bout anime.

Esdese - January 13, 2017, 5:04 am

(Jan 13, 2017 12:18 AM)Mad Scarecrow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Like what? Elder Tails wasn't even a virtual reality game, people respawn when they die, it doesn't just revolve around one character being overpowered. Log Horizon focuses on the political and some what psychological side of the players while SOA focused on the action "I will save the world" type of stuff.Both stuck in gaming world

Both try to figure out way to escape said gaming world

They both have negative effects when you "die" in game

the obvious aspects such as characters banding together to form guilds

MC IS A FUCKING LONER

surprise they both finally join/make a fucking guild

MC both have things unique to them such as skills or skill sets

Things that werent in the normal game start changing they start adjusting to life there in the same way across both shows

The main aspect for the plot is to figure out a way to "escape"

Too early in the morning for me to type more but you get the gist more or less

It's just a given that the two anime literally based on the exact same premise would be extremely similar. Not to say they don't have differences like you already stated.

