Really disappointing to see The Order go this route. I always regarded this group as one of the more quality ones, and I'm sure this group will remain quality, but it's still sad to see. So many groups go this route and in the end lower their quality, fuck people over (even if unintentional), and lower their reputation.

Either way best of luck with this.

I ageee and disagree. Doing a buy in doesn't necessarily come along with LQ. I'm sure Krave doesn't grant buy ins at immortality within the group. It's still believed you must maintain high quality within the group and outside wether you paid or where recruited. The thing I agree with your statement is I see The Order as a good quality group.

For a lounge group. Order has done incredibly well. Active. Users actually do things on HF like giveaways. And it isn't Echo. So those are three things going for it.

So yes, for a lounge group Order is pretty darn HQ.

And no, not every group that has done buy-ins becomes a shit show. There are many that actually gotten a lot better after opening up buy-ins because if a user pays for a spot generally they cared enough about the group to not be a dbag. Well then there's the flip side where users buy in JUST to be dbags.

Either way, you guys are right. I'll probably never own a group (because I'd rather not spend 5k for an online group thx).However everyone has the right to their opinions.

Updated the thread. Decided to make the buy-ins lifetime as it's better for a lounge group. Make sure you read everything before purchasing!

Will be great to see some new faces in the group :)
