

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: -

Skrill - January 13, 2017, 5:48 pm

My computer has been acting strange lately it makes a funny sound while its starting up, Sounds like its going to blow up.

My Disk usage is at 99% with hardly anything running any idea why this could be

NotButACactus - January 13, 2017, 6:25 pm

Windows I assume? How long does it last? I had this issue awhile ago, whenever I booted windows, svchost.exe would 100% my HDD for like 10 minutes. This was actually caused by two issues. 1. Windows update was not configured properly so it was trying to download and install stuff at random. I would recommend setting it up to download/install at a time you aren't using it. 2. My HDD was too slow. I had a 5400 RPM HDD which is very slow. The modern standard is 7200RPM. I upgraded to an SSD and that helped a lot too.

mixedBasket - January 13, 2017, 6:27 pm

Err it could be due to BITS (Background Intelligent Transfer Service) or Superfetch. I had that problem before, disabled both of those services and everything ran fine from then out.

Canonsx130 - January 13, 2017, 7:18 pm

Try this: <https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/kb/3083595>

Skrill - January 14, 2017, 2:46 pm

(Jan 13, 2017 08:18 PM)Canonsx130 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Try this:

<https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/kb/3083595>

Thank you