Jerry Smith - January 14, 2017, 12:33 am

So im gonna keep this short but I was just recently arrested and released (pre_trial) and im gonna take a deal on 8 felonies.

My charges are
Extortion x 4
Criminal impersonation x 1
Threats to bomb or injure property x 2
Communication with a minor for immoral purposes x 1

Its juvinile court so I can get up to 108 weeks but theres 45 weeks minimum.

It's not all that bad its sim in comparison to what I would get in criminal court

TheMockingBird - January 14, 2017, 12:44 am

No need to be so rude? Guy is going to serve time, his punishment is coming.

Calling him a "complete fucking moron" and "fucking idiot", and you wish to school him? Better take a look at yourself first.

Of course I don't agree with swatting nor do I believe it's something anyone should be doing. But what's done is done, and if he was 16, well let's say at that age I did worse things. And everyone can change, give him time.

What I am saying is first of all, he deserves a second chance - as he will get. And secondly, don't act like a fool when trying to school.

He could've chosen something other than a school. I do not regret saying what I said towards OP. He's a moron. Basically stopping children from being educated so he can have a laugh.

Yes young people make mistakes, I've made my share of them and I'm sure you have as well but at 16 you should be mature enough to know better than to do something like that.

Just my opinion, sorry if you disagree.

Yeah a school was a pretty bad move but I don't really think he sat there deciding what to target, or perhaps it was personal and that's why he picked the school.

We can't all agree right? No need to be sorry.

All I am saying you should choose your words wisely and be kind even though he did something we really don't approve of.

But that's my opinion and you shouldn't change who you are because of someone else. Stay true to yourself.

And in the end if you ever want to move, you have to completely forgive yourself for this, its going to haunt you a lot in the future, and how you handle it will dictate a lot of your life.

Sadly this wouldn't have been such a huge issue until after 9/11 and other big things that changed the way that everyone views threats. I recall my friend doing something similar when I was in middle school and the police just laughed and said that they can see why we all want to get out of school for the day basically and didn't really press any charges or anything.

Good luck with the whole case though if this is you man!

But anyways, you swatted people, idiot.

You deserve what you get in sentencing, there is a lot of cyber crimes and stuff I can not endorse but can understand why people might do them. But Swatting is straight up stupid, and dangerous.

I'm just curious as to why you felt the need to open a thread about this.

I mean, if the thought pattern was that you will get props from everyone here for being such 'a bad ass' and I dunno..some sort of validation..well, then, I hope you eventually realize how stupid that kind of thinking is, for your sake.

Because so far I'm only seeing you trying to tell everybody real hard (and prove) that you're going to jail, is this something to be proud of, in your view, or.. ?

I'm not trying to place myself on a high horse here, far from it, but I think you should really consider investing some thought in to why you think and act this way, you might find yourself avoiding jail time in the future if you change this way of thinking / validating and so forth.

I mean, you say you're banned from connecting and stuff and the 1st thing you do is post on HackForums? Gee'..I wonder why you got caught.

Lemme guess, you recently enjoyed viewing Takedown, with Kevin Mitnick, am I right? :D

Things take very long to reach the courts. A drunk driver struck 3 of our vehicles in our driveway 2 years ago and our court date is going to be on August 17th. Especially with the charges mentioned by OP, I'm sure the state prosecutors want to know if there is anything else that OP has been involved in or if he's related to any current open cases.

In cities that also have Small/Medium sized courts it makes things take even longer. There's only so many cases you can fit into a day. This is also why people get stuck with HUUUGE bills from their lawyers.

Six months later, and I still am curious at what you did at 16.

Best of lucks to you mate.

Mongu - July 17, 2017, 5:23 pm

Unlucky man, best of luck. But you brought this on yourself, still sucks to see you go ;-;

BeastylsFresh - July 18, 2017, 8:40 pm

Dude Juvy will be the least of your problems and 45 weeks for what you did is nothing.. If they tried you as an adult you probably would have gotten 8 years in prison and been in cells with murderers and rapists for 8 years minimum. Good luck finding a job with a record like that at such a young age. You done fucked up aaron

Just kidding if release times are the same in VA as they are near me, they'll hold as long as they can.
