Closed December off with 110k revenue.

Thought it might be cool to set myself a challenge and update on the go. I want to do 7 figure revenue by years end.

Start off this month (Jan) with a mini-product launch till now we made 31k rev.

Update May:

Did another small product launch (translated version of a product we already launched) and we are working our way to our biggest launch so far in 1/2 months. Should be able to gross mid 6 figures to low 7 figures ?

I know this sounds a little crazy because the amount of money you're dealing with but ask yourself the question if you want. Instead of reaching 1mil revenue January 1, 2018 why not reach it in the next six months or even three months. What's stopping you from reaching in that time frame

Just posted this so it's something you can think about. I learned that from Peter Thiel.

What do I know though I'm just a broke kid working at Target saving up to start with ecommerce and Shopify. This tread give me motivation and inspiration. Keep posting. Do a daily update if you can.

because our current set up doesn't allow for that much of a scale, 7 figures is reachable and already a hard to grab one.

Few questions if you answer will be appreciated

- 1.How much you invested?
- 2.Are you selling physical or digital products?
- 3.How much time it took you to reach this level?

Thank You

What a coincidence, even crazier of a coincidence is that the OP is also selling/making $ from Software (although the OP makes iOS and Android apps, according to him)

I guess Software = The future's cash cow lol xd

Always available for questions ?!

- 1.Investments you are looking at server costs and educational costs which is like 500$ a year before we launched (the server is already 1000$/month now)
- 2.I am selling only digital products so there are no production costs or whatever.
- 3.Years, everything boils down to years of hard work and education. To be fair I could've done this start - end in 3-5 months if I hadn't chosen to go with probably the most complex digital product we could ever build :P

Not sure what the coincidence is? OP doesn't make iOS or Android apps anymore. We develop SaaS and web apps. Software is indeed a big cash cow.

As part of our retargeting we did, also we ran 2/3 small campaigns on recruiting affiliates. If you are asking did we make the money by utilizing facebook as the main traffic source, no we used email marketing.

I dropped out 3 times, mostly because either the education sucked balls (had to teach my 55 year old teacher in webdesign the basic lay out of HTML), or I was too busy with my company/clients and lost interest. 90% of what I know is self-learned.

Thanks everyone ?

(Jun 20, 2017 12:49 AM)Z?ro Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Since you're looking for someone to code your next Webapp, I'm assuming you don't know any coding yourself? If so, how much did you pay the first coder(s) to make your first Webapp or SaaS? And how long before you saw profit? Asking because I have some pretty good ideas for SaaS's and Webapps that people would maybe buy and would like to see how you started off to maybe give me some tips. Thanks. :)

I am a coder myself and run a team of 9 coders, the fact we are hiring means we are expanding in this case :). My first web app I build all by myself and it did 650k in launch week alone. The development of the app took me 16 months though. To start off I highly suggest you nail down your marketing, you need a marketer as partner that has a proven track record of 6/7 figure launches or you need to go out and learn all of the needed from marketers that have done so. The launch model is a pretty solid way to start of you just need to get started really. I suggest buying a few courses about launching a product.

This is a great starting point and can be pirated as well:"

Wow, nice man . might see you on forbes richlist oneday .

FaberCastell - June 22, 2017, 5:49 am

I am just curious, what is it you are selling? Webapps and Saas? But i don't understand what exactly that is. I mean can you give us some kind of an example(doesn't have to be your site)? Please ?

potettmaster - June 22, 2017, 9:30 am damn. 1 millions dollars, thats a lot of fucking money dude

Youtube/Google/Live mail, we focus on marketing services though. Think Linkbuilding/SEO/Conversion tracking/click tracking etc. etc.

Updated, I did not include my cryptocurrency investments which took me months to build (multiple six figures so far). Unfortunately we have just released our app to closed beta, we have not launched it yet, seems that we won't be able to do so in December so our 6/7 figure launch will probably happen in Q1 of 2018.

Currently we have over 150k invested in the application and the codebase is around 1.7 million lines of code.

TransDLLinject - December 30, 2017, 10:30 am

Nicely done. Tell us if you have reached the 1M goal yet :)

xConcept - August 4, 2018, 8:08 pm

Keep it going man, you'll reach your goal soon

Luciann - August 4, 2018, 9:45 pm

Keep it up man , let us know when you reach that lovely number .

ubersoldier - August 8, 2018, 5:00 am

Thanks everyone! Currently got to much oppertunities on my hands, need some skilled developers to take workload of my hands. Pay will be commission based and really freaking decent.

PM for details

Still active (we are still working on the product and had mayor setbacks) Currently we are looking at a 7 figure potential launchweek! We have insane affiliate support to back up that claim)

I do not at this moment, I really do need people to help me though as I have more projects than hours in a day. Working with me would get you insights into my world and fair paycheques to go with it :D

That's as far as I'd go with mentoring at this moment ?
