I am the official developer for jLog. We are only taking pre-orders at the moment since we are still modifying a few things on the website. You are able to pre-order now and then you will be sent a license the minute we officially release jLog. Make sure you stay tuned for more information.

Hey, This looks great Good Job guys on this Project . I've got some questions, though.

- Does it require Java to be installed?-

This uses JNativeHook ?

Are you sure that isn't run-time detected?- If so should i use a crypter with it

Note Before you ask me - I no Longer working with venomlogger so this is my legit customer question ?

Regards

TOM

XzZ. - February 13, 2017, 12:27 pm

Anyone start this per-ordering? I am wondering who will pay such $$ without proving it's work on MAC OS and LINUX.. if it's work is it silent install or action required?

1. Yes, in order for the jar to run on the target PC you would need to have Java installed. This isn't always a problem as most operating systems already have java included in the system. Even if the user was forced to download java to open a jar file he would do it which takes less than a minute to do. We always tell our customers to let their victims know that they need to download java in case they don't have it.

2. I can't tell you whether we are using JNativeHook or not, im sorry.

3. I have done tests and even converted it to .EXE and checked from there. It's fully undetectable if its in exe format. Java is a bit tricky to rely on but I'm pretty sure its undetectable upon runtime as well.

Thank you for your interest.

We are looking into that and I already know it works on Mac OS and Linux. Right now it works fine with Windows but I'm trying to expand it to MAC as well which can take a little bit of time. The execution process itself is easy and definitely cross-platformed. The only thing that matters for it to properly be functional is the code, which is the part I am currently working with atm. We also have a bunch of people who have pre-ordered the product already.

For further questions regarding the project or development, please send me a PM instead of posting on this thread.

Pumpkins - February 13, 2017, 2:19 pm

Nice project you have here, seems very promising, just wanted to make some points;

If this is using jnativehook, just a friendly reminder - the DLL's it uses are detected and the jnativehook library copies these dll's to the computers temp directory in order to use them, making jnativehook runtime detected.

Otherwise if you've decided to make your own FUD dll's, and/or decide to go down the JNA/JNI route then GLWS :-)

Thank you for pointing it out for me, really appreciated buddy.

I am currently looking at alternatives but will hopefully manage to get it working.

In around a week or so.

Stay tuned!

M?xim - February 16, 2017, 9:59 am

After some consideration, we have changed the prices. We now have only one price package which is lifetime, and that is now set at $40. The thread and links have been updated accordingly.

There is a deadline in the thread, but we actually might be able to release it way earlier. Thank you very much for your kind words.

Feel free to pre-order though.

We are configuring the server for jLog as the product itself is done and ready to be used. Expect the product to be delivered very soon!

We have also made tests and I can confirm that everything works fine on Windows, Mac and Linux.

We don't expect the price to go up after release but we always remind our customers to pre-order before release so you get the chance to use it before everyone else uses it. Think of it as standing in line, almost like when the first PS4 came out. Everyone was desperate to be first in line because it was a fresh new item that nobody has ever seen or used before. But as always it's definitely up to you whether you want to pre-order or not.

Have a good day!

User Interface (10/10):

Simple and easy to use web-panel; makes it easy to display my stats, users, users' location, and more!

Price (8/10):

For cross-platform the price matches the keylogger perfectly.

Ease of use (10/10):

From making an account, to even making a stub it was too easy!

Overall (9/10):

Amazing, simplistic, easy to use, supportive staff; This is a product that I love already.

Darkwin - March 3, 2017, 1:55 pm

User Interface (10/10):

The User Interface is extremely user friendly and easy to use. Users with beginner knowledge will easily be able to use the product successfully!

Price (10/10):

For such a high quality product the price is very fair.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy. Just as easy as using google if you ask me.

Overall (10/10):

Overall the product is solid, you can create your stub online and download it straight away. Definitely the best logger I've used! Highly reccomend.

Sorry for the late review .. Got caught up with something ..

User Interface (10/10):

User friendly web panel with nice features like world map and stats. Very clean and professional design. Great thing about this tool is that you can use it anywhere and anytime.. none of that netseal bs. Login is fairly advanced and its asking for confirmation if you login from different network which is nice security feature.

Price (10/10):

I think the price is accurate for the quality of this product. Also it will keep idiots at bay so the tool won't get saturated too quick.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy to use. Web panel with descriptions below the options. Anyone should be able to easily navigate and get the job done.

Overall (10/10):

Very happy with this product. Owners are trustworthy and very honest. I was waiting for the release since the first mention of this tool and i have to say it was worth the wait. Good luck!

Sparkfear - March 10, 2017, 3:28 pm

User Interface (10/10):

The interface has a nice dark theme, which I love and it is overall very smooth. Excellent overview of statics, stubs and overall everything is easy to find.

Price (9/10):

Normally I'm always sketchy when people offer a lifetime product, but this Keylogger has potential. I believe this will probably become even better over time as I don't see the developers care only about money, but rather delivering an excellent product.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

TL;dr: Great keylogger, fast and very professional support.

s?hane - March 10, 2017, 3:45 pm

I'm going to give a honest and unbiased review.

R e v i e w

UI 10/10:

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features 8/10:

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security 8/10:

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price 8/10:

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability 10/10:

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall 8.5/10:

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

The interface has a nice dark theme, which I love and it is overall very smooth. Excellent overview of statics, stubs and overall everything is easy to find.

Price (9/10):

Normally I'm always sketchy when people offer a lifetime product, but this Keylogger has potential. I believe this will probably become even better over time as I don't see the developers care only about money, but rather delivering an excellent product.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

TL;dr: Great keylogger, fast and very professional support.

UI 10/10:

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features 8/10:

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security 8/10:

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price 8/10:

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability 10/10:

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall 8.5/10:

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

Thank you both for the detailed reviews. Appreciate you taking your time.

User Interface (10/10):

I really like the interface because of its simplicity and intuitiveness, I think the colors are perfect.

Price (9/10):

The price is good because will maintain the stub FUD, and the product is very curate.

Just the lifetime license I don't personally like, because people won't use this everyday of their life.

I can advice you some monthly plan, and then the lifetime license.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I said this is very EASY to use. Everyone can do a keylogger in less than ~2 minutes.

There aren't too much setting that always confuse everyone and waste time.

Overall (9.8/10):

The product itself is very extraordinary. It has very cool features, its developers are very active and always with new ideas to implement in this project.

I love jLog.

I have received a vouch copy for this product and will be giving a honest review

User Interface (10/10):

There is nothing to fault here, love the fact that it is web-based. Very smooth

Price (8/10):

There are obviously cheaper options, but it is lifetime and has a lot of features.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy to use, + the excellent support team is there to help if there are any problems

Overall (9.5/10):

This was honestly a great keylogger, and as i said the support team is a huge bonus which comes included. The only negative is the price, but you get what you pay for with this service!

Thank you Rhinoo, and indeed the price was a bit high. And considering that SeForm also pointed out a price suggestion - we changed the price.

It will be $30 for lifetime. We will test out how it goes, might change back and try something else and try something else.

You don't need to crypt this keylogger, it's already undetected.

Besides that the stub is already protected from people obtaining any data.

1/ you said that the keys are translated in english. So if victims wrote an italian text, i will have a translation and not the exact text ?

2/ The infected file is a java file ?

Hi,

Mistake from my part, I worded it poorly when I made the thread design. What I meant is that if the user is typing on a chinese keyboard for example, you will be able to read it as if it is English. Will word it better in the thread design later.

And yes; it is not .exe but instead .jar which makes people suspect less that it is a keylogger you have sent!

Please use the support thread if you have any further questions. Thanks!

Huge vouch for Maxim, seen the panel. Literally highest quality there is, love the GUI, very newb-friendly.

Wouldn't purchase any other keylogger than Maxim's. Going to use this on my own PC, just in case any family members wish to mess around :P

c i a o - March 24, 2017, 8:58 pm

Big vouch for the product. Purchased it today and works like a charm! Good job guys!

Riley Reid - March 24, 2017, 9:20 pm

User Interface (10/10):

Website is nice and clean, extremely simple to use.

Price (10/10):

Very low and to add on to that you won't need to buy a crypter either for this as Maxim insures it will stay FUD.

Ease of use (10/10):

Haven't used any keyloggers for years and was able to set up in a few clicks with no effort of dealing with complicated settings.

Overall (10/10):

I really can't get over how great the website looks. Stub executed and worked perfectly and was fully undetected. Looking forward to the many great features that will be added to JLog.

Saltpeter - March 25, 2017, 11:35 am

This product has been provided to me at no cost for review.

User Interface (9/10):

I can certainly appreciate a minimalistic design philosophy and Jlog certainly achieves this as far as I'm concerned.

Price (10/10):

For everything that is included here, including FUD, this is being sold for a very reasonable price.

Ease of use (10/10):

For someone that hadn't ever used something like this it was very self-explanatory to get up and running. All of the necessary settings are laid out in a manner that makes sense. It was also very easy to get started as process for creating an account and logging into it was extremely easy.

Overall (10/10):

Overall I feel I can definitely recommend this to anyone looking for anything of the sort. I highly doubt you will be disappointed.

HighTier - March 25, 2017, 1:48 pm

I recieved a free copy to give a review.

User Interface (10/10):

The User Interface is smooth and simple. I like the colors, it looks great.

Price (10/10):

The price is high enough to keep it funded, but low enough for anyone to buy.

Ease of use (10/10):

It is very easy to use. It has hints for almost every single option.

Overall (?/10):

Overall it is a great keylogger. I really enjoy the fact that is it Java based. You can create your stub online and then download it.

Frosty07 - March 25, 2017, 3:07 pm

I'm going to post a tutorial on how to use this keylogger very soon! Make sure you stay tuned!

Layout - March 25, 2017, 3:15 pm

User Interface (10/10):

The user interface is perfect. Looks very high quality and well made. Easy to navigate from a page to another.

Price (10/10):

Fair price for actually being lifetime subscription. Definitely worth it!

Ease of use (10/10):

Easy to build, and has awesome features such as using FTP or webpanel. You can also see a nice overview of your profiles, stubs and users, so that makes it easier to have control! EVERYONE can use this, even a 10 years old boy!

Overall (10/10):

Overall, this is a really good product which I would recommend to anyone who is looking to use a perfect keylogger. I love it!

Really nice design, features, noob friendly and also price.

Go ahead and try it now, you won't regret, I promise!

Disclaimer: I was given this License to review and I have no vested interest in the software.

User Interface (9/10):

The UI is clean and very easy to use, However The color theme is not something I'm fond of. It gets the job done and that's what counts.

I would like to see an option to delete stubs from your list as I can see that getting confusing to some given the files are removed from the servers once downloaded anyways.

Also the option to remove Users from the panel would be a good addition.

Price (10/10):

What can I say the price is great considering how well everything works.

Ease of use (9/10):

The process of building your file and setting it up is pretty easy, aside from the aforementioned additions I would like to see implemented, all is good here.

Support is great, they are there answering questions and helping you to get going if you don't understand or have any problems.

Overall (9.5/10):

If you are looking for an easy monitoring solution this should be on your list.

I feel they are moving in the right direction and with some updates and minor additions I believe they will show how strong this software can be.

Received a copy, here is my review:

10/10 - The design on the website is very high quality, and easy to navigate around.

9/10 - For the actual program itself, it is completely fud and with it being completely web based in my opinion its safer than downloading those programs which you have no idea could be infected. I have not been able to infect anyone yet, will update once I have fully tested the Keylogger.

TrucedLyz - March 26, 2017, 1:51 pm

Gives me an error when I try to buy, says you need to activate your account.

Marwix - March 26, 2017, 3:21 pm

Update 1.1.0

? Source decoding has been modified for macOS.

? Serious macOS bug has been fixed.

? Stub has been reFUEDED (Even if it wasn't necessary)

? Password Recovery will be available for Windows 2017-03-31 -> (Chrome, FF and FZ)

? Cure/Removal Tool is now available in the jLog build panel.

? Price has been increased to $45 for lifetime due to the high demand.

Server has been updated as usual. I believe this has changed a lot to the stub in terms of functionality, thus being the reason why we are releasing version 1.1.

Scan: Will be posted tomorrow.

User Interface (10/10):

Super clean, easy to use, what more is there to say? The UI alone makes me want to use this. You could tell it wasn't rushed out, there was serious time put into this.

Price (8/10):

$30 for lifetime seems very fair, considering others make you pay monthly for their licenses. The ease of use, accessibility, features all add-up, this could definitely be sold for more, but $30 is a nice price.

Ease of use (9/10):

The UI is super clean, which helps in creating a really nice user experience, everything is super easy to find and runs flawlessly. I had a problem creating my account, but that bug was fixed within the day.

Overall (9/10):

Not really what else to say. It's the nicest logger I've ever seen, and $30 for LIFETIME, there's no regrets.

I personally vouch for this product.

One of my friends is using that feature for one of his RAT's. Unfortunately the webcam feature would increase the stub size alot, especially because of the libraries so the answer is no.

morrgan - March 27, 2017, 7:25 am

My question:

1. Does this really recover all passwords (Chrome, Firefox, Thunderbird, Outlook)?
2. When the target downloads the stub and tries to run it, is there any form of security warning that pops up?

 2. Not really, because its java so most programs won't detect it as 'harmful'.

Just the lifetime license I don't personally like, because people won't use this everyday of their life.

I can advice you some monthly plan, and then the lifetime license.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I said this is very EASY to use. Everyone can do a keylogger in less than ~2 minutes. There aren't too much setting that always confuse everyone and waste time.

Overall (9.8/10):

The product itself is very extraordinary. It has very cool features, its developers are very active and always with new ideas to implement in this project.

UI (10/10)

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features (8/10)

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security (8/10)

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price (8/10)

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability (10/10)

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall (8.5/10)

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

Will continue to work with the upcoming updates. I have also set a deadline below which gives you a brief overlay on how long it would approximately take to finish each update. Have in mind that it could also take longer than the suggested time as I exams to work on as well.

Here's a list of them:

? Temp Bug (1-3 days)

? Cure Tool improvements (1-3 days)

? Password Recovery (1-2 weeks)

? Remote Update Stub and Settings - It works but not 100%. (1-2 weeks)

? Remote Execution Commands (1-2 weeks)

? jRun - Silent Downloader (Completely new product - 3-4 weeks)

I will also do a complete debugging test to check all features next week on friday to ensure everything works for jLog because some people experience issues with a bunch of different things related to their own settings. This isn't a major problem as the stub works fine, however people still need to set the right settings and such so that the stub can work as its supposed to.

$30 for lifetime seems very fair, considering others make you pay monthly for their licenses. The ease of use, accessibility, features all add-up, this could definitely be sold for more, but $30 is a nice price.

Ease of use (9/10):

The UI is super clean, which helps in creating a really nice user experience, everything is super easy to find and runs flawlessly. I had a problem creating my account, but that bug was fixed within the day.

Overall (9/10):

Not really what else to say. It's the nicest logger I've ever seen, and $30 for LIFETIME, there's no regrets.

I would like to see an option to delete stubs from your list as I can see that getting confusing to some given the files are removed from the servers once downloaded anyways.

Also the option to remove Users from the panel would be a good addition.

Price (10/10):

What can I say the price is great considering how well everything works.

Ease of use (9/10):

The process of building your file and setting it up is pretty easy, aside from the aforementioned additions I would like to see implemented, all is good here.

Support is great, they are there answering questions and helping you to get going if you don't understand or have any problems.

Overall (9.5/10):

My honest opinion

User Interface (9/10):

The user interface is extremely easy to use, Its very easy to understand it what I love about it is web based.

Price (9.5/10):

The price of $30 for lifetime is a fair price not too high not too low great price for a lifetime item like this.

Ease of use (10/10):

JLOG has to be one of the easiest keylogger I've ever used, all the features are very easy to use. Anyone can make a stub with jLog experienced or not.

Overall (9.5/10):

Overall this has to be one of the nicest Java Keylogger I have ever used. Being web based you can make a stub anywhere! Prices is reasonable.

Vouch for this product.

User Interface (9/10):

The UI in this keylogger is amazing. The colour scheme fix perfectly. Every easy to build stubs and check logs.

Price 10/10):

The price of this keylogger is great. $30 for a lifetime product, isn't too high nor is it too low.

Ease of use (10/10):

This is extremely easy to use since there is a web based log, meaning you do not need a email or a ftp account to be able to see the logs.

Overall (9.5/10):

This has to be the most flexible keylogger being sold on HF, because of the multiple OS, the colour scheme and how easy it is to build a stub.

Vouch!

31c6fe2dd1 - April 10, 2017, 8:04 am

User Interface (10/10):

Miles above the rest, I love the idea of having a browser builder as it means you don't have to disable firewall or AV to allow the builder to run on your PC etc.

The builder is sleek and very pleasing to the eye, and is all set out well. The navigation bar points you in the right direction and minimizes upon request so it doesn't get in your way. Cannot fault the user interface, it's pretty orgasmic.

Price (9/10):

$30 is a good deal for a lifetime license. There is no doubt about that. What I would like to see from programs such as these is trial options with shorter licenses, such as one week or one month as they are cheaper, and less of a commitment for the user as if they don't like the product that's $30 down. But that's just a minor thing I am sure they will be adding soon, I really can't fault $30 for the lifetime license, ESPECIALLY as you don't have to invest in a crypter.

Ease of use (7/10):

Dropped quite a few marks in this section, as it isn't very beginner friendly. As someone who only dabbles in beginner hacking with Keyloggers and RATs I like it when the program has a little explanation over what each feature does but upon initial inspection this does not seem to be the case. It would be nice if you had a picture for what the error message would look like, for example as well. That being said it is easy to navigate to the builder and the instructions aren't too hard to follow so the ease of use still does get a good score, I would just like to see explanations about every feature. I'm sure this will be implemented soon, however as it really is just polishing touches.

Overall (9.5/10):

Luckily noobs like me shouldn't negatively impact the rating of a program, so even though personally I would like to see it be a bit easier to use, the combination of the user interface, along with the price, along with the stub being crypted on download puts this leagues above the rest. I mean it's a jar file which is usable on Mac, Linux and Windows so really there is nothing more you could want. Good job Maxim, the hype certainly was worth it.

Excalibur - April 10, 2017, 10:15 am

User Interface (10/10):

Very Nice and Clean looks, noob friendly.

Price (9/10):

Its very nice and easy to use but 30$ is kinda bit much, should've been like 20$ or something!

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy! I have never used a keylogger before and it was so easy to setup!

Overall (10/10):

This is one of the best programs on HF, I really wish RATTING was as easy as this one tho :(Took me like 10mins in setting up and trying it out!

I would love to see a Rat version which is FUD and has online interface!

Don't Hesitate to purchase this guys!

This product will last for a very long time (1 year+). We have no intentions to sell the project because its definitely a rare one. Recovery options will be added this week for jLog. Stay tuned for more information!

Please do not use words such as "victim" in relation with this keylogger. You can read our Terms of Service here. And yes, the computer needs Java, can be any version. Most devices and computers today has Java pre-installed.

User Interface (10/10):

The Web interface was quick and didn't seem like it was hastily put together.
Worked quite well and showed me what I needed.

Price (6/10):

While I got this for free as a review sample I think $30 for a keylogger is too much. While yes Multi OS support, it is fully fud (Not detected by my AVG or Malwarebytes or my shitty methods for trying to get into it) it should be more like $20.

Ease of use (7.5/10):

The online builder made it pretty fast and easily, worked well except just please keep the screenshots in the same aspect ratio. please.

Overall (9/10):

It's a well built program that works well, isn't easily detected and did everything I needed it to do. Has a few things I'd like changed but other than that it's all good.

Update 1.2.0

- ? Password Recovery is now automatic (Filezilla, chrome and Firefox).
- ? Server compile time has been improved.
- ? Small bug fixes has been made to the stub.
- ? jLog has been reFUD'ed (even if it wasn't necessary).

Upcoming updates (Within 1-2 weeks):

- ? Cure tool improvements.

- ? Temp bug fix.
- ? Website improvements.
- ? Linux bug fix.

The server has been updated with the latest stub version. If you find more bugs or errors, let us know so we can fix them.

Everything is very well organized. Friendly and patient support service (For sometimes idiotic questions like mine).

Logger works good. Not having any problems. The only limit is the absence of java on the PC and/or Google Chrome who warns you about downloading this file. But that's not a problem if you got good social skills.

I vouch this product and highly recommend it!

Very Nice and Clean looks, noob friendly.

Price (9/10):

Its very nice and easy to use but 30$ is kinda bit much, should've been like 20$ or something!

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy! I have never used a keylogger before and it was so easy to setup!

Overall (10/10):

This is one of the best programs on HF, I really wish RATTING was as easy as this one tho :(Took me like 10mins in setting up and trying it out!

I would love to see a Rat version which is FUD and has online interface!

Don't Hesitate to purchase this guys!

(Apr 10, 2017 08:04 AM)lambic Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) User Interface (10/10):

Miles above the rest, I love the idea of having a browser builder as it means you don't have to disable firewall or AV to allow the builder to run on your PC etc.

The builder is sleek and very pleasing to the eye, and is all set out well. The navigation bar points you in the right direction and minimizes upon request so it doesn't get in your way. Cannot fault the user interface, it's pretty orgasmic.

Price (9/10):

$30 is a good deal for a lifetime license. There is no doubt about that. What I would like to see from programs such as these is trial options with shorter licenses, such as one week or one month as they are cheaper, and less of a commitment for the user as if they don't like the product that's $30 down. But that's just a minor thing I am sure they will be adding soon, I really can't fault $30 for the lifetime license, ESPECIALLY as you don't have to invest in a crypter.

Ease of use (7/10):

Dropped quite a few marks in this section, as it isn't very beginner friendly. As someone who only dabbles in beginner hacking with Keyloggers and RATs I like it when the program has a little explanation over what each feature does but upon initial inspection this does not seem to be the case. It would be nice if you had a picture for what the error message would look like, for example as well. That being said it is easy to navigate to the builder and the instructions aren't too hard to follow so the ease of use still does get a good score, I would just like to see explanations about every feature. I'm sure this will be implemented soon, however as it really is just polishing touches.

Overall (9.5/10):

Luckily noobs like me shouldn't negatively impact the rating of a program, so even though personally I would like to see it be a bit easier to use, the combination of the user interface, along with the price, along with the stub being crypted on download puts this leagues above the rest. I mean it's a jar file which is usable on Mac, Linux and Windows so really there is nothing more you could want. Good job Maxim, the hype certainly was worth it.

The price of this keylogger is great. $30 for a lifetime product, isn't to high nor is it to low.

Ease of use (10/10):

This is extremely easy to use since there is a a web based log, meaning you do not need a email or a ftp account to be able to see the logs.

Overall (9.5/10):

This has to be the most flexible keylogger being sold on HF, because of the multiple OS, the colour scheme and how easy it is to build a stub.

Ease of use (10/10):

JLOG has to be one of the easiest keylogger I've ever used, all the features are very easy to use. Anyone can make a stub with jLog experienced or not.

Overall (9.5/10):

Overall this has to be one of the nicest Java Keylogger I have every used. Being web based you can make a stub anywhere! Prices is reasonable.

$30 for lifetime seems very fair, considering others make you pay monthly for their licenses. The ease of use, accessibility, features all add-up, this could definitely be sold for more, but $30 is a nice price.

Ease of use (9/10):

The UI is super clean, which helps in creating a really nice user experience, everything is super easy to find and runs flawlessly. I had a problem creating my account, but that bug was fixed within the day.

Overall (9/10):

Not really what else to say. It's the nicest logger I've ever seen, and $30 for LIFETIME, there's no regrets.

I would like to see an option to delete stubs from your list as I can see that getting confusing to some given the files are removed from the servers once downloaded anyways.

Also the option to remove Users from the panel would be a good addition.

Price (10/10):

What can I say the price is great considering how well everything works.

Ease of use (9/10):

The process of building your file and setting it up is pretty easy, aside from the aforementioned additions I would like to see implemented, all is good here.

Support is great, they are there answering questions and helping you to get going if you don't understand or have any problems.

UI (10/10)

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features (8/10)

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security (8/10)

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price (8/10)

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability (10/10)

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall (8.5/10)

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

The interface has a nice dark theme, which I love and it is overall very smooth.

Excellent overview of statics, stubs and overall everything is easy to find.

Price (9/10):

Normally I'm always sketchy when people offer a lifetime product, but this Keylogger has potential. I believe this will probably become even better over time as I don't see the developers care only about money, but rather delivering an excellent product.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

TL;dr: Great keylogger, fast and very professional support.

UI (10/10)

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features (8/10)

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security (8/10)

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price (8/10)

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability (10/10)

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall (8.5/10)

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

I can advice you some monthly plan, and then the lifetime license.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I said this is very EASY to use. Everyone can do a keylogger in less than ~2 minutes.

There aren't too much setting that always confuse everyone and waste time.

Overall (9.8/10):

UI (10/10)

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features (8/10)

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security (8/10)

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price (8/10)

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability (10/10)

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall (8.5/10)

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

Price (9/10):

Normally I'm always sketchy when people offer a lifetime product, but this Keylogger has potential. I believe this will probably become even better over time as I don't see the developers care only about money, but rather delivering an excellent product.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

TL;dr: Great keylogger, fast and very professional support.

Miles above the rest, I love the idea of having a browser builder as it means you don't have to disable firewall or AV to allow the builder to run on your PC etc.

The builder is sleek and very pleasing to the eye, and is all set out well. The navigation bar points you in the right direction and minimizes upon request so it doesn't get in your way. Cannot fault the user interface, it's pretty orgasmic.

Price (9/10):

$30 is a good deal for a lifetime license. There is no doubt about that. What I would like to see from programs such as these is trial options with shorter licenses, such as one week or one month as they are cheaper, and less of a commitment for the user as if they don't like the product that's $30 down. But that's just a minor thing I am sure they will be adding soon, I really can't fault $30 for the lifetime license, ESPECIALLY as you don't have to invest in a crypter.

Ease of use (7/10):

Dropped quite a few marks in this section, as it isn't very beginner friendly. As someone who only dabbles in beginner hacking with Keyloggers and RATs I like it when the program has a little explanation over what each feature does but upon initial inspection this does not seem to be the case. It would be nice if you had a picture for what the error message would look like, for example as well. That being said it is easy to navigate to the builder and the instructions aren't too hard to follow so the ease of use still does get a good score, I would just like to see explanations about every feature. I'm sure this will be implemented soon, however as it really is just polishing touches.

Overall (9.5/10):

Luckily noobs like me shouldn't negatively impact the rating of a program, so even though personally I would like to see it be a bit easier to use, the combination of the user interface, along with the price, along with the stub being crypted on download puts this leagues above the rest. I mean it's a jar file which is usable on Mac, Linux and Windows so really there is nothing more you could want. Good job Maxim, the hype certainly was worth it.

I really can't get over how great the website looks. Stub executed and worked perfectly and was fully undetected. Looking forward to the many great features that will be added to JLog.

User Interface (10/10):

There is nothing to fault here, love the fact that it is web-based. Very smooth

Price (8/10):

There are obviously cheaper options, but it is lifetime and has a lot of features.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy to use, + the excellent support team is there to help if there are any problems

Overall (9.5/10):

This was honestly a great keylogger, and as i said the support team is a huge bonus which comes included. The only negative is the price, but you get what you pay for with this service!

I really like the interface because of its simplicity and intuitiveness, I think the colors are perfect.

Price (9/10):

The price is good because will maintain the stub FUD, and the product is very curate.

Just the lifetime license I don't personally like, because people won't use this everyday of their life.

I can advice you some monthly plan, and then the lifetime license.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I said this is very EASY to use. Everyone can do a keylogger in less than ~2 minutes. There aren't too much setting that always confuse everyone and waste time.

Overall (9.8/10):

The product itself is very extraordinary. It has very cool features, its developers are very active and always with new ideas to implement in this project.

UI (10/10)

The user interface is aesthetically pleasing and simple. It's only web based which makes it so much better. Great color scheme as well, can't complain.

Features (8/10)

jLogger does everything your standard keylogger does but its java based which makes it somewhat unique from Windows based loggers. Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security (8/10)

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price (8/10)

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability (10/10)

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall (8.5/10)

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

The interface has a nice dark theme, which I love and it is overall very smooth.

Excellent overview of statics, stubs and overall everything is easy to find.

Price (9/10):

Normally I'm always sketchy when people offer a lifetime product, but this Keylogger has potential. I believe this will probably become even better over time as I don't see the developers care only about money, but rather delivering an excellent product.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

TL;dr: Great keylogger, fast and very professional support.

For cross-platform the price matches the keylogger perfectly.

Ease of use (10/10):

From making an account, to even making a stub it was too easy!

Very easy. Just as easy as using google if you ask me.

Overall (10/10):

Great thing about this tool is that you can use it anywhere and anytime.. none of that netseal bs. Login is fairly advanced and its asking for confirmation if you login from different network which is nice security feature.

Price (10/10):

I think the price is accurate for the quality of this product. Also it will keep idiots at bay so the tool won't get saturated too quick.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy to use. Web panel with descriptions below the options. Anyone should be able to easily navigate and get the job done.

Overall (10/10):

Very easy! I have never used a keylogger before and it was so easy to setup!

Overall (10/10):

This is one of the best programs on HF, I really wish RATTING was as easy as this one tho :(Took me like 10mins in setting up and trying it out!

I would love to see a Rat version which is FUD and has online interface!

Miles above the rest, I love the idea of having a browser builder as it means you don't have to disable firewall or AV to allow the builder to run on your PC etc.

The builder is sleek and very pleasing to the eye, and is all set out well. The navigation bar points you in the right direction and minimizes upon request so it doesn't get in your way. Cannot fault the user interface, it's pretty orgasmic.

Price (9/10):

$30 is a good deal for a lifetime license. There is no doubt about that. What I would like to see from programs such as these is trial options with shorter licenses, such as one week or one month as they are cheaper, and less of a commitment for the user as if they don't like the product that's $30 down. But that's just a minor thing I am sure they will be adding soon, I really can't fault $30 for the lifetime license, ESPECIALLY as you don't have to invest in a crypter.

Ease of use (7/10):

Dropped quite a few marks in this section, as it isn't very beginner friendly. As someone who only dabbles in beginner hacking with Keyloggers and RATs I like it when the program has a little explanation over what each feature does but upon initial inspection this does not seem to be the case. It would be nice if you had a picture for what the error message would look like, for example as well. That being said it is easy to navigate to the builder and the instructions aren't too hard to follow so the ease of use still does get a good score, I would just like to see explanations about every feature. I'm sure this will be implemented soon, however as it really is just polishing touches.

Overall (9.5/10):

Luckily noobs like me shouldn't negatively impact the rating of a program, so even though personally I would like to see it be a bit easier to use, the combination of the user interface, along with the price, along with the stub being crypted on download puts this leagues above the rest. I mean it's a jar file which is usable on Mac, Linux and Windows so really there is nothing more you could want. Good job Maxim, the hype certainly was worth it.

Java allows for it to be spread on more platforms which is a plus, but .jar is a hard extension to spread with in my opinion. Obviously the persons machine is dependent on java to run the logger.

The online interface is really nice, it shows you a list of connected clients.

Security (8/10)

jLog has nice security features such as encrypting the users information but also your login is protected. I noticed when I tried to login via my VPN it asked to verify my identity via email.

Price (8/10)

See 40 USD helps keep it fuded for longer but I think its currently worth 30 USD.

Usability (10/10)

Simple and easy to use, nothing is complicated.

Overall (8.5/10)

Really nice keylogger I've nothing really to complain about, you can tell a lot of work went into this project. Lifetime is also a steal because I know the developer is bringing out new content to jLogger soon.

Honestly this is probably the best keylogger on HackForums currently. I wish these guys the best of luck with their sales. :)

(Mar 10, 2017 04:28 PM)Sparkfear Wrote: CITE User Interface (10/10):

The interface has a nice dark theme, which I love and it is overall very smooth.

Excellent overview of statics, stubs and overall everything is easy to find.

Price (9/10):

Normally I'm always sketchy when people offer a lifetime product, but this Keylogger has potential. I believe this will probably become even better over time as I don't see the developers care only about money, but rather delivering an excellent product.

Ease of use (10/10):

As I mentioned earlier, the interface is beautiful and easy to use.

Building a stub is as easy as creating a Facebook account, anyone can do it.

Overall (10/10):

I obtained this keylogger by winning the giveaway contest Maxim held. As someone who just won the giveaway, I still received excellent support when the site was under maintenance and status updates. I've even been able to help the dev with a few issues and he has been a great guy about showing me his project in exchange.

TL;dr: Great keylogger, fast and very professional support.

Simple and easy to use web-panel; makes it easy to display my stats, users, users' location, and more!

Price (8/10):

For cross-platform the price matches the keylogger perfectly.

Ease of use (10/10):

From making an account, to even making a stub it was too easy!

Overall (9/10):

Amazing, simplistic, easy to use, supportive staff; This is a product that I love already.

(Mar 3, 2017 05:17 PM)Blackness Wrote: CITE User Interface (10/10):

The User Interface is extremely user friendly and easy to use. Users with beginner knowledge will easily be able to use the product successfully!

Price (10/10):

For such a high quality product the price is very fair.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy. Just as easy as using google if you ask me.

Overall (10/10):

Overall the product is solid, you can create your stub online and download it straight away. Definitely the best logger I've used! Highly recommend.

(Mar 5, 2017 11:37 AM)Malicious Intent Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) User Interface (10/10):

User friendly web panel with nice features like world map and stats. Very clean and professional design. Great thing about this tool is that you can use it anywhere and anytime.. none of that netseal bs. Login is fairly advanced and its asking for confirmation if you login from different network which is nice security feature.

Price (10/10):

I think the price is accurate for the quality of this product. Also it will keep idiots at bay so the tool won't get saturated too quick.

Ease of use (10/10):

Very easy to use. Web panel with descriptions below the options. Anyone should be able to easily navigate and get the job done.

Overall (10/10):

Very happy with this product. Owners are trustworthy and very honest. I was waiting for the release since the first mention of this tool and i have to say it was worth the wait. Good luck!

Hey,

Yes, I guess that can work. However, I do not feel like recommending my keylogger to be used on a computer you do not are authorized to use. Pretty much why I am not recommending jLog to you.

Hopefully you can understand.

1. Yes, it should grab all keys from that type of keyboard.
 2. I can't tell you whether it will work with rubber ducky since its not related to jLog. Besides, we never answer to such questions since we don't want to get involved in any unknown activities.
 3. Yes, you can install one stub on many computers. Your license will cover the product so you will be able to build unlimited stubs as well.

Hope you got everything you needed!
