Interview - M?xim \(Click to View\)

Enterpriser: M?xim, welcome to the weekly news interview. Before we get started, would you like to make any shout outs?

M?xim: Thank you Enterpriser, and yes. I'd like to give Novica and iHydra a shout out, been working with them for the last couple of days.

Enterpriser: Great! I see that you are starting up Graphic of the Month. Tell us a bit about that?

M?xim: Yes, together with the two other. It is something that we had been thinking about for a while. We have always had an interest in the GFX forum on Hack Forums and felt like the Graphic Battles section could use some love. There are so many talented graphic artists on Hack Forums that we think will enjoy all the upcoming battles. So I sent the proposed Idea to Omniscient and prayed for to not get repkilled. It worked out, and now we are glad to have it up running, the first battle will take place in February.

Enterpriser: I'm assuming you do graphics yourself? How is that going for you?

M?xim: Indeed, I used to have my service up running, but all my focus must on school. I occasionally do some orders here and there when old clients want to have something done; that is about it.

Enterpriser: Ah I see. You're in college? If so, what are you majoring in?

M?xim: Not yet, but soon. I am in High School studying science, only a few months left before graduation. In Swedish, we call it "teknikvetenskap" which poorly translated is "technical science", where we study mathematics, programming, web dev and such to prepare for higher education.

Enterpriser: You're Swedish? Cool! I see that you joined in 2016, what's your view point on the graphic's section on Hack Forums?

M?xim: Born and raised, yes :) For me, it is the best place on Hack Forums. You see a lot of new people posting their previous work in RMG and asking for feedback, people you have never seen before and some of them surprises you with unique work. It is an important part of HF.

Enterpriser: Do you plan on doing GFX as a career at one point of your life or will it always remain a hobby?

M?xim: I am only a graphic hobbyist, and I will forever remain as such. That is something that I have always been sure about. I want to follow the footsteps of my father and become an engineer, but I know that I will always have use of what I have learnt from HF when it comes to GFX.

Enterpriser: I see, I see. If there was one thing you had to change about the graphic's section of Hack Forums, what would be that one thing?

M?xim: If it is anything, it would be something that Novica once told me about. He had an idea about merging 'GFX Contests' with the 'Graphics Market'. All threads in 'GFX Contests' and paid requests and such should belong in the marketplace, not only that, all user groups who are looking for graphics done, posts in the marketplace and not in 'GFX Contests', even though they are contests.

Enterpriser: A merge with those two sections would be great. To wrap things up here, tell us your honest opinion about Hack Forums in general?

M?xim: My honest opinion... We could not ask for a better way to run HF. I don't know if there are many larger forums than HF, but I know that many other aren't growing with 1000 members a day. And there's a reason that we are growing so much. Great leadership.

Enterpriser: That is indeed true. Our forum is one of a kind! I thank you for your time. Is there anything you would like to tell us before I head off?

M?xim: All good, thank you as well Enterpriser, and thanks to the rest of the HFNT. I enjoy the read every week.

Another Week, Another Edition

Thankse for reading, hope you enjoyed the edition. Keep a lookout for a new special edition this Friday or Saturday!

Japanese Firm Considering Three-Day Weekend

Japan has recently started pressuring companies into abandoning the practice of having employees work long hours. After a female employee committed suicide from working more than 100 hours of overtime at Mitsubishi Electric Corp in a month, prosecutors began reviewing the company to see if many of its employees have fallen victim to overworking. In response to the criticism, Mitsubishi says it will “deal sincerely with the matter.” A spokesman for Japan’s labor ministry said the ministry will continue to take a firm stance against long work hours. In addition, this coming February, the government of Japan and some Japanese business groups will launch a “Premium Friday” campaign which encourages companies to let their workers leave early on the last Friday of every month. Russia Considers ban of Cigarette Sales to Anyone Born After 2015

Plans were recently unveiled by the Russian health ministry to ban the sale of cigarettes to anyone born after 2015. If this plan is to go through, it will make Russia the first country to have such a stringent anti-tobacco stance. Nikolai Gerasimenko, a member of the Russian parliament’s health committee, believes the move is “ideologically correct.” Even with the concerns that it could lead to a black market for cigarettes, the policy is being considered. The most recent report shows that 31% of the Russian population smokes. .>>Source

El Salvador has one day Without Homicide

El Salvador is considered one of the deadliest countries in the world. Since January of 2015, a homicide has been recorded in the country every day. However, according to the national civil police commissioner, no murders were reported on January 10, 2017. Killings peaked in the gang-plagued country at 104 per 100,000 residents in 2015, which was the highest rate for any country not in open war at the time. Homicide rates declined by 20% in 2016, but the country is still considered one of the most violent countries in the world at 81.2 murders per 100,000 residents. .>>Source

U.S. Army to Develop Biodegradable Bullets

When many of us think pollution or litter, we usually think of things such as candy wrappers, trash, or even landfills harming the environment. An overlooked contributor to environmental pollution and litter, is the enormous amount of bullets used by the U.S. Army and other armies, especially in training zones. While these would both be difficult and costly to effectively clean up, the U.S. Army thinks they have what may be a good solution - make the bullets biodegradable. The U.S. Army has requested proposals to contractors for a plan for the bullet, and the contractor who they pick will develop the bullet. The bullets will range from 40 millimeters to 120 millimeters in size, the latter which is used in tanks. They will not only be biodegradable, but will also germinate the soil after months of being in the ground, essentially replacing the shell with a plant. The U.S. Army will choose a contractor to begin the project on February 8.

Razer's Triple Monitor Laptop Prototypes Stolen From CES

At a convention as enormous and well known as the Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas, you would think manufacturer security would be almost spotless, considering the cost and importance of the items show at the event. This security has been put into question this week, after gaming-oriented tech manufacturer Razer had both of their prototypes for a never before seen laptop design. The laptops in question were gaming laptops featuring three 4K monitors each, something that has not yet been seen in portable gaming. "It is cheating, and cheating doesn't sit well with us. Anyone who would do this clearly isn't very smart," said Razer's CEO Ming-Liang Tan. Razer is offering $25,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any connected to the crime.

Chrysler Caught Cheating Emissions Tests

Following in the footsteps of Volkswagen, the EPA has discovered that much like Volkswagen did last year, Chrysler has cheated their emissions tests, breaking the Clean Air Act. The EPA insists the Chrysler allegedly changed emissions data on some of its diesel vehicles, specifically the 2014-2016 Jeep Grand Cherokee, and Dodge Ram diesel trucks, to pass emissions requirements. Unlike German manufacturer Volkswagen, Chrysler's emissions cheating is on a much smaller scale, with the EPA estimating that around 100,000 vehicles cheated the emissions tests. Chrysler, formerly known as Fiat-Chrysler of America, is claiming that they have not cheated the tests, despite what appears to be solid evidence. If the claim is true, Chrysler will most likely be hit with a variety of class-action lawsuits.

Hacker Claims They are Able to Get Private Phone Numbers from Facebook

While it's been known that it's possible to get a phone number off of Facebook when someone doesn't lock down security, a security researcher claims there is a way to get numbers that aren't set to public. When reported to Facebook, Facebook saw it as a feature--not a flaw. They directed him to their documentation about security settings. He warns that he'll go public with the exploit if Facebook doesn't fix the problem. .>>Source

New Gmail Phishing Page is Very Convincing

Seriously, don't fall for it. --- A new Gmail phishing scam is so convincing and effective that even the tech-savvy can be tricked into giving hackers their Google Account credentials. The attackers compromise a Gmail account, and then start going through the inbox to launch a secondary attack to pass it on. They use previous attachments sent to contacts, screenshot it, and include it in a reply to the target. The attachment is disguised as a PDF with the thumbnail of the attachment. When clicked, the target is directed to a phishing page disguised as a Google sign-in page. It even contains the accounts.google.com subdomain, which is enough to fool majority of people. Trump Appoints Cyber Security Adviser Whose Website is Poorly Secured

Donald Trump nominated New York City's former mayor, Rodolph W. Giuliani, as an adviser on cyber security. Giuliani is the CEO of security consulting firm Giuliani Partners. Ironically, the firm's website is very insecure--not only does it run an outdated version of Joomla (an open-source CMS), but the server runs a 10-year-old version of FreeBSD. However, as drama over this rises, Security Researcher Robert Graham said that Giuliani didn't build the site himself and, "there's nothing on Giuliani's server worth hacking...all this tells us is that Verio/NTT.net is a crappy hosting provider, not that Giuliani has done anything wrong." Great addition like always, thank you :)

Dar?k - January 19, 2017, 3:25 am

Great edition! Congrats Minimalist and Eagle 95 on becoming staff. :)

LastSession - January 19, 2017, 3:27 am

Bugs Bunny isn't closed though?

J. McCarthy - January 19, 2017, 7:19 am

Thanks for both the thread shoutouts guys much appreciated

You've inspired me to write a new tutorial today!

I really enjoyed reading this edition even though it was my first one I have read so far. Keep it up with the great content!

Mom - January 19, 2017, 9:09 am

Amazing news edition, as always.

Great read.

xFaMouS - January 19, 2017, 7:11 pm

Yet another great addition. Keep up the good work, Miss the old team though:\

SIM-403479 - January 20, 2017, 1:05 am

Decent weekly news announced this week.

Congratulations to the new staff members.

Cool looking battle stations you guys have.

Prophett - January 20, 2017, 1:10 am

Enjoyable read, good work guys.

I always forgot to report my contributions and achievements so I'll definitely do that next time.

ra1d - January 20, 2017, 10:37 am

Holy shit, what a setup Shay has :O

Eagerkid - January 20, 2017, 11:39 am

Another good edition, glad I was able to read

MeIT3d - January 20, 2017, 11:46 am ahhh, I missed the battle stations. Haven't seen them in forever.

Thank you amigo <3

Captain Steve Rogers - January 23, 2017, 4:50 am

Again missed a edition :(

Adam make a script for cell please.

Nice edition btw, good work team!

Ghost1524 - January 25, 2017, 5:08 pm

Great edition, appreciate your effort to write this!
Congratz to Eagle and Min on becoming Staff.
