Thread: Rage Gaming Garry's Mod Community guaranteed \$500+ month

Kicking - January 19, 2017, 6:51 pm

I am selling my gmod community that has 2300+ Steam group members

<http://steamcommunity.com/groups/RageGamingUSA>

This community includes 2 servers Prop Hunt (Almost 3 or 4 years old) and Murder (almost 2 years old) that are based in Texas

Prop hunt on a usual day has a full server usually when school ends for the day.

Murder is usually half full or full when school lets out for the day

Donations are around $500+ a month I have even got $2000 a month when I pushed really hard for donations.

What you have to do if you want to keep the community running;

1. Add and remove maps at community's request
2. Add and remove models at community's request
3. Pay for servers when payments are due (Prophunt is $275.30 a year, you could change Prop Hunt to a monthly plan, but it may cost extra through NFO! and Murder is $18 a month)
4. Basically if anything needs done, the staff will talk to you about it!

Staff hiring is taken care of by the current staff members

Training of new staff members is taken care of by the current staff members

What you get;

1. Both server transferred to you on NFO
2. Webhosting and domain
3. All Addons
4. All website files
- 4.5. Discord community server ownership
5. Support for changing and adding stuff.
6. Scriptfodder addons that I purchased (will get them transferred to your scriptfodder account if I can)
7. Custom addons that I have had made
8. All of my staff members that do not require a pay (Server Owner, Community Managers, Server Managers) they know how to do everything, but they don't have access to FTP
9. A playerbase, so you do not have to spend time creating your own servers and hoping people get on. Because these servers are already popular!
10. I will also pay for 1 month of murder and 1 year of prop hunt on purchase
11. I will offer you full support until you understand everything!

Reason I am selling this community because I do not have time to get on anymore and manage stuff anymore, even though the profits have been SUPER nice in the 4 years I have been doing this. It just gets tiring and stressful, I have a 12 hour job and I simply can't find the time like I used to when I first started doing this. (And I cant save money worth a shit, and so I am always spending my donation money even though I have server bills to pay for xD)

Mr Whiskey - January 19, 2017, 7:51 pm

Does nobody in your current staff want to buy it off you? They seem like the best bet in terms of keeping the server alive.

Yes you could do this with your server for free.

But you're buying ownership of a community that is already fully ready and get's plenty of donations.

Sure spend 4 years getting to where my servers are, and you're good. And you'll end up spending quite a bit of money and having a chance to get no donations in for your time.

But you are completely right, just go ahead and get your servers up and running and come back when you get about $500/month in donations.

How much current role do you have in the server? Are you like on daily or just sometimes or barely ever? Do you do a lot of maintenance or any like additional requirements and stipulations to owning this?

I am rarely on. I have a server Owner that texts me if anything needs to be done.

Such as;

A model no longer works

A map needs to be removed

Someone donates for a Co-Owner rank and needs a model uploaded

Anti-Cheat needs to be updated

A plugin needs to be updated

And that is basically and most of that stuff I can do from FTP without having to get on.

Fascinating to see this for sale as I currently run a Garry's Mod Community and understand how to manage and keep a community going.

From taking a look at your game tracker, the servers aren't ranked high, but I assume that's more of the limited player slots of the game modes themselves that which cause that but after looking the players you get from a weekly standpoint it seems you get your high but then crash down at certain period in day/night which isn't the best..

3. Pay for servers when payments are due (Prophunt is $275.30 a year, you could change Prop Hunt to a monthly plan, but it may cost extra through NFO! and Murder is $18 a month)

So you purchased gameservers vs dedicated servers? If so how's the performance on the gamemodes?

For only a 30 player slot, the game server handles very well. I rarely get any CPU overloads and when I do they only last a few seconds.

And as for Murder, I dont really get that many either.

And for Prop Hunt specifically (Which get's the most donations) we have the EXP system and some Prop and Taunt menus (Which dont look good, but people love them)

And also I would like to focus on the high and low points of the day, most of the people who play on my servers are going to be from Texas as it is Texas based, and most are kids, these kids go to school around 6-7 AM and do not get home until around 3-5 PM so you could probably see why there are high and lows. As for the server ranking, I have never been keen on promoting the servers so I never really got a TON of people to come join on a full daily basis which kinda shows why PH is only ranked around 400 (Which imo 400 out of all servers is kinda good, even if you narrow it down to just PH servers, it'd be a lot higher)

I had a developer, but he moved on to bigger things that would make him more money.

I personally think my servers are good where they stand, but I am sure any new person who owned my servers could find room for improvement as there always is more room.

And more staff are hired every week.
My Co-Owner is okay with the owner change and is willing to help out even when I am gone. That means hiring new staff and training them.

$200 a month x 12 months = $2400
11% Return a month

I understand most people don't have this $ but i just wanted to break out the math
Be sure to deduct the server costs monthly ($40 a month rounded up for both servers)
Just going to be completely open and honest with everyone, as they should know beforehand what they're getting into.

Exactly so after 10 months you make your money back. Its a gmod server not a shop so thats way too slow, not forgetting the work you have to put in to keep it going. Most people prefer to pay nothing and let their server get popular after 10 months

At least if he had a darkrp server it would be much more attractive

That's at $200/month, but like I said, I have never gotten under &500/month, so that's 4 months and your money is made back. Then it's just pure profit after that. And work is minimal, servers are where they need to be, besides a few map uploads and deleteions here and there and adding some models every now and then. You don't have to do much work at all.

Still looking for a buyer. Needs to be gone by February 1st. Otherwise it'll be shut down.

I'm sorry op but the title is bothering me. There's a slight typo - guaranteed

GL selling it, it seems pretty promising for the buyer

Quote:What you have to do if you want to keep the community running;

1. Add and remove maps at community's request
2. Add and remove models at community's request
3. Pay for servers when payments are due (Prophunt is $275.30 a year, you could change Prop Hunt to a monthly plan, but it may cost extra through NFO! and Murder is $18 a month)
4. Basically if anything needs done, the staff will talk to you about it!

Quote:Staff hiring is taken care of by the current staff members

Training of new staff members is taken care of by the current staff members

If other staff members can handle hiring and so on and you have a co-owner, couldn't you just have the co-owner do the 4 things you basically need to keep the server going?

I do not have time to get on and upload the maps and models and what not. Yes you still should get on and make sure everything is okay with the community and it's not that I can't run it. I am just ready to move on with everything. It's like selling a gaming computer because you got a new one. It's just time to move on with things and let someone else do it.

And yes it still makes money, but like I said. I can't save money worth a shit. And so when I pay for server bills I usually barely have enough money to pay for it and then I stay empty once I do pay for them because I do not put money aside for things. Once I have money I usually always try to spend it on something or other.

I do not have enough trust for someone whos not paying for the server to allow them access to my FTP, they could easily steal my addons and sell them, or create their own community. I have had it happen before when I first started, I lost all of my trust for them.

So why do you have them as a co-owner in the first place?

To make sure all of the lower staff are doing their jobs. To make sure everything is running smoothly.

Co-Owners are not here for adding stuff to the servers, that's my job.

That sounds like head admin job not co-owner. This just isnt adding up.

I checked and your servers were empty twice a day, unpopular game modes, not worth 1.8k.

I offer you $500 for this

They could be considered an Admin but I have multiple ranks and I chose the highest to be co-owner, whether or not other servers have different rank names that is what I chose mine to be. Denied your offer.

Well good luck because you wont be getting any higher offers on serious buyers

Past 7 days of players, it hasn't been completely dead but it dies down a bit.

Still gets a good amount of money in donations within the last week.

See the ones most active are the ones who donate, it's not about them being super active, it's about how much donations I am getting. Money is to be made. Alls it needs is a bit of advertisement and improvements and players will start coming. I just don't know what else to change the make the server more attractive for people looking for a server.
