Thank you mate, Its a 7.0L engine rated at 505 HP. I have put some mods on and put it on a chassis DYNO and it reads around 480 WHP/ 470 TQ

I sold my first one because I got a new job that I had to commute about 100 miles a day. I was spending about $500 a month in fuel so I decided to get a 2016 Subaru WRX. I did not like the Subaru very much at all, got a new job only 10 miles away so I traded in the Subaru for the corvette.

Thanks man, It was my dream car and I ended up getting it much sooner than anticipated. Having this car has helped me get jobs, and meet lots of great people.

I purchased with 20k miles. I have another car, but I gave it to my brother to use. I'm not worried about miles or abuse ;). I race it, let it sit in the rain, and drive it everywhere. I might as well enjoy it

MeltyNet - January 21, 2017, 12:22 pm

Shouldve got a Holden VF / Chevy SS and done some upgrades to it. Or even a Pontiac G8 which was the Holden VE.

Sweet corvette tho

"Not putting miles on your car for better resell" is like not fucking your girlfriend so she's tight for the next guy.

Congrats on your car man, and ride it to hell and have a fun ass time with it, you surely deserve it.

True, I usually never mess with anything appearance wise, I just do performance upgrades.

Thanks everyone

No it's like conserving her value for when you trade her in for a better one

You idiot! I just bought a 2017 WRX STI Limited Edition a few weeks ago, and I AM LOVING IT!!!
This is the best car I have ever owned, interior is gorgeous. Why did you not like your WRX? The resale value on them is amazing as well.

Because they blow more turbos than hookers do dicks

They are reliable, I did my research before dropping 35k. I am hoping the turbo will last at least 150k. Lol

After coming from a 500 WHP V8, it wasn't comparable. I especially missed the torque and handling of the corvette.

Not even a month of owning the WRX I spent over 4k in performance upgrades to only gain like 30 HP or so. If i spent that same 4k on this car, I could gain around 70whp or so.

I paid 40k for mine and I feel like its waaaaay more bang for the buck. Plus, this motor here can handle up to around 800 WHP before having to upgrade to forged internals.

No, just long-tube headers, intake, and tune.

Heads/Cam coming soon which will put me in the 550-560 range.

My brother has a 2004 C5 that is supercharged that went 212MPH when he tested it at Cordova. I never asked how much HP his had, but I see why you like corvettes more, speed, right?

Well, I used to be a hardcore JDM fan, spent 10k on a honda I had only to get 200 WHP out of it. I then moved on to a GM v8 and was blown away by how powerful, and reliable the were. Loved the fact that you could just throw nitrous, boost, or whatever on them and don't have to worry about blowing the motor on stock internals. I never had to mess with the fuel system or clutch either. Just tires

I guess that, and the torque.

You coulda gotten a much newer one if you wanted to.

Well not really local, its 89 miles from me, but still in my state.

I could've, but I wanted the Z06, it weighs less and has the 7.0 Liter LS7 505HP versus the 6.2L LS3 436HP motor.

Search for the Z06 Model.

It goes Base C6-> C6 Z51(Suspension upgrades) -> Grandsport -> Z06 -> Zr1
