Thread: Those of you closed or limited from paypal, How do you continue to do business?

Cavalier - January 22, 2017, 10:50 pm

Hey guys,

Recently my paypal was closed and I was making a good amount of money a month. Now I'm not making shit. I would like to know what you guys did personally when you got shutdown by paypal. Did you make a new account? Do some method? Get unlimited? Unclosed? Explain. Thanks haha

I emailed the owner with vivid threats of what I was going to do to his wife if he didn't unlimit me. I got unlimited the next day.

My PayPal was recently permanently limited, about 2 weeks ago. I gave them a quick call to explain my situation, because their accusation was false and I did nothing against their ToS. After a day or so, I got unlimited. If you weren't doing anything illegal or against ToS, I'm sure you can open up your PayPal again, but if not - either you make a stealth or stick to other payment options like Skrill, 2CO, or BTC.

Depending on what you were using it for, there are a multitude of other methods via which people can pay.

Bitcoin
Google Checkout
Etc

I usually open simply a new PayPal Account.

I don't know how you get through to someone in limitations who doesn't act moody or treats you like a criminal.
