The Computer Fraud and Abuse Act

In 1984, the United States Congress adopted the latter "new phenomenon" view and enacted the Counterfeit Access Device and Computer Fraud and Abuse Act. This statute, which is codified at 18 U.S.C. 1030 , made a clear statement to the law enforcement community and to computer owners and users about legal conduct in the realm of computers. The Act prohibited the following behavior:

To knowingly access a computer without authorization, or in excess of authorization, in order to obtain classified United States defense or foreign relations information with the intent to harm the United States or benefit a foreign nation.

To obtain information, via unauthorized access, from the financial records of a financial institution or from any protected computer if the conduct involves interstate or foreign communication.

To access a computer to use, destroy, modify, or disclose information found in a "federal interest" computer system, as well as to prevent authorized use of any computer used for government business if the usage interferes with government activities.

To knowingly and with the intent to defraud participate in the trafficking of passwords or similar information through which computers can be accessed without authorization.

This entire situation is likely fake just so he can boost his views. Thes apart of the Keemstar community. He is even in the same network as Keemstar. So I would suggest taking everything he says with doubt.

Thanks for the rep, must be very sad to be you.

Should've used a VPN...

Unfortunate he has to milk you for views and publicity, not that it'll really affect you as such. Still a shame
