

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: I never cry at anime

kfire - January 26, 2017, 1:24 pm

Same goes for movies, what is wrong with me? I hope this doesn't sound like I'm trying to act though but I just can't. Kinda wish I did so I could get more emersed into the series/movie.

Does anyone else have this "problem"?

Maybe I'm just a cold-hearted psycho with no emotions.?

kfire - January 26, 2017, 2:31 pm

Oh god, don't remind me of Danganronpa ?

Kuri - January 26, 2017, 4:30 pm

Movies don't make me cry but some anime's sure do haha

VA Tragedy - January 26, 2017, 4:30 pm

I have never cried over an anime, however watching The Fountain on LSD did bring tears to my eyes. My girlfriend balls her eyes out over movies and anime lol i love it.

Nerdi - January 26, 2017, 5:31 pm

I used to never cry. Now I'm in my 20s and can easily get tearful from a movie or show. I think it has to do with your security as a human, view of crying, and openness to emotion. You don't have to be against crying consciously to subconsciously stop yourself from crying.

?Adroit - January 26, 2017, 5:46 pm

(Jan 26, 2017 05:30 PM)VA Tragedy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) My girlfriend balls her eyes out over movies and anime lol i love it.

You sick little sadist piece of sh

lol i'm joking

=

Yeah I don't cry at stuff but tears do come out, only less than a handful of times though, and that's not a lot since I've watched around 50 animes

Only one I distinctly remember tearing up is Angel Beats

VA Tragedy - January 26, 2017, 6:27 pm

(Jan 26, 2017 06:46 PM)?Adroit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You sick little sadist piece of sh

lol i'm joking

=

Yeah I don't cry at stuff but tears do come out, only less than a handful of times though, and that's not a lot since I've watched around 50 animes

Only one I distinctly remember tearing up is Angel Beats

Whenever I mention Clannad or King Kong (the movie) she immediately tries to change the subject because the feels start rolling in!

Kashira - January 26, 2017, 10:28 pm

I've cried over manga, well more so "teared up". Besides that I don't recall ever crying to an actual anime or show? Maybe I'm just a sociopath. =P

Caliban - January 26, 2017, 11:27 pm

I usually also don't cry during anime/movies (especially if it's mindless melodrama), but I do get chills and teary sometimes if the story and the music is good there are one or two movies/anime where I have to admit... I cried myself to sleep when I finished them LOL (I was all alone tho so who gives a fuck)

OP I don't think you are a psycho/sociopath, probably you just got autism or the emotional intelligence of a fish :)

kfire - January 27, 2017, 12:06 am

(Jan 27, 2017 12:27 AM)Caliban Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) OP I don't think you are a psycho/sociopath, probably you just got autism or the emotional intelligence of a fish :)
Ouch.

?exy - January 27, 2017, 3:27 am

I normally don't ever tear as well when I'm watching a show/movie or anime or something, but as an exception I cried once for an anime.

If I remember correctly I was crying because of Jiraiya's death in Shippuden lol haha

LastSession - January 27, 2017, 3:31 am

I mean watching Animes in general is gay enough but crying while watching it.. ?

Bicc - January 28, 2017, 11:20 pm

(Jan 26, 2017 02:30 PM)Cute Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've never cried at an Anime/TV show either. Some people do and some just don't, it's weird. Shows have made me sad (*cough*danganronpa*cough*) but I've never found myself crying at them. I guess different people just react differently.
dw man danganronpa got me too ?

fkoffcheater - January 31, 2017, 9:07 pm

I've cried at my fair share of anime but there have probably been only two occasions I've cried over a movie. Maybe it's because I never watch them.

oreosky - February 21, 2017, 4:21 am

I almost never cry from daily stuff, but cry all the time from movies, books and TV

IsuraAn - February 22, 2017, 6:35 pm

I just cried with CLANNAD

Argyl - February 22, 2017, 8:54 pm

Movies kinda can be a tear jerker. But I mean like anime just makes me into a little baby. Plastic Memories still haunts me along with some other ones.

battalgiaTr - February 25, 2017, 12:13 am

I too mostly take that approach, however can't hold it to the end, if the story is emotional enough.

I remember Angel Beats, although it's not that sad, but the ending is as emotionally touching as it can be, I did leak a few tears at the ending song -it was amazing, Regardless of the show having a very vague story, the ending + songs made it worth the time.

Trivexlium - February 25, 2017, 4:28 am

(Jan 26, 2017 02:30 PM)Cute Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've never cried at an Anime/TV show either. Some people do and some just don't, it's weird. Shows have made me sad (*cough*danganronpa*cough*) but I've never found myself crying at them. I guess different people just react differently.

Man I was most upset with Kirigiri :(?

Spoiler \(Click to View\)