

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Good resources for learning how to code?

Sywren - January 26, 2017, 3:45 pm

I'm trying to learn to code, but I don't know any good resources for learning. Can someone help me out? thanks

Ancestral - January 26, 2017, 3:46 pm

What are you trying to learn?

There's lots of different coding languages. Just depends on what you want to do with them.

Sywren - January 26, 2017, 3:46 pm

(Jan 26, 2017 04:46 PM)Zetrex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What are you trying to learn?

There's lots of different coding languages. Just depends on what you want to do with them.
mostly javascript and jquery

Ancestral - January 26, 2017, 3:48 pm

(Jan 26, 2017 04:46 PM)Sywren Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) mostly javascript and jquery

I regularly watch a YouTube channel that does JS. It's quite entertaining with his challenges. He explains each line.

<https://www.youtube.com/user/shiffman/>

pinarofl - January 26, 2017, 6:03 pm

My approach would be the following

Go to the below website once it is up and work through the Beginner and Intermediate side of things and see how you go

Google the following

HTMLdogs and you will see an option for it on the first page and first link, i cant link you anything as i am a new user but yeah

It is down as of right now but it should be back up soon.

or go to w3schools (google it) that is a great place to start aswell

Hope that helps