Thread: how do I contribute to the site?

fogstone - January 28, 2017, 12:52 am

So I'm asking lots of questions on here and I'm feeling guilty because I don't know what I can do to help others on this site. I obviously need to gain some more networking and coding skills. But is there anything I can realistically do to help people on the site short term?

Obviously, I'm not going to say that I'm mad at myself, just that I want to be able to contribute and help out.

Just interact within the community, Comment on peoples threads, get to know others pretty simple.

Could always host a contest or say you are a graphics designer offer some free graphics... just an example.

Talk to others and be friendly.

Be friendly and helpful.

Use some of your skills to sell stuff like Graphic Designs and/or other services.

There's quite a bit you can do.

Make a monetary contribution to this site and you will be looked upon greatly. Go to the Buy Awards page, select the "Grand Amethyst" option, and scroll to the bottom where it says "Input UID for gifting" and put in the secret code 3202613. After you pay the $1,000 you will be known as a great contributor.

I may do something and write a tutorial on how to help the site if one does not know hacking yet.

Find out a sub-forum section which suits you and provide the answers for people which ask questions there.
