Charlatano

Cheating is but a lifestyle

From the creators of Abendigo comes a brand new approach to cheating-- Charlatano can be completely stream-proof, hiding the fact that you're cheating while streaming, and completely bypasses SMAC server-sided anticheat as well as FacelT's modified SMAC. Turning off visuals or using a screenshot blocker (like hypervisor-powered protection against screenshots in Kaspersky) can potentially allow you to play on leagues like ESEA for weeks or months. Charlatano uses strong humanizing settings that bring the public the next step in free and open-source cheating software!

Available FeaturesAlways-on all-weapon smooth recoil control system

Aim bot with humanized aim paths

Low-FOV "perfect aim" (non-silent)

Aim assistance mode for professional and high-level players

FOV bone trigger bot

Reduced flash

Stream-proof OpenGL overlay with box and skeleton ESP

Glow ESP (not stream-proof)

Humanized bunny hop using scroll input

How exactly is this a; "a brand new approach to cheating" when quite a number of cheats support all your features including stream-proof visuals? lol

FunctionDev - January 28, 2017, 2:13 am

Wasn't Abendigo written in Kotlin? Or am I confusing it with something else

What you read is an implicit splice or fault, which is done to coordinate main clauses not connected by a conjunction, without a comma. In other words, you should read the sentence in its entirety; "From the creators of Abendigo comes a brand new approach to cheating"-- as in, it is a brand new approach to cheating from the creators of Abendigo, which is not a comparison between this cheat (the subject) and other cheats.

That's correct, and Charlatano is written completely in Kotlin as well.

Cuz while you've been "bypassing VAC" for the past 3 years getting detected every few months, I've put out cheats that last over a year with 500x your userbase with zero protection, all the while being completely free and open-source.

Ken M - January 28, 2017, 5:28 am

Ignore the haters that all made your java cheat into a meme, I love the fact that you do this. It helps people who just start coding understand how to develop a cheat and get some ideas by being able to look at an open source already made cheat. Great tool for people to learn from! Keep it up :D

Jire - February 27, 2017, 2:40 pm

Update 0.9.6-hotfix

New settings design uses set rather than definitions

Plugin reloading (`reload` command)

Corrected mouse delta calculation for perfect aim (fixes overshooting with perfect aim)

Improved default settings

Glow ESP no longer has flicker from new redesigned iteration

Added admin rights support

Proper nil bomb carrier check

Removed all usage of Java's `Robot`, instead uses native `mouse_event` in all scripts

Upgraded to Arrowhead 1.3.1

Upgraded to Kotlin 1.1 RC and Java 8 stdlib

Many areas of code cleanups

Corrected x4 aim multiplier

Added `settings` to source roots

Renamed `Trigger` to `BoneTrigger`

Improved JSR223 script for `Dojo`

Compiled for Java 6 target (also uses `kotlin-stdlib` rather than `kotlin-stdlib-jre8`)

There is no bigger proof than being able to use it yourself. You can literally build the cheat today, disable visuals, and use it on ESEA and last months without being banned.

Don't blame your ban from other cheats on Abendigo, Abendigo lasted over a year with the public signature, and is still undetected to this day if you change it a little.

Who's more incompetent? The guy running a paid cheat with "inside and out" knowledge about every anti-cheat, getting detected every 2 months.. or the guy making a free open-source cheat in his spare time lasting on League ACs and having year or longer undetection times? ?

You can last up to a few months on ESEA if you disable all visuals and use path aim, be sure to avoid excessive score to avoid being flagged for manual scan, and that's all. Oh yeah and change directory name and script title as well as the main JAR file name, enjoy ?

A free cheat open to the public will always get detected eventually. And then the thoughts that this will work on ESEA is hilarious.

Charlatano is by one of the most actively used CS:GO cheats, by estimation over 10000 active users (2x larger than Aimware).
A big difference is of course that Aimware costs money while my work is free, so it is by no means comparable to think that my cheat is "better" than paid cheats, just that more people are using it than are many of the largest paid cheats.

Nearly 500 unique new users per week with no real advertising/promotion, of course like I said the cheat is completely free so it's a lot easier to get users.. but regardless it has a huge active userbase. Still UD, been using it for a while, it's actually pretty good, don't know why all the hate, it's open source! Give the guy a break.... and instead of trashing try to help make it better by contributing! A lot of public providers that cost money get VAC'ed more than this open-source cheat that's freely available, at least give credit where credit is due, it might not be the best, and he might be pulling usage numbers out of his ass, but still it's a big user base, fully open source, and still UD after years.
