Thread: Work Holiday Party + Open Bar = Nasty Black Eye... UPDATE: Almost Gone!

Steve - February 5, 2017, 10:53 pm

So I work as a server and one of my restaurants had their annual holiday party last Sunday. I was pretty excited for this since I love my job and my coworkers, and also because the party was open bar for us, so naturally I just dropped a $20 in the tip jar for the bartenders who volunteered to make us drinks and proceeded to have as many free drinks as I wanted to.

Don't get me wrong, I started off slow and paced myself, but the party went from 8pm to 5 am, so a lot of alcohol was consumed. This is the only picture I have of the night, but the sums it up pretty well:

It was a great time! There was dancing, karaoke, drinks, beer pong, giant jenga, food, everything.

I was pacing myself pretty well, but since the party was so long I ended up blacking out... Needless to say I woke up to this on my face:

My friend drove me home at 5am and he said I was fine, so it must have happened between me walking from his car to my room, so I must have fallen or something.

All in all I'm glad it didn't happen at the party and I'm glad I didn't get into a fight, but holy shit I need to take it easy next time.

The worst part is I still have to serve tables so they ask me about it all the time...

Oh well, it's a nice wake up call. Have you guys ever gotten a black eye like this?

TLDR;

Free drinks at work holiday party. Blacked out and woke up with a black eye (see spoilers).

UPDATE: Almost gone!

Shit man, that feels weird. You probably hit into something, be glad that you didn't have fatal injuries on your eye.

It's almost gone now, but I've kind of been telling my tables different random stories. One of them made me come up with something interesting so I told them I saved my nephew from a bear attack.

I'll update OP soon with a pic on how its healed up haha.

Go grab a bouncer's ass in a club to get a matching one on the other side. Symmetry is very attractive if you pull it off right.
