No you don't have to play on the account. You can play on your own account as long as the account you purchased is primary on your PlayStation.

Sakuto - February 7, 2017, 8:07 am

Okay, I did not rightly understand, thought I had to let the original account as primary.

Do you have Mafia III, and if yes, how much?

Bought an account from him, everything went well, he was friendly, 3 days later the account was taken and I asked if he could replace it as a gesture of goodwill. He didn't reply me in 3 days, now I finally heard back and he showed a rather negative attitude. Instead of showing any form of empathy, saying sorry the account doesn't work anymore, etc. He just said read the TOS.

I would understand that an account doesn't get replaced after weeks of working but I didn't even get to play the game once (downloading 40GB+ takes some time). I never got to play the game and then dealing with such an attitude isn't the greatest customer service in my opinion.

I'm sure most of his accounts work fine over a longer period and I'm sure he deals good with customers when everything is fine but his attitude regarding negative feedback and his lack of showing empathy definitely don't make me buy any more accounts from him.

Regarding to this, the reason I haven't been replying was due to working straight throughout the last couple of days, notice of why I haven't been active on Hack Forums.

Unfortunately I only replace if the accounts don't work after I've given to you. Unfortunately on your behalf the account worked fine and the account allowed you to do everything.

As prior to that you said you was inactive for "3 days". My attitude hasn't been nothing, since you came threatening to write negative comments I could only try and reply to you as soon as possible.

I will no longer reply to this issue on my thread.

I never threat with negative comments, I said I will take my vouch back since you haven't replied and you have been posting on here the same day. I think this is quite a normal reaction when you buy something you get almost always an instant reply but when something negative occurs you don't reply in days.

I can just repeat myself, you have a lack of empathy and customer service skills are not the greatest either, at least when it comes to handling negative contacts. That's all I have to say, peace out.
