I also go to Comicon in London every year and help my girlfriend dress up. I've consumed more manga than a LOT of people, I have a huge collection at home from Naruto to Akira. I feel I can bring a darker side to the manga world, giving interesting news and showing some new stuff I find along the way. Love meeting similar people and have fun with our shared interests.

Why do you want to join Baka:I love discussing anime, and frequent the AA section, but I want to discuss anime/manga with people who watch more (and in my opinion better) anime than those in AA and Baka seems to have a member base that's ideal for that. Anime (and weeb-culture as a whole) takes up a massive portion of my free-time, and it's kind of disappointing to not have anyone to discuss it with. Aside from anime, I also just want more friends. Despite being here for over 2 years, I've hardly made any friends, and Baka again seems perfect for that especially seeing how diverse the member-base is. When it comes down to it, Baka is the ideal anime-group for me, and thanks for taking the time to consider me for it.

Note: Partially true story

It started when I saw his name at the bottom of my thread (<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5551030>). His presence, his thought, I could sense lingering on the thread. A few refreshes afterward, he was gone.

Questing to find him again without visiting his profile, I began stalking crypter threads as well as the anime section. Through the dark and stormy nights, I browsed and browsed, and everytime I saw his name, I could feel a thrill building up in my throat. The ecstasy was amazing, but that was until he went offline.

Orange and Chivalry of a failed knight. Anime console games you have:I don't own a console at the moment however I'm thinking about getting one in the near future.

Why do you want to join Baka:Ever since Baka was introduced to Hackforums I fell in love with it. The idea of having a official group for people who watch Anime is amazing, the anime board here is also nice however I felt like that Baka would suit me well. Unfortunately I missed the first recruitment and I did not feel like buying my way in so I waited for this day to come. Now it is here and I want to finally give it a shot. I personally am a very positive person, I like to start conversations with strangers especially when it is something that we both share an interest in, in this case Anime. I'm hard working, if the group is in need of help I will be ready to help to my fullest extent. If you choose me to join the group I can promise this, you will not regret accepting me.

Best regards,
Wespa
