Thread: Gang rep duo & multi UID=3014849 & UID=2828861

NOTE: This was originally posted in marketplace discussions. A staff member moved it here without me asking. Just letting you know if you think it doesn't belong here.

Basically, I PM'd renegade teasing him about my rep. The MINUTE I do so, I get neg repped by his friend which I never have talked to.

The fact that he caught on so fast suggests that he asked him to neg me. Keep in mind that this is hours after the drama. If it was from that why would he neg me now?

UPDATE: One of the accounts got vacation banned. Only adds to proof.

Let me give you some insight on the situation. This isn't about OP receiving a negative reputation anymore it's about exposing a possible multi-accounter.

- Both accounts have the same post activity
- Both accounts use the same grammar and spelling mistakes along with the generic insults
- Both accounts neg other members together
- He vacation banned his other account because things were getting heated

It's not confirmed, but looks possible.

UPDATE: He has basically admitted to it.

Was verbal harassing the dude via pm really necessary though? I know he's selling a turbo'd @ but I don't think directly messaging the guy to call him scum is really appropriate.

Don't think you're allowed to sell for someone else. You have to be officially partnered with the other member in the sales thread.

Did Jammer actually try and sell you a twitter handle?

Bluffer - February 15, 2017, 4:37 pm

Making a thread was probably not the best option as whenever there is a thread to do with rep it never ends well for the OP.

With that being said you should read the help documents, see if what you are claiming is gang rep is really gang rep or not and if it is then follow proper procedure in reporting it.

However being repped by two ub3rs does not seem like gang rep to me and any member can rep you for any reason (as long as it doesn't violate the rules) and like I said this thread will just get you more negs so gg.

So it's a false DWC?

Quote:What is reputation abuse?

Reputation abuse can be very complicated subject matter. Here is a list of the following ways reputation can be viewed as abuse.

- Flaming: Using extremely coarse language to describe or berate a member.
- Reputation as a currency: We do not allow the buying or selling of reputations.
- Gang Rep: The act of coordination with other members to raise or lower a member's reputation is not allowed.
- Rep Coercion: Using intimidation, threats, or blackmail to get reps added or removed.
- Rep Requesting: You cannot give hints, tips, or request reputations.
- Scammer Reputation: You're required to leave a link to a Deal Dispute thread you have created to infer someone is a scammer (ie: scammer, scams, chargebacks, scamming). Please note that a Deal Dispute link must be your own thread you've created. It cannot be a thread opened by another member.
- Deal Dispute Linking: We don't allow you to link to a Deal Dispute forum thread that's opened by another member.
- Reputation Collusion: Agreeing to participate in reciprocal reputations with a member.

Doesn't look like false DWC is against the rules.

If it really is Gang Rep, then yes, this would be a violation of the Help Docs.

W?lr?? - February 15, 2017, 4:45 pm

I rarely see instances where admins do anything about rep because most of the time there is no proof that this is 'gang rep'. Although you can speculate that it is gang rep, no one knows why someone repped someone with something.

?Synapse - February 15, 2017, 4:48 pm

2 people having a negative opinion on you isn't "Gang rep" you're a class A retard if you honestly think this. If I were to have like 4 people neg you, that'd be considered gang rep. So go bitch about reputation some more you fucking assclown. Take the neg like a man, you don't need to start drama over it.

Does the amount of members matter? All it refers to is other members, which can be 2 as it is in this case.

Nerdi - February 15, 2017, 5:44 pm

Here's the deal.

1) I don't care what the outcome of this is.

2) There is no indisputable evidence that this is gang rep. Just circumstantial evidence.

3) It's possible that it isn't gang rep, but they're friends. In the past, my buddies and I would be on Skype a lot. I don't go on Skype that much anymore, but when I used to I would occasionally link to posts or threads on another forum that I thought my friends would enjoy. They would usually reply to thread with their own opinions. If the OP of a thread was being a fucking idiot, it usually resulted in all of us -repping the person too. Now, this wasn't really gang rep in my opinion because none of us ever mentioned rep. However, we had shared a link to a thread and all independently agreed that the Op was a fucktard, and so we -repped them. Most of them don't use forums anymore, so the modern day version of this happening is with Reddit. If I see something great, I send the link - I don't tell them to upvote it, but they most likely do if they like the submission. Similarly, if I say "wow look at this stupid shit", I wouldn't be surprised if my friends all independently decided to downvote the content. Is this "gang-voting" or gang repping? Nope, it isn't. However, an educated person can easily make the mistake of thinking it IS gang rep. In this case, the effect does not prove the cause (the collective repping is not evidence of gang rep). We see the effect (multiple -reps from friends), but the cause could be anything - including the innocent sharing of one of OP's threads or posts.

4) Based on Points 2 & 3, it is entirely plausible that this is simply a case of one friend saying to another "omg look at what this guy did" and they independently decided to -rep Mr. Krabs.

5) Based on Point 1, do whatever you would like guys. This is just my 2 cents.

Its Karma at the end of the day.

The Honest members, we spot flag and report the sketchy assholes lurking about.

Its not perfect, sometimes it takes a few reports to get the message through and verified, but no system is perfect.

So take it with a grain of salt.

If OPs right about it all, it will get resolved, simple at that.

(Feb 15, 2017 06:44 PM)Nerdi Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Here's the deal.

1) I don't care what the outcome of this is.

2) There is no indisputable evidence that this is gang rep. Just circumstantial evidence.

3) It's possible that it isn't gang rep, but they're friends. In the past, my buddies and I would be on Skype a lot. I don't go on Skype that much anymore, but when I used to I would occasionally link to posts or threads on another forum that I thought my friends would enjoy. They would usually reply to thread with their own opinions. If the OP of a thread was being a fucking idiot, it usually resulted in all of us -repping the person too. Now, this wasn't really gang rep in my opinion because none of us ever mentioned rep. However, we had shared a link to a thread and all independently agreed that the Op was a fucktard, and so we -repped them. Most of them don't use forums anymore, so the modern day version of this happening is with Reddit. If I see something great, I send the link - I don't tell them to upvote it, but they most likely do if they like the submission. Similarly, if I say "wow look at this stupid shit", I wouldn't be surprised if my friends all independently decided to downvote the content. Is this "gang-voting" or gang repping? Nope, it isn't. However, an educated person can easily make the mistake of thinking it IS gang rep. In this case, the effect does not prove the cause (the collective repping is not evidence of gang rep). We see the effect (multiple -reps from friends), but the cause could be anything - including the innocent sharing of one of OP's threads or posts.

4) Based on Points 2 & 3, it is entirely plausible that this is simply a case of one friend saying to another "omg look at what this guy did" and they independently decided to -rep Mr. Krabs.

5) Based on Point 1, do whatever you would like guys. This is just my 2 cents.

This is probably one of the more saner posts that I have seen in this thread.

While + reputation is earned, there will be some that don't care if one had earned a certain amount of positive reputation only to see the + numbers go down because of a certain individual or in some cases multiple people will neg rep that person regardless if the reasoning is rational or not.

Is that fair? Probably not, but as stated multiple times in the site rules and elsewhere, you are here at your own risk, which includes risking your reputation for good or bad.

This is coming from a person who runs a forum website. ?

One of the primary reasons why I stay out of the Marketplace is because there's way too much drama and negativity (not in terms of rep, but in terms of emotion) that goes on in there.

I went in there once after I signed up and told myself, "Hmm... nope, not the place for me."

Go check when he banned himself and when these two posts were made.

There was also a Discord incident in regards of him trying to have his friend pose as Renegade. Unfortunately he fucked up and he spoke under the wrong alias whilst the Renegade alias was sat in silence. Then the renegade alias left the server and the Discord link expired, unfortunately I don't have proof of this so I can't back it up.

Message Mini and have him move this thread back to the marketplace discussions as a community alert where it belongs. This is about the member being a multi who goes around using both of his accounts to lower a members reputation.
