Thread: Do you believe in Aliens?

PICwarrior381 - February 19, 2017, 5:40 am

To be honest...

Yes, I believe Aliens exist because space is infinite and I don't believe that we are the only form of life in this whole universe.

What do you think guys?

TheVBScripiter - February 19, 2017, 5:41 am

Yes I do. Because I seen some documents which convinced me.

First, I did not, I thought it was just bullshit although I really wondered what's "up there"*..

*"Up there" = the whole universe.

Off-topic.. do you believe in "multiple universes" or do you think that there is only "1" of everything.

Somewhere in the universe? Sure. On earth? Probably not.

Personally I do believe in multiple (and alternate) universes.

Chances, no matter how huge are always limited.

It's like dice, but instead of only going to 6, it goes to billions, even more.

Let's say this universe is 23.

The chances of the dice landing on 23 again, as small as they are, they're not impossible at all.

The Illusionist - February 19, 2017, 5:48 am

I don't think the Aliens are here now or have been here on Earth in the recent past (recent past being 5000-10.000 years). I do believe they are out there. The chances of Earth being the only planet that houses life is just too damn small. I think it will take another few thousand years before we get into contact with any other intelligent life form. However, non-intelligent life forms we might find those within the next 50 years I'd say.

Elitas - February 19, 2017, 5:53 am

Yes, space is infinite, alien is even the smallest thing.

Find an insect which is alive on mars? Well, it's an alien!

Find some planets 100000 lightyears away with a bacteria on it; alien.

I have to say, after talking to him as well as plenty of "research" I did before I joined HF, I noticed that I wasn't able to "forget" the things I read/see.

Nothing "shocking" but once you see a certain pattern / "alien" kind of view which we are taught to have (green big eyed cuties who invite the world but always start with the USA) you can't refuse to think about it anymore when others talk about it.

A lot that I read, saw, heard which I won't discuss here, will mess with your head if you are open to believe "such crap" (this is how you will feel when reading / seeing things first).

SIM-2998667 - February 19, 2017, 6:17 am

Yeah I do believe that somewhere out there, millions of light years away, there must be another human inhabited planet.

The universe is so vast, with so many solar systems, that I find it hard to believe that only one of the planets (earth) happen to be inhabited by humans.

I doubt we'll ever see these planets in our life time, but it would be pretty cool to see if they are more advanced or less advanced than us technology wise. They probably have different materials than us that they can use to create shit, who knows :o

Damn its so interesting, I wish someday NASA finds a planet that has human life on it.

How do you feel about Jupiter / the moon?

Just 2 "weird" things that you (and OP) might think about:

- Neil A. was the first who visited the moon, right? (Neil A. = A. lien? Perhaps a cover up? Who knows)

- <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BGGp-cQsS3g> (indigo kid from Mars).

Disclaimer/Info:

If you are unaware of things like Indigo children, Alien footages (videos/phone calls/documents) and other topic related information, it might seem / come across as bullshit. Please take your own conclusion and discuss these things with manners.

That's just stupid.

Even if it was some sort of "government cover up" why would they even give out clues? Why do they send out a guy whose name is "Alien" backwards? Couldn't they send out someone whose name is "Mmit" backwards?

I wish I'm alive the day NASA finally confirms that there is a planet that has human life on it right now and also shows us like pics or something of the planet. This is one of my favourite topics to think of.

I am not here to defend any knowledge I got regarding any topic, I know that plenty of users are too "closed" to think openly about such things, yet I suggest you to do some research regarding NASA + aliens, the drunk "ex-nasa" worker who admitted it, the documents regarding Aliens, the photos of Area 51 and the interviews that were giving with ex-nasa workers as well as people who are almost dead (too old to lie about stuff).

But man, there's so much things that us, normal people if I can say just don't know, the government are hiding so much stuff to us.

Like the women who was taking photos when the President Kennedy got shot, they never found her again, maybe she worked for the government and all of this was prepared, once again we don't know.

And for the Aliens they always deny the fact that they exist but they are many evidence of them visiting the planet earth like Roswell.

Imkasumidloke - February 19, 2017, 8:00 am

Even though I do not have any proof of life outside of planet Earth. I believe that it is very possible that there is other life out there. I think that life in general has been around for thousands and thousands of years :)

fapninja - February 19, 2017, 8:03 am

Carl Sagan sent a message on the voyager probe in the hopes that alien life will discover it, despite the apparent odds.

In the end, we actually don't know enough about our universe to say conclusively that intelligent aliens don't exist near us. But the evidence that we have certainly points to it being very unlikely, with such vast nothingness and so few inhabitable planets nearby.

I want to believe...

"the government are hiding so much stuff to us." - Correct.

"Like the women who was taking photos when the President Kennedy got shot, they never found her again" - Correct.

Some people say / accuse the government of "time travelling" to fix this issue (he got shot in the head by the co-driver)

Some people say that it was an inside job & the government killed her to protect their story (like they're chasing Snowden down, as well as Wikileaks creator and other "open" people).

"And for the Aliens they always deny the fact that they exist but they are many evidence of them visiting the planet earth like Roswell." - Correct.

Some people say that a part of the Alian race (reptiles) are running the world (as leaders) because those are enjoying to see humans being killed especially in war

Some peopel say that this is true and that they're "hiding" in Alaska, because nobody stays there long enough to do research about every inch of Alaska

Some people say that this is true, but they are "hiding" among us to watch us (statements like Alien prevented a nuclair war, etc.)

Disclaimer

For those who never heard of: Alien, Reptiles, Annunaki, Shape Shifters, Time traveller, Mandela effect, etc. will think this is the talk of a mad man, maybe it is, maybe it is not.

SmoothCriminal412 - February 19, 2017, 8:21 am

Public and general opinion would say yes, and then they would go on to say how 'Well there's no way we're the only species, we can even see other planets, and we're a planet, so other species must exist there!' Which is definitely correct, there are other planets, and at some point perhaps they were inhabited, but right at this moment in time? Probably not, which brings me on to why I'm actually writing this in the first place, the key concept; time.

My lecturer, who I look up to and consider to be one of the smartest men put it into perspective for me, like this thread, the topic of extraterrestrial life was brought up, and of course, like everyone does the entire class began to speak of how there is extraterrestrial life out there in space right now, without a doubt.

Now the job of a good teacher is to show you a different perspective to that of your current one, to show you an alternative view, to have you think for a second 'Maybe what I believed isn't all that true?' at least in my opinion that's what makes a great teacher.

Now moving on to his point, he told everyone to be quiet yabbering on about something that everyone in the class clearly agreed with; which is that aliens do exist. And he got his pen and drew a line on the whiteboard, to which everyone gazed at this dull black line wondering what in the world he was getting at. He said let's say this 10 inch line represents time from it's origin up until this very moment, this line now represents billions and billions of years. He then proceeded to tap his pen at one random spot on this line and said here, this is us, right now, at this very moment. Now tell me, do aliens exist?

Whether or not he believes in aliens is completely beyond the point here, the point here is perspective. Think of the bigger picture, in terms of the universe in it's entirety we're merely a second, our species time in the universe without a doubt would equate to a >second<. Do aliens exist in the same second as that of us? Probably not. I actually think it is naive to think that just because we exist at this time that other species must also.

If you read this, good on you. I hope this may've slightly altered your view.

Edit: I was just thinking about the way we view an alien, which typically just means different to us right? In that case a dog, a cat, a snake anything that isn't a human could technically be considered under the alias of an Alien? In which case they're living among us right now...If so many different kinds of creatures can exist on this Earth imagine what may've existed on the others at some point in time.

I think there is definitely life out there in space. There has to be, with the universe being so big, how could we be the only ones?

I saw someone say that they don't think aliens have been on earth recently, but let's be honest, we have been to the moon? (Unless the conspiracy's are true about it not happening :P) So if we can go to the moon, why would it be so hard for aliens to come here?

I saw a video today actually of the live 24/7 NASA feed that they cut off straight after seeing six UFO looking things go past the screen. Also it's not like it's a faked YouTube video because this was on the NASA live stream which they then cut off straight after this happened.

But on topic, the whole concept of aliens, seems fun to believe.. But the theories people think up, or where we come from, or even the mother ship returning to abduct and take over the world one day, etc.. Seems highly unlikely. Would be fun tho, to visit the site of Area 51 and see what you can uncover, and what is true and what is fake.

Techius - February 19, 2017, 3:59 pm

I believe in aliens in the sense that there are other (inferior) life forms out there. I don't believe in aliens in the sense that there are green dudes with 3 eyes in a UFO watching our every move.

I don't see how their genes will be any different? Given the right conditions, they should be able to have stuff like bacteria and other small basic life building blocks. They will be able to eat, drink and shit, just like us.

If you wanna know more about time traveling, you should read a brief history of time by Stephen hawking if you haven't read it yet ? or watch the videos about blackhole it's really amazing ?Time traveling is real and it happened in the past (future? Who knows).

Plenty of videos / photos show "weird" things for those who aren't aware of what they should see, but once you see that the people at those photos / videos are using / wearing stuff that isn't of "that time" you start to believe more.

Anyway, not here to talk about all this for days, because I could go on for hours and hours and I really need to work today.

Did you ever think that Earth and humans are the real 1 in a trillion jackpot lottery winners?

Also OP asked about aliens which is something I personally just don't believe exist. I do believe so. Except that I seen interviews of people who "came" from another body at another planet* as well as the "transferring souls" that came from another universe.

But if you don't believe in "Aliens" than it's hard to convince you of my point of view, but hey, everybody got their own perception of reality thoughts right? ?

*The boy from Mars (a young kid who started to meditation with "poses", talks about astrology like it's his "garden" as well as his live at Mars and why he died there & is at earth now ("where we're aging fast because we breath in oxygen").

The "Illuminati" woman who talks about all this in an interview, claimed to come from another Universe where Earth is at peace and it's "her" (not her, but partly hers) task to bring back peace again before it's too late.

One of the most concernings things she said of all the things I found "shocking" was: "we aren't ready yet for what is about to come".

Anyway, this is my point of view / thoughts, very nice topic to talk about just unfortunate it isn't in the SRPP section.

Yes, space is infinite. I think we'd have to be fools to not think that aliens exist.

They may just not have the image that we have portrayed them as having .. But I definitely think there is life out there.

In my opinion there is a bigger chance that there are aliens than a god(or gods).. lol ???

Nate - February 21, 2017, 8:00 am

I believe that aliens are the most likely things to be real in this world.

SLY™ - February 21, 2017, 8:02 am

Yes because I have some some crazy crazy shit in the sky that it is impossible for us to have created..

babayaga - February 21, 2017, 8:58 am

Yes I do. Got hooked with Ancient Aliens and there a lot of evidence that are REALLY convincing.
Also a guy hacked I think Pentagon or NASA and found evidence about Extraterrestrials

Jaav - February 21, 2017, 9:02 am

I personally dont beleive anything until I see it but.. I cant deny that there may be another life on another planet in another galaxy
