

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Tablet drawn forest

exosquid - February 20, 2017, 2:04 pm

Hey there, so I just got my new Wacom Intuos Pro drawing tablet, i've never had one. So, i tried it out and went for a forest picture and tried to go for some perspective. I'll note out that I have no drawing skills what-so-ever while drawing on paper. I know that practicing can improve my drawing skills so i'll give it a try.

The tablet is mostly in use to make 2d pixel graphics, which i'm leveled higher than a total novice-tablet makes it way faster.

Huge criticism appreciated and any tips I would love to hear.

I've already learned a lot in theory about light mapping and such, but i'm new to painting in photoshop and using it's huge variety of different styles to draw and enhance the image.

TL;DR - CAN'T EVEN DRAW A STICKMAN ON PAPER, FIRST DAY OF HAVING A TABLET AND DRAWING ON PHOTOSHOP.

<http://i441.photobucket.com/albums/qq139/Rasshu/esimeneever.png~original>

Jaav - February 22, 2017, 8:37 am

Damn that looks awesome! I love it! Goodjob OP!

Traum - February 22, 2017, 8:44 am

Pretty nice, the ground and grass is done pretty good, however do the leaves look a bit off. They seem to be some kind of liquid and it doesn't really fit. I would also go for a different color for the leaves.

Futurefreak - May 7, 2017, 12:11 pm

That blurry look makes it look so great ! Nice !