Thread: Update on my legal issues \(4 months in prison for swatting\)

Jerry Smith - February 20, 2017, 5:24 pm

So I got a deal from the prosecutor to reduce my charges and take 2 months off my likely sentence. I have please hearing and sentencing on Mar 20th, I've already done 4 months so if I get an 8 month sentence which my attorney said is likely I'll only have to serve 4 months and I could get out after 3 with good behavior.

Wish me the best. I'll talk to you all when I'm out of prison.

Just take care and do not use soap no matter what the situation is, OP.

Kashira - February 20, 2017, 5:31 pm

This is why you don't go overboard OP, but anyways hopefully the time will pass by fast and nothing bad happens. Make sure to make a thread about your experience, I'd personally would like to know.

Should I make videos about it telling stories or write stories in diff. Threads or just keep a journal and share that when I'm out?

RainSpider3000 - February 20, 2017, 5:33 pm

How are you using the internet right now? And how did you get charged with extortion, everything but that makes sense.

In my state (Washington) making a threat with the intent to gain property or money or services is "extortion"

You were swatting to try and gain something in return?

Also, what did you call the swat on to get caught? You should always use Skype on a VPN from what I have heard & seen.

One video about the experience would be fine, assuming not too many things happen. Also you could have a video of you explaining how this all happened and what you experienced all the way up to the point you're released. Up to you to make a thread, but a video would be nice imo.

Both would be neat.. A quick question though..

1. What were you thinking when you decided to swat?
2. Was it honestly worth it in the slightest way?

2. Yes. But that doesn't mean I don't deserve the punishment, I committed the crime and I accept whatever the judge feels is best to attempt to rehabilitate me.

Although I can understand how you feel/felt, I'm going to say that you're still in an immature mindset of thinking, and here's why..

- you feel no remorse (you're honest about this, this is good)

- you're willing to accept the punishment given (that's also good, but sounds like an on paper response)

What makes it childish is the wasted public resources (the people who protect the general public) to get even in some sort of way. I mean odds are someone is really fucking with you or maybe even scammed you, but not worth wasting all the resources that were probably used.

Correct me if i'm wrong here man, idk.. I just hope you don't make a mistake like this again when you get out.

It's not just the resources wasted that troubles me, the fact that people (innocent in this case) can get hurt or even killed in something like this. I believe I was reading a news article not that long ago where the police breached into a house and accidentally killed a child. Very unfortunate shit. Be glad no one got hurt other than mentally and pay the price.

I think you should of gotten a harsher penalty. You waste hundreds of thousands of tax payer money on a prank, in essence. That money could be going to actual domestic terrorist targets, which is becoming a massive problem.

8 months prison for swatting?

I mean, I get that it's bad, but damn, wouldn't have expected more than a couple thousand in fines or something.

After all, it's not really much different from prank calling the police or something. Unless the SWAT team is aiming to always shoot on sight for a call which is unconfirmed.
