Thread: What computer chair do you have?

Keat - February 25, 2017, 12:09 pm

I need to buy 2 computer chairs. I want them both be the same but different color is fine. I am trying to find a good chair but don't know what to get. I know DX Racer are pretty good but then they have a load of knock offs and don't want to get a cheap one that will end up breaking.

What do you guys recommend?

I found these:

Some random 60 euro one from a local store (For almost 5 years now xD)

You'd be better off with an actual brand chair than an off brand that tries to copy another. If you're looking for quality stay away from knock offs

I don't see the point in paying $400 for a gaming chair when you can get a badass looking racing chair for like 3x less the price, I had one and they're genuinely comfy as fuck.

My friend had the DX Racer and was surprised that my $100 cheaper version was better.

Which one did you have?

I have this very chair IKEA Millberget

UglyMeister - February 25, 2017, 12:33 pm

I've been rocking a red dxracer for the past 2 or 3 years. It's pretty damn comfortable and comes with some good features (adjustable chair angle, locking/unlocking base)

Which model do you have?

Do you have a picture of which one you have?

Traum - February 25, 2017, 12:46 pm

I've got the "Ikea Markus". Pretty comfy chair for a fair price (around $140) not like all those professional gaming chairs for $500+.

Have you sat in any of them that have the pillows on the bottom and top?

And do you think you would prefer a leather one?

Ollie. - February 25, 2017, 12:53 pm

I have had this chair for a while now, <http://www.argos.co.uk/product/6173649> It's still in great condition and has lasted really well.

UglyMeister - February 25, 2017, 12:55 pm

No to the first, and to the second there are some good and bad things about the leather vs. cloth. If you go the cloth route you will most likely not suffer "sweaty back syndrome" when playing for more than an hour, the only downside is that if you are eating/drinking and spill something on your chair it's gonna be much harder to get the stain out. Now leather on the other hand is much easier to clean and maintain imo but is such a bitch during the summer or if you're in a tight space with a hot-running pc beside you. Personally I prefer the cloth but your circumstances may compel you to buy one over the other for reasons other than mine.

I literally don't have a computer chair :(The one's you linked in OP look pretty cool, you might as well get one of those if you're willing to spend the money.

I don't have a desktop computer, just a laptop. I either sit on my bed or go to the union at my school.

I feel, I'm currently a student so I'm not always allowed the luxury of my desktop and have to settle for my slightly older laptop while I'm in class or just at school in general.

Yeah, I had to move into a shared room so there was no space for my desk and old crappy chair.

Also we cancelled our internet and the school blocks HF so I have to use mobile or when I'm on campus I have to log into a VM that one of my computer science classes provided me in order to use HF.

God I can't wait to move in May...

reBELLYus - February 25, 2017, 1:34 pm

dx racer. Also, a really cozy exo chair.

Your school actually blocked HF? Didn't think universities/colleges cared that much lol.

Yeah... best school in the state with 40k students and they're so petty they need to block HF.

A + - February 25, 2017, 1:49 pm

Those are nuts. I just use a regular squaky ass office chair. Get's the job done lol.

Keat - March 5, 2017, 3:38 pm

Still haven't bought any. I have my eyes set on some OPSeat chairs which will be about $448 for 2 chairs shipped. I checked out the Erwin chairs and all but the pink ones are sold out.

Anyone recommend anything else?

It's a simply office chair that I bought few years ago for $200

630 - March 6, 2017, 1:14 pm

Imo both of those chairs look kind of cheap and they don't have that good of reviews. I currently have a DX Racer King Series (black and white). Ended up getting it off of Newegg a few months ago and I can honestly say it was an awesome purchase. Took me a little to get used to but I love it.

https://www.dxracer.com/us/en-us/product/1/gaming_chairs/king_series/oh-ks06-nb/

I'd go with option 2 if I were you but I'd suggest just getting a name brand one.

I got the exact same, I love it actually.

One thing I dislike about it, which isn't a huge turn down: you can't lean back without hanging your arms behind your head. It goes back to the front otherwise.

Except for that, fucking love that chair haha

WHAT? Holy shit. I have some memories with that chair.

Gave me serious lower back pain.

Broke while I was gaming, so I spilled energy drink all over the place.

Gave me even more back pain.

Killed my first born.

Even more back pain.

Yup. 10/10 chair.

Keat - March 13, 2017, 5:10 am

I ended up buying 2 OPSeat chairs and they are very good quality. Each chair is about 54 pounds and made of quality materials.
