

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[Help\] Steam removes my game from library](#)

Velo - February 27, 2017, 8:56 pm

So... This is a weird occurrence, it happened all week everyday I turned on my PC. I would find Dota 2 not in my steam library (All the files for the game are still there and in the same spot) I have to spend maybe 10 minutes, "reinstalling" dota, for it to just discover the files again and validate etc..

Why is this happening? Everytime I restart?

Trivexlimum - February 27, 2017, 9:01 pm

I have never had that problem for as long as I have been with steam. Do you have two different installations of steam on your pc on separate drives or anything?

Velo - February 27, 2017, 9:06 pm

(Feb 27, 2017 10:01 PM)Homies4life09 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have never had that problem for as long as I have been with steam. Do you have two different installations of steam on your pc on separate drives or anything?

I have a dual boot on my main hd right now. and I do have steam installed on that.

Trivexlimum - February 27, 2017, 10:45 pm

Shouldn't be a problem, I had a problem before where steam would auto-start with windows but it wasn't the right folder/drive. I run steam off my D drive but the one on my C drive was auto-starting. I solved that tho, that didn't make my games disappear though just different ones come up since I had different installs.