Thread: Someone offered me this

Lamee-Ven0m - March 2, 2017, 9:01 am

So some i know offered me a domain, That i can have for FREE because he decided to pursue something different.

Domain: ZeroGen.co.uk

So the question is what could i use the domain for?

An account generator?

Really the only thing that comes to mind.

ZeroGen

Cool name. We have zero, and generator...

So what can we generate?

What has zeros?

Not just accounts!

Here's some ideas :) Account generator (of course)

Keygen directory (for lots of things - could use affiliate redirect or DL for $)

Binary uses 1s and 0s...Perhaps a binary converter/generator to convert to/from

Zero generation..Not the first generation...Hmm...Perhaps a historical site about what a certain country or place was like before the 1st generation of settlers came to it?

ZeroGen - A site that aims to seek a rate of 0 genocides per year, a rate not seen for centuries.

ZeroGen[der] - A site dedicated to people born with no physical and/or mental gender assigned.

ZeroGen[italia] - A porn site for people who want to see cockless and titless people do it like they do it on the Discovery channel.

MY POINT IS THIS:

There's a lot of different things you could do with this.

A lot of people make the mistake of trying to create a website that fits a domain name they bought or were given...The best thing to do is to buy a domain that fits the thing you're passionate about. Make a site that you can love...not a site that fits the domain. However, if you DO make a site on ZeroGen, use my list as proof that there are plenty of ideas you can use for your site ?
