

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Dear Mods

Katarina Du Couteau - March 3, 2017, 1:31 am

This is Ub3r Support, not the general support.

Before Eagle 95 and Minimalist got mod threads were just left open even if they got a reply.

Please stop closing the threads :(

M?xim - March 3, 2017, 1:32 am

Minimalist is bout to write an essay where he be flamin' you now for this thread. Prepare yourself.

ra1d - March 3, 2017, 1:40 am

(Mar 3, 2017 02:31 AM)Katarina Du Couteau Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is Ub3r Support, not the general support.

Before Eagle 95 and Minimalist got mod threads were just left open even if they got a reply.

Please stop closing the threads :(

No they were not left open before.

And why should it be open when you got your answer, people will just keep repeating the same answer over and over.

Katarina Du Couteau - March 3, 2017, 2:15 am

(Mar 3, 2017 02:40 AM)ra1d Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No they were not left open before.

And why should it be open when you got your answer, people will just keep repeating the same answer over and over.

Well if its answered people dont have to reply, but what if someone else has a follow up question? And if you lock the thread if its "done", why not lock all "done" threads?

King of Hearts - March 3, 2017, 3:12 am

Main reason threads are locked is because the last post is usually the correct answer. In the future if someone else has the same question, that person might not read every post and miss the "correct answer".

So the threads are closed and you really have to only read OP and last post.

If you have a follow up question, feel free to message a staff member, starting with the one who last replied and closed the thread. Remember, staff can always reopen threads.